M. E. NOTES.

Well wasn't that a great sermon by Bishop Hott D. D. last Sabbath. We heard many say the sermon which delighted us all so much was too short. All good preaching is.

A great audience heard Rev. W. B. Alexander preach one of his good sermons last Sunday evening.

Prof. Wilson gave a very interesting talk to the Epworth League last Sunday evening.

Rev. Blackwell worshiped with us last Sunday.

The quarterly conference confirmed the action of the estimating committee in making the pastors salary $550.

Mrs. Wilson was elected a stewardess and E. Rife a trustee.

The sugar beets around this section, owing to the second growth, which was brought about by the September rains, are not testing up to average. It seems that the drought of August stopped the growth and that they were about matured, when the rains came and set them to growing again, causing a serious set back that will cause, it is feared, considerable loss to the growers.

Allie Albright is a noted bicyclist. The other day he came tearing down the street with a cord of wood in one hand and a bushel of potatoes in the other, when his wheel became obstreperous and ran away with him, and the last we saw of him, he was going over ditches, sidewalks, apple trees, and other high places. He made several excuses, but our reporter wouldn't take them, as he saw it all.

The pilgrimage to Denver to see Schlatter, the great healer, continues with unabated fury. Adam Morhart came home this week and reports great crowds every day, trying every way to see the man and be healed. He says that people stay up all night, so as to be there on time in the morning to see Schlatter. One morning he arose at four o'clock and went over to Schlatter's residence, and there were three hundred ahead of him, even at that hour. Several in this city have been treated and think he has helped them. He left Denver on the 16th, and will go to Chicago. Whether he can do all that is said of him or not, one thing is certain, he has been a drawing card for Denver and lots of people have faith in him.
