A DREAM IN THE CLOUD.

My friend, dear delightful soul,
I wish you all the joys of earth,
May love and pleasures never fade,
Your husband prove a man of worth,
Noble, affectionate and kind,
Gentle in action, pure in mind,
Devoted heart and soul to you,
Constant, generous and true,
And when your joys are completest,
And your bliss and pleasures sweetest,
Remember him who loved thee well,
When life was not so dear,
Who gladly hears the news you tell,
Nor deigns to shed a tear,
While you are happy, loved and blessed,
By fortune, friends and fate caressed,
But oh! if darker days should dawn,
And bliss imagined deathless, die,
And still fortune cease to fawn,
And all the sweetest pleasures fly
Then friend, turn to him who still
From jealousy and hatred free,
The measure of thy bliss can fill,
And make it glorious yet to be.

Cowles.

Mr. Editor you will excuse me for not having my valuable ad in the paper last week. You see I was out with the boys and forgot myself; it seems as if I have caused some trouble among the boys; a Mr. and Mrs. or a Miss Sally and I have taken the Belt and are a threshing Dishwasher in a manner that will paralyze him, and as J and Sally are on the sweetest of terms J should be displeased to cause any sorrow or pain.

One of the boys says he will never go out with his Red Cloud girls again as he had a collision, caused by a cow in the road; people should be more careful and not let their cows pasture in the public roads.

Several of the boys were out Sunday on a lark hunt, and Sally and I were along.

A certain young man wanted me to put in an advertisement in THE CHIEF to find him a girl; he is young and handsome and the young lady must be between the ages of 16 and 35 years; address all mail to Dishwasher.

I was at the young folk's party at Mr. Hill's Monday evening; Sally was around town and we all had a good time.

Mrs. Hurd was thrown from a buggy Monday and severely hurt; it was caused by the horse becoming unmanageable and upset the buggy. Dr H all reported her better on Tuesday.

The Banquet given by the A. O. U. W., Tuesday afternoon and evening was well attended, and there was plenty of ice cream and lemonade. The speakers were Winfield Scott, C. E. Putman, Peter Hill and many others. The Degree of Honor furnished the music, and an essay was read by Mrs. Strader.

Now Sally if you will publish your real name in the Belt you will save me lots of trouble trying to guess it.

I wish to call the attention of the people of Webster county that Cowles will celebrate the 4th. Everybody bring your dinner and we will furnish you one of the best entertainments that ever was witnessed in Webster county; all home talent and McKeighan and others will be present and I will make a speech myself. Fireworks in the evening.

DISHWASHER.

Bladen.

Gund & Co., are shelling out their corn; A Simerson doing the work.
