WORK THAT GOES AWRY.

some Things that Disturb the Household Happiness.

Every housekeeper knows that it is not the steady routine work which goes on day after day, with variations of incidental company and incidental extra work of various kinds, that breaks down the health and temper. In the harmonious home, and there are thousands of such happy homes throughout the land, each member of the family contributes a share of work to the complete whole.

The things that exhaust the patience and leave a powerful impress finally, like drops of water on the hard rock, wearing out nervous strength and patience, are the unexpected. There seems to be certain individuals so constituted that they can not conform to the routine ways of any home. They invariably tangle up the work by going on in an individual way of their own, regardless of the convenience of all other members of the household. The hour for breakfast may be settled for all the rest, but not for them. In all sorts of unexpected ways they manage to interfere with the routine of things, and actually make double work for everyone else

There are some housekeepers who have no idea of system, who are hard, drudging workers, forever cleaning and grubbing over floors and pantries that ought to be kept clean. Bustle and noise are not parts of a good housekeeper's work. The wheels of motion in a well-kept house move so noislessly that no one is aware that there is a system in all that goes on, unless it be by the sense of quiet and peace prevailing over everything. It just this quiet atmosphere which the undisciplined person fails to appreciate. Yet there can be no home without serious breaks in comfort where there is no thorough system, disguised though it may be; and the ignorant person wonders why everything seems to be in perfect order without any display of extraordinary work. The reason is that the work is all done at an appointed time, and an estra effort is made if there is to be extra work.

The housekeeper who is systematic does not attempt to do more than she can. She refuses to do unnecessary work which she is sure can not be accomplished without hurry and confusion, and which will put back necessary work. It requires cool judgment to estimate this, and some independence to accomplish it. When every other woman in the village has joined a new society, it seems churlish to refuse to do so, yet the systematic houseteeper must sometimes refuse if it interferes with necessary work at home. In general it will be found that she does more for the church and for the other objects in the village because her time is so arranged that she has more to spare.

The family sewing-basket is not al-lowed to get beyond her needle. The eld maxim, "A stitch in time saves nine," is carefully heeded, and the mending is lessened. The systematic woman keeps an account-book and knows to a penny what the expenditures are, and she does not go beyond them. She is not subject to untoward accidents, like the upsetting of lamps, the overturning of chins, and those va-

HE LOVED TO GIVE. The Touching Lesson of a Very Charltable Life.

The story of George Francis Train sitting in the park surrounded by birds and children is a familiar one. It is not so generally known that North St. Louis was the home of a child and bird lover who died some years ago, says the St. Louis Republic.

It was this gentle old man's custom to leave home every morning directly after breakfast with his pockets full of bread crumbs and rock candy. He would go to one of the parks near his home and sit down on one of the benches there. No matter how cold it was he never forgot those bread crumbs. At sight of him the birds would fly toward him. There were not so many sparrows then as now, but sometimes hundreds of them would flutter about him. He has often been seen sitting there quietly with the little birds perched on his hat and shoulders. When the birds had collected he would bring out his store of bread crumbs, and then there would be a feast. The rock candy he kept for children and poor people. He was always generous with it. He would say that it was pure and would help the poor wretches to keep warm.

It is told of him that he once paid a debt of $150 for an old friend. The creditor was told to say to inquirers that the bill was paid by "one who loved him." When they asked the old man about it he smiled, but did not acknowledge that he had paid it.. He merely said:

"Ah! Love has paid many a debt."

WHAT THEY BROKE.

Th Old Farmer Found That He Had Been Mistaken.

There had been rather a bad runaway accident in a mountain town. Several persons had been injured, and the doctor was miles away. But, as good luck would have it, a clever young medical student happened to be on the ground and did excellent service, says the Youth's Companion.

When the doctor came there was nothing to be done, but he listened with great interest to his young colleague's exposition of the cases. They talked for a long time on the hotel piazza. The farmer who had been driving the horses and was himself unhurt listened with eager interest to explanations wherein scapula, humerus and clavicle played prominent parts.

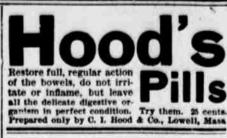

Finally he took up the reins sadly and drove home to his wife. As soon as he entered the yard she threw her apron over her head and hurried forward to meet him.

"Ephraim says some of the folks was hurt," she called. "How much was it? Did they break their legs or their arms -which? The farmer drew in his now pacified steeds at the post and let. the reins slacken in his grasp.

"Well," he said reflectively, leaning forward, both elbows on his knees: "I thought one of 'em broke his leg and another a collar bone, an' so on, but I guess I didn't hit it right. I stood by while the doctors were talkin' on't over and 'peared to me as if, arter all, 'twas only some of them Latin parts."

Used for Life Saving Service Only. The telephone lines between the United States life-saving stations along the New Jersey coast will no longer be used for any other than official business, orders having been issued from the department headquarters to that effect. This will end the rivalry between several prominent ministers, who have from time to time been preaching to the crews of the stations by the aid of the 'phone.

Music on the Graphophone. Few people appreciate the marvelous power of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which, though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind-from that of the bagpipe to that of the grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproducing the musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to the Columbia Phonograph Company, 720-729 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information aseto prices of Graphophone outfits.
