Ex-Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue Murphy, Who Guarded His Records, Speaks in Praise of Paine's Celery Compound.

Ex collector of internal revenue Thomas F. Murphy of Maine, who was brought into prominence all over the country during President Cleveland's first administration by refusing to allow certain civil officials to peruse his records, heartily indorses Paine's celery compound.

Mr. Murphy is a keen observer. He is a writer of no mean ability, has been employed as editor and editorial writer on several papers, is recognized throughout Maine as a forcible and convincing speaker, and is universally liked. At present he represents a big Boston house on the road, where his warm geniality makes him welcome to every hotel and railway train.

In the smoking compartment of a parlor car last week he was praising Paine's celery compound to a fellow passenger. The person to whom he addressed his conversation had been laid up with the grip. The malady left him in a bad way, a sort of depression of spirits and a disinclination for business.

"I felt the same way," said Mr. Murphy. "After wrestling a week with the grip it left me depressed and weak. One flight of stairs was enough to make me puff and wheeze like a leaky bellows. A mile walk would almost floor me. Headache began the moment I got out of bed, and I felt about as mean as any one could for the whole day. Hearing so much about Paine's celery compound I made up my mind to try it, and I'll tell you how it worked. It was like close applications of soothing lotions to a scorched finger. After a few doses I found that on retiring I soon dropped into sound, refreshing sleep. In less than a week I was myself again. My eyes, which are none too strong at their best, but which burned and ached till I began taking Paine's celery compound, assumed their normal condition and really seemed stronger than before the grip marked me for a victim. I can walk five miles now and feel none the worse for it."

"My wife and boy are taking Paine's celery compound this spring."

TRUE STORY OF SUNDAY'S KILLING AT OMAHA.

Ish Confesses to Firing the Shots Which Killed Chappell—Mrs. Ish and the Murdered Man Were Unduly Intimate.

Omaha, Neb., June 12.—Development in the Ish murder case indicates that James Ish and not his wife shot Chappell at the Ish residence Sunday evening. When Ish was told that people generally believed that he did the shooting he asked: "Can they blame me for doing it? My God! I did not know that my wife was untrue to me until Saturday."

He was asked: "Did you send the letter to Chappell which brought him to your home or did you find him in a compromising position with your wife?"

"I did not know of any letter," he answered. "I did not send any letter to him, and no one can blame me for what I did. My God, I am not to blame because she was untrue to me. I told the story I did to save her reputation, and I did it to save her."

As Ish related it, the story of the crime is this: When Chappell came to his house at the remarkable time he did to fix the sewing machine Ish was satisfied that he had come to meet Mrs. Ish. Afterward when Ish left the room to go downstairs he went only part way, returning immediately. Looking into the room he saw the man apparently attempting to kiss Mrs. Ish, they being in each other's embrace. He fired the shot that took effect in the back of Chappell's head. In falling Chappell attempted to use his own revolver, but the shots went wild. As Chappell lay on the floor Ish fired half a dozen more bullets into his body.

Mrs. Ish ran out into the kitchen and excitedly told the first comer that she had killed the man for assaulting her, and on her entreaty to save her reputation Ish corroborated her story.

Officers informed Mrs. Ish that her husband had confessed. She broke down completely and said to Police Matron Cumming:

"Why did he tell this? It is true that Jimmy fired the shots. We had fixed up the story and had agreed that we would swear that I fired the shots. We thought that I could get out of it better than he."

She faces discovered got to show that Chappell and Mrs. Ish had been intimate for several months and it is conclusively shown that on the morning preceding the murder Ish was searching for the man who was afterward killed at the Ish cottage. Preliminary hearing takes place this morning.

Chinese Legation Not Informed of the Reported Rioting.

Washington, June 12.—Yesterday state department officials, after investigating the reports of the Chinese massacre, said that they thought an error had been made in the transmission of the name of the place where the massacre is said to have occurred. It is believed that this name instead of Cheng Tu should be Cheng Te, the capital of Hunan. In this place there are a number of foreign missionaries, and the anti-foreign feeling is very strong. In 1893 there were threatening demonstrations by the people, and the missionaries were kept for some time in a state of terror by the display of placards abusing the "foreign devils" and warning the natives against affiliation with them. The condition of affairs was regarded by United States Minister Denby as grave enough to warrant representations to the Chinese government and the facts were made the subject of several reports from the minister to the state department. Cheng Te is accessible to small gunboats and a British warship visited the neighborhood years ago. The Chinese legation has received no information as to the reported massacre of all missionaries in Cheng Tu or Cheng Te, and strong hopes are entertained that the affair may be less serious than the meager reports indicate.
