THE CHIEF

LITTLE SQUALLS.
 BY M. DASH.
OUR TRAVEL.
 Oh, subscriber, we beseech thee
 Let our humble pleadings reach thee,
 If there's nothing else will reach thee,
 To come in and pay.
 Oh, subscriber, why hold back
 When you know just what we lack
 To put us on the same old track?
 Why do you delay?
 Oh, subscriber, will you never
 Let a dollar from you sever?
 Is this going on forever?
 Hain't it run long enough?
 Every dollar on the paper
 That is put into our scraper
 Melts away as if 'twas vapor;
 We cannot hold the stuff.
 Oh, delinquent, do not wait;
 Come in and pay us up to date,
 Or it soon will be too late.
 And we will have to stop you.
 Then we would hear you holler
 If it was just for a dollar
 That we took you by the collar
 And found we had to drop you.

"Ching-ching, ching ching, tra-la, la-la."
 Those were the words that came from afar;
 Now its "Ting-ting, ting ting, papa, papa,"
 Drop in the corner and get a cigar.

A LITTLE CAKE TO BAKE.
 Although the Belt did get the cake
 They got it all through a mistake,
 But they proceeded the string to break,
 The box was opened; they did partake,
 They say 'twas for their stomach's sake.
 (But now we think it is a fake)
 We think they ought to take a rate
 And clear their conscience of its quake,
 Or go and jump into a lake
 To steady their nerves and cease to shake
 They gave us the box, but not a snake
 Could find so much as a crumb to take;
 'Twas as clean a sweep as a fat fat drake
 With a dozen angle worms could make.
 It was a shame to have the cake wasted.
 Not a crumb by us was ever tasted;
 But we'll admit that's one on us,
 And if it happens again, there'll be a fuss.

"Did you ever hear such a sweet 'chord' that
 It would entwine itself around your heart-strings?"
 "No, but I heard a man make such a big discord
 That he was 'roped' in."

One day he came to the city
 And got well filled with his budget,
 That night he slept in the lock up,
 Next day he saw the judge.

 enough to lift the smoke.

A barber brave went out to hunt
 And let his barber chair,
 He shot at lots of rabbits
 But never touched a hare.

HISTORY OF COFFEE.
Furnished The Chief by Shea & Turnure, Red Cloud's Leading Grocers.

The early history of coffee as an economic product is involved in considerable obscurity, the absence of historical fact being compensated for by an unusual profusion of conjectural statements and by purely mythical stories. According to a statement contained in a manuscript now belonging to a historical society in Paris, the use of coffee was known at a period so remote as 875 A. D., or exactly 1019 years ago. The use of coffee as a beverage was prevalent among the Abyssinians from the most remote period, and in Arabia the beverage, when first introduced, only supplanted a preparation from the leaves of the oak, celastrus edulis. Coffee, by the early Mohametan priests, was held to be an intoxicant beverage, and therefore prohibited by the Koran; and the dreadful penalties of an outraged sacred law were held over the heads of all who became addicted to its use. For about two centuries the entire supply of the world, which, however, was limited, was obtained from the province of Yemen in South Arabia where the celebrated Mocha is still cultivated. It is remarkable that the introduction of coffee into England encountered the same hostility that it was fated to meet in other countries. Charles the II, in 1675, attempted to suppress coffee houses by a Royal proclamation, in which it was stated that they were the resort of disaffeced persons; but without success. In England, as well as other countries, the most effective check on the consumption of coffee was found to be a heavy tax, which, while restricting honest trade, opened an extensive channel for smugglers.

Down to 1690, the only source of coffee supply was Arabia, but in that year Governor General Van Hoorne of the Dutch East Indies received a few coffee seeds by traders who plied between the Arabian Gulf and Java. These seeds he planted in a garden at Batavia, where they grew and flourished so abundantly that the culture on an extended scale was immediately commenced in Java. One of the first plants grown in that island was sent to Holland as a present to the governor of the Dutch East India company. It was planted in the botanic garden at Amsterdam, and the young plants grown from its seeds were sent to Surinam, where the cultivation was established in 1718. Ten years later the plant was introduced in the West Indian islands, and gradually the culture extended throughout the New World, till now the progeny of that single plant sent from Java to Holland furnish three-fourths of the coffee consumed in the United States. There are as many as sixty varieties of coffee, the choicest of which are Mocha, Java, Guatemala, Santos, Maracaibb, Mexican and Rio. Coffees derive their names mostly from the principal seaport of their native or adopted country. Of the coffees annually consumed in the United States, the Republic of Brazil furnishes one half. The reason for this culminates from the fact that our abnormal appetite for cheap roast coffee is so difficult to appease, that it requires two-thirds of the low grade coffees of the globe, all of which find their way into packages bearing the legend Arbuckles, Lion, Mokaoka, German, McLaughlin's XXX, and various others.

