

"The Best is the Cheapest."

Experience teaches that good clothes wear longest, good food gives best nutrition, and a good medicine that cures disease is naturally the best and cheapest. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine money can buy, because it cures when all others fail.

Poor Health—"Had poor health for years, pains in shoulders, back and hips, with constant headache, nervousness and no appetite. Used Hood's Sarsaparilla, gained strength and can work hard all day; eat heartily and sleep well. I took it because it helped my husband to whom it gave strength." Mrs. E. J. Giffels, Moose Lake, Minn.

Altgeld calls Bryan "the Jefferson of Nebraska." It is meant to take this advantage of Jefferson because he is dead and can't defend himself.

There is one thing lacking in the new law governing candidates expenditures, and that is the amount they should pay for the campaign cigars. The campaign stinker ought to go.

Mr. Bryan has his oratorical trap set so that he can take advantage of the prices both raising and falling. The advance in the price of meat gives him a great chance to harp on the poor man's soup bone.

An Atchison man has brought suit for divorce on the grounds that he turned over from a nap during a recent sickness and found his wife looking at a fashion magazine showing mourning gowns.

There is a time in almost every young man's life, says a wise observer, when he imagines that he is really a warm number. When he grows older, and, by experience, accumulates a small store of good common horse sense, he views the same class of boys with disgust. He meditates on his past and wonders if he ever was such a confounded fool. A smart alec is about the most despicable mortal that ever drew breath, but the law forbids killing them, and people are compelled to just grin and bear their presence in the community.

Who talks politics these days? Go into a group of men of either party or of both parties, and start a discussion on any side of any political question and see the crowd scatter. No one cares for silver. No one gives a tinker's dam for gold. No one talks ad valorem. No one knows what 412 grains fine means. No one is interested in the endless chain in the treasury. Why is this—simply because people have no grudge against the times and are not trying to explain them. When a man has a good wife he never tries to account for her goodness. It's only mean times and mean women that get talked about.

I wandered to the circus, John, I sat beneath the tent and saw the man from Borneo, likewise the tattooed gent. I heard the toothless lion howl, while men in spangled clothes stepped fearlessly into their dens and whacked them on the nose. I saw the sacred elephant spout water through his trunk, the salamander eating lead and other melted junk; I heard the merry clown get off the jokes we used to know when we were boys together, John, some twenty years ago. The same old horses waddled round the same old kind of ring; the same old comic vocalists proved that they couldn't sing; the same old hippopotamus was grunting in disgust; the same old Persian ox was kicking up the dust; the same old rheumatic acrobats crawled painfully around, and the ossified contortionist was rolling on the ground, and ladies rode bare-backed steeds to music sad and slow—the same old girls we used to see some twenty years ago.—Messenger.

Speaking once more of trusts, which our fusion friends denounce with so much vehemence, and lie awake nights thinking of epithets to hurl at them, why doesn't the attorney general of the great state of Nebraska institute legal proceedings against the office-holding combination recently organized at Omaha by the populist, silver democrat and silver republican parties of the state. Is a combination to control prices and stifle competition any more odious and destructive of our constitutional rights than this octopus whose avowed object and purpose is to monopolize and control the greatest prerogative of an American citizen—that of aspiring to and holding office? And what better is an office-holding trust than any of the commercial trusts we read of every day if it is organized to control all of the offices in sight instead of one certain commodity of commerce? We hear the Tammany office-holding ring in New York denounced year in and year out, and here in Nebraska the very fellows who howl the loudest against the Tammany machine are members of an office-holding trust that accomplishes the same ends by means of a combination known as fusion.—Arapahoe Mirror.

Wm. Moler is the latest on the matrimonial list. He went down to Lincoln county and was married.

Mr. Clark and family of Belleville, who have been visiting his wife's father, old gentleman Ingram and other relatives, returned home a few days ago. He reports crops in that part equal to ours or better.

Better late than never. The Sunday school picnic in the grove near Mr. Sperrier's was a success. The recitations were good, though Miss Arnold excelled the rest, and the select reading by Miss Hamer could not have been excelled. The organist did extra well and the choir also. Old gentleman Barrett made some very appropriate remarks. Mr. Ingram the superintendent is the right man in the right place.

Every day adds to the list of deaths attributed to heart failure. If the truth were told the bulk of these deaths might be written down as due to stomach failure. For it is in the failure of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, that "weak" heart, "weak" lungs, "weak" nerves and other forms of physical deterioration having their beginning. The man whose stomach is sound, who can digest and assimilate the food he eats, and so keep each organ of the body well nourished, is the man who is least liable to collapse under the sudden weakness of some vital organ.

The preservation of health which follows the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, is chiefly due to the fact that it perfectly and permanently cures diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition, purifies the blood and increases the blood supply of the body. Weak people will find in this medicine a sure means of strength.

"I was under doctors' care for quite a time," writes Mr. J. F. Kidd, of Farmleyville, Wayne Co., Ky. "They had almost given me up, and my suffering was very great. My pulse was weak, breath short and I had severe pains in back, head and legs. Had palpitation of heart, and for eleven months I was not able to do a day's work. I purchased five bottles of Dr. R. V. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and by the time the fifth bottle was gone I was a well man."
