VETERAN HAS GONE.

CAPT. LAFAYETTE MUNSELL DIES SUDDENLY OF APPOPLEXY.

He was a Brave Soldier in Two Wars and the Protector and Favorite Comrade of "Old Abe," the Wisconsin War Eagle. Fought in the Mexican War and Through the Rebellion—Remains Will be Taken to Wisconsin for Burial.

Capt. D. L. Fayette Munsell, the protector and favorite comrade of Old Abe, the war eagle of the Eighth Wisconsin volunteers, suddenly and quietly passed away yesterday morning at 7:30 o'clock in the home of his daughter, 629 Orchard street. Peacefully resting on a bed in the uniform that he wore on his march to the sea with Grant, he looked what he was—the brave old soldier of two wars and the descendant of revolutionary sires. Capt. Munsell was a typical American soldier who was ready to serve his country in every emergency, and vain of his deeds only because they were done in defense of the flag that he loved and gloried in. He never wearied of recounting war incidents and stories, and his joy in late years was to recall with comrades of the Grand Army the stirring scenes of battle and of strife they had passed through.

Capt. Munsell was of the French stock and some of his ancestors came here with La Fayette, and most of them fought in the revolution under Washington. He was born in Amsterdam, N. Y., in 1824, the year when La Fayette came here as the guest of the republic he had helped to found and was named after him. When the Mexican war broke out he was living in Wisconsin and joined a regiment on its way to that country to serve under Gen. Winfield Scott. He was in most if not all the famous battles of that war. He fought at Monterrey, Cerro Gordo, Chapultepec, and entered the City of Mexico with the victorious columns of Scott. After that war he returned to Madison, Wis., and with the first shot that was fired at Sumpter he resolved to take up arms again in defense of the flag. He organized company H of the Eighth Wisconsin, the regiment which became famous, not only for its deeds but as there giment which carried throughout the war of the rebellion "Old Abe," the war eagle. "Old Abe" was specially attached to company H, and he and Capt. Munsell became great friends and comrades, and many an interesting and stirring incident and anecdote he used to tell of the warlike bird, the pet and the pride of the company and the regiment. The eagle, he said, knew as well as the men how the tide of battle was surging. When the union forces were being driven back "Old Abe" would sit with bowed head and folded wings on his perch, but when he heard the stirring note of a charge or the triumphant shouts of a union victory he would flap his wings and screech in glee, and leaving his perch would circle round the flags and over the heads of the men of his command.

Capt. Munsell fought all through the war, was at Shiloh, Chattanooga, Missionary Ridge, and many another field of carnage, and entered Vicksburg with Grant. He had many narrow escapes during the war, and, although never wounded by a bullet or shot, he did not escape injury. At one time a shell burst near him in the air and his hearing in one ear was ever after practically destroyed. In a charge in front of Vicksburg he received an injury while mounting over obstructions placed by the enemy, and otherwise was frequently partially disabled.

After the war Capt. Munsell returned to Madison, but in 1870 went to Red Cloud, Neb., where he lived until September last, when he came to Chicago to live with his daughters. At Red Cloud he was a prominent member of the James A. Garfield post, Grand Army of the Republic, at that place, and after leaving the post unanimously passed a resolution making him an honorary member for life, because of his "devoted and unswerving loyalty and his active and unflinching support of the post and the organization.

While at Red Cloud he had an attack of apoplexy and for a time lost the power of speech. Another like attack was the cause of his death. Capt. Munsell leaves a wife and eight children—two sons and six daughters. Four of the children live in this city. The body will be taken for burial tomorrow to Oregon, Wis., in the neighborhood of Madison. Capt. Munsell was an expert sword-man and a graduate of a military academy in New York state. Many Grand Army men paid visits of respect to the dead comrade yesterday and last night.—Chicago Times, Feb. 28.

Gardenvale.

Gardenvale is the new name given to the beautiful valley of Elm Creek between Amboy and Cowles. It was formerly known by the name of Picnic Gardens. The soil is rich and fertile and well adapted to farming and gardening.

G. A. Latta shipped another car of onions to Kansas City last Tuesday. Onions are in great demand at present.

Fred Hurd will farm the home place this season and expects soon to be plowing.

Ed Lewis is now a resident of Gardenvale. He moved to this place on March 1st.

There will be an exhibition at the Willow creek schoolhouse Friday evening the 8th.

The farmers will soon be at work making hot-beds and planting onions.

Quite a number of the Gardenvalers were present at the impeachment trial at Cowles last Friday evening and all report a good time and lots of amusement.

A Chance to Make Money.

The times are hard, but there always seems to be opportunities for those who are willing to work. In the past month I have made $175 above all expenses, selling Climax Dish Washers, and have attended to my regular business beside. I never saw anything that gave as general satisfaction. One should not complain where they can make over $6 a day, right at home. I have not canvassed any, so anxious are people for Climax Dish Washers, that they send after them; any lady or gentlemen can do as well as I am doing for any one can sell what everyone wants to buy. I think we should inform each other through the newspapers of opportunities like this, as there are many willing to work if they only knew of an opening. For full particulars, address the Climax Mfg. Co., Columbus, Ohio. After you have tried the business a week, publish the results for the benefit of others.