A contemporary, when asked the meaning of the word "malpractice" answered: "We understand that it relates to a physician who is not onto his job. For instance: Should you fracture an arm and your family physician comes in and sets your leg; or sets both legs; or should your wife break a leg and the physician insists on setting your leg; or if your wife breaks a lower limb and the physician calls it a leg; or if a physician comes to your house and breaks your legs or if he refuses to set your wooden leg; or if in setting your leg he gets the heels in front; or if he gets the wrong end up; or if he loses the pieces that are broken; or if both legs be broken and he gets the right one in the wrong place; or if he pulls your leg for an exorbitant price he has been guilty of malpractice and is liable to prosecution. There are many more instances were the physician is liable but these are the most common ones and probably answer your purpose.

WEATHER FORECASTS

Furnished Expressly for The Chief for Webster County
 (Copyrighted by W. T. Foster.)
 ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 20.—My last bulletin gave forecasts of the storm waves to cross the continent from January 19th to 23rd and the next will reach the Pacific coast about January 24th, cross the western mountains by close of the 25th, the great central valleys from 26th to 28th, and the eastern states about the 29th. This disturbance will probably be at its greatest force in the Rocky Mountain states on the 25th or 26th.

The first disturbance of February will reach the Pacific coast about January 30th, cross the western mountains by close of the 31st, the great central valleys from February 1st to 3rd and the eastern states about the 4th. A cold wave will follow this storm, and will develop a low temperature, especially in the northeastern states.

Warm waves will cross the western mountains about January 24th, and 30th, the great central valleys 26th, and February 1st and the eastern states 28th and February 3d. Cool waves will cross the western mountains about January 27th and February 2d, the great central valleys January 29th and February 4th, and the eastern states January 31st and February 6th.

February will be a cold, stormy, disagreeable month and not favorable to agriculture and horticulture in the south.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.
 If you will draw on paper two right handed spirals you will have the movements of the wind in both the high and low barometers. The air comes down in, and moves out from the high barometer and blows into and rises in a low barometer.

This wind movement cannot be thoroughly explained without illustrations, but if you desire to understand the weather, you must study out these points.

These two barometers form an inseparable pair; they live and die together and the artery of their beings is as indissoluble as was that of the Siamese twins. If you are located in the high barometer and the wind is severe, you may well know that its mate, the low barometer, contains a severe storm, though it may be a thousand miles away. To know where that storm is and the direction it is moving is a matter of interest to you, and you can know by studying the weather signs.

As you will see, when you have understood the spiral motion, the wind blows nearly in a circle within both the high and low barometers. Don't forget that the storm centers except the tornado, are always found within the low barometers and the cooler and clearing weather is found in the high barometers.

If you stand on the outer edge of a low, facing its center, the wind will blow from your left toward your right and if you similarly face the center of a high, the wind will blow from the right toward your left.

If your barometer tells you, that you are in a low, place your left hand toward the wind and you will be facing the low or storm center; if you are in a high barometer, place your right hand toward the wind and you will be facing the center of the high. As these barometers, with the storm centers and storm waves, move from west to east, you can form correct ideas as to the weather immediately ahead.

This weather question is so old and yet so little understood—in fact until a few years ago the people had almost despaired of ever understanding it—that every statement made requires numerous explanations. Storms do not move directly from west to east, but that is their general course. They enter this continent on the west and leave it on the east, excepting tropical hurricanes. The storms wind about on the continent, sometimes moving south or north and very rarely they are pressed back toward the west but not far, they soon return to their eastward march.

To determine whether you are in the high or low barometer you must know what the normal barometer is for the month for your locality. The normal, or average barometer for January than it is for July. From about the 1st, of April to about the last of September the north American continent is covered with a low, and from about the 1st of October to about the last of March by a high. The transitional high and low barometers pass through these semi-annual barometers in summer and winter.

Draw a circle around Denver and 500 miles distant, and within it the average barometer for January is 30.2 Outside of that line all the states west of the Mississippi and all south of the Ohio except the Pacific coast, have an average of 30.15. The northeastern states range very close to 30.1 while the Pacific coast runs from 30 at sea level to 30.1 on the mountains. All this is for January, and when the barometer goes below that average it indicates the approach of clearing weather.

The numbers used above are for quicksilver barometers and are the number of inches of quicksilver in the tube that the atmosphere outside of the tube will exactly balance at sea level.

These lessons in the science of the weather are valuable, and those desiring more knowledge on the subject should preserve them for future reference.

The persistent cough which usually follows an attack of the grippe can be permanently cured by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. W. H. McGuire of McKay, Ohio, says: "La Grippe left me with a severe cough. After using several different medicines without relief, I tried Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which effected a permanent cure. I have found it to be without an equal for children, when troubled with colds or croup. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Devo & Grice.

 Mr S. Bayles wishes to announce to the public that he is prepared to take boarders at $3.50 per week, sleeping included. Apply at 4th Avenue Hotel.
