A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Deyo & Grice.

Medicine and Religion. From Judge. A pastor of a very poor church wished to present his congregation with hymn books, but did not have the money wherewith to buy them.

The proprietor of a patent medicine offered to give the books, provided he were allowed to insert his advertisements in them. The preacher gladly consented. When the books arrived he examined them carefully, but could not find the advertisement. Congratulating himself on his good fortune, he presented them on Easter morning, then announced, "We will sing the hymn on page 69."

One glance at the page and a very audible smile went through the congregation. The hymn read as follows: "Hark, the herald angels sing: Johnson's pills are just the thing: Peace on earth, and mercy mild, Two for man, and one for child."

GRAND TRUNK OFFICIAL.

Insomnia No Longer a Terror of the Hard Worker White Paine's Celery Compound Exalts—Mr. N. J. Grace Speaks in Praise of It.

One of the clearest complexioned, best looking men in Boston today, says the Boston Globe, is a prominent New England agent of a great railroad, who uses Paine's celery compound spring and fall, and whose wife and children take it daily during the spring months.

Mr. N. J. Grace of the Grand Trunk is a modest man, one of the best-liked gentlemen in Boston, and a thorough railroad man.

When asked about the merits of Paine's celery compound he said he believed in it thoroughly, had used it himself and in his family for two years with the most gratifying results.

"My boys are using it now," he said, "and I believe there is no better spring medicine than Paine's celery compound. A touch of rheumatism first urged me to try it, and times after that, when run down, as most every one is at intervals through the year, I found that it revived the vital spark and made me feel better.

Never in all my experience among men have I heard a remedy so highly spoken of. Friends of mine have used it with splendid results for dyspepsia and liver complaint, while for insomnia, a neighbor of mine tells me that it will banish it in a night."

Mr. Grace is one of the healthiest looking men to be met with in Boston today. For fully 30 years he has been with the Grand Trunk, yet in all his life he never looked better or enjoyed more freedom from pain than he does today. He is one of the thousands in this city who have reason to believe in Paine's celery compound.

WON A WIFE BY BRAVERY. Romantic Adventure in Japan of a San Francisco Sailor.

Charles Litner is one of the luckiest sailors that ever sailed out of this port on a sealing schooner. He is going to be married to one of the prettiest girls in Japan. Not only is she very pretty, but her parents are very wealthy, according to the story told by C. Burdell, says the San Francisco Examiner. Burdell came up on the steamer Coptic last week. Speaking of young Litner, he said: "Charlie is the son of Sebastian Litner, a laborer, who lives out on Nineteenth avenue. He is an athletic young fellow and has always had an ambition to see the world. That's why he shipped on the schooner Jane Grey and went roving over the seas in search of seals and adventure.

While at Hakodota, Japan, a few months ago Litner happened to be on one of the chief thoroughfares one afternoon when a spirited pony ran away with a Japanese girl, Miss Sena Kato. Litner saved the girl's life by springing in front of the runaway and striking the pony a stunning blow on the head with a club. The act was regarded as one of rare bravery, and before we left Japan it was announced that Litner was engaged to marry Miss Kato. He was hurt in the accident and was first taken to a hospital, but was afterward removed to the young lady's residence at the request of her parents. The marriage ceremony was to have taken place two weeks after we sailed. They are probably married by this time."

THE BLOW GUN. Only Malays and American Indians Use This Wonderful Weapon.

The blow gun is one of the most remarkable savage devices in which compressed air is used as a motive force. The blow gun is a simple tube of cane, smoothly cleared of the joint partitions, through which light darts, feathered with a tuft of down or pieces of pith, are propelled by the breath. The blow gun is used for killing birds and small animals. Frequently the arrows are poisoned, rendering the light dart effective on larger game. The chief merit of the blow gun is its accuracy and the silence with which it may be employed. The penetration of the blow gun dart is greater than would be imagined. At the distance of fifty feet I have driven a blunt dart one-quarter of an inch into a pine plank. It is stated that the range of the blow gun among some tribes is from eighty to 100 yards. The blow gun is a tropical device and may be looked for in regions where bamboo or cane grows. Nevertheless, these tubes are often made of hard wood, single or of two pieces hollowed out and joined together. Frequently one tube is thrust inside of another to secure rigidity. The examination of many of these blow guns inspires a great respect for the ingenuity and mechanical skill of the workers. The North American specimens are from the Chetimachas of Louisiana, who frequently combine the tubes in series, forming a compound blow gun, and the Cherokees of the Carolinas. From Central America, the Indians of Honduras and Costa Rica; from South America, several Amazon tribes from Ecuador east and from British Guiana employ the blow gun.

HOW TO TELL THE KEY. Just Remember These Nonsense Lines for Sharps and Flats.

"Amateur musicians often are somewhat embarrassed by the unexpected query as to what key a piece of music is in when playing in company," remarked a well-known music teacher. "They can tell on a little reflection, but an array of four or five sharps or flats is apt to temporarily confuse the best of them.

"Here is a simple little guide or reminder, which, if rehearsed a few times, will always keep them right and ready to make a quick response to such a question: "In sharps just dot down this sentence, the capital letter beginning each word representing an additional sharp, from one to six: 'God Deluged All Earth By Flood.' In flats the same rule obtains in connection with this amusing line: 'Fanny Baker Eats Apple Dumplings Greedily.'"

Wine Jelly is a Moth-Ball. Now that the lingering smell of the resurrected moth-ball is abroad in the land again, you will appreciate this little tale of misfortune. A girl I know and another girl whom I have met gave a luncheon not long ago. They are really marvels when it comes to cooking, and they prepared every dish themselves. Among other things they had wine jelly, and, as everybody knows, wine jelly is best when strained through flannel. They strained theirs through flannel—a piece of flannel they found in a chest of winter clothing. The luncheon began auspiciously and proceeded triumphantly till the jelly came on. One girl tasted it. Then she looked at the other girl and a look of horror crossed their faces. The jelly tasted of moth-balls. I don't believe those girls will make jelly again if they live forever.

The Dog Understood. Prof. Owen, a noted English scientist, tells a story of a dog named Lion, who accompanied him and his master on a walk once on the coast of Cornwall. The master picked up a piece of seaweed covered with minute animals, and Mr. Owen observed to his companion: "If this small piece contains so many treasures, how rich must the whole plant be. How I should like to have one!" The dog instantly leaped into the water and returned with a plant of seaweed, which he laid at Prof. Owen's feet.

His Life Aim Was to Look Like Dickens. A familiar figure has vanished from the streets of Philadelphia. What has become of him nobody knows, but he is seen in his old haunts no longer. His name and his family history are unknown to the great number of his fellow-citizens who knew his quaint face and figure so well. He was one of the army of imitators that flourished long ago, who made it their life study to dress the mannerisms and the style of dress of the eminent novelist Dickens. Many years ago, when Dickens came to this country, there were any number of men who were told by their friends that they greatly resembled the illustrious Englishman. The old gentleman who is the subject of this sketch was evidently one of these. He wore his hair brushed forward about his ears and neck; the beard, shaven on the cheek, remained always a handful on the chin, joining the mustache at the corners of the mouth. He wore the stock and tie that Dickens affected, and he even made it a point to assume the keen look which characterized the great novelist. Now he has passed away, and he was the last of Dickens' imitators.

Another Idiotic Wager. The man Durang, who recently won a wager that he would pose in full military uniform as a statue for twenty-eight days, with only one hour's rest per day, has now made another singular bet. He has now entered into an agreement to repose for the same length of time in a coffin, with but one hour's relaxation a day.

And Still the Patient Lived. Speaking from the point of view of numbers, the largest medical consultation ever held, was that recently convened in China, around the bedside of a member of the imperial family. There were 324 physicians present; but the patient lived, after all.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
