Here's Food for Thought.
After a fire there is much food for thought as to whether the hard work and efforts of the fire department to save goods and property are appreciated. In some cases they are and in some cases they are not. Take the fire of Tuesday morning for instance, and the few who left their warm beds and repaired to the scene could see the ordeal which the fire fighters had to pass through. With the wind blowing at a lively rate and the mercury down so that the water from the nozzles quickly formed into ice on everything with which it came in contact, wading in icy cold water, and the multitude of dangers they pass through is no pleasant pastime. They do this with no expectancy of reward and are often sneered at by the well-dressed high-collared individual who stands around and tells how differently he would have manipulated the putting out of the blaze. When our citizens get a chance to show their appreciation of the thankless job which a fire brings up they do not always do it. One case in point can be cited. As we have spoken of this matter before we are not sanguine that it will do much good. The state provides a law whereby the city authorities can draft an ordinance compelling all fire insurance companies to pay into the city treasury, if they do business here, the sum of five dollars as a fund for the maintenance of the fire department. The ordinance, on request was passed and published and then practically became a dead letter. It is the place of the city treasurer to collect these sums. If the city council a precise the work of the department they will see that the fund is gathered into the city treasury. Here is where a commercial club could get in some good work.

"A Modern Ananias"
The people of this city will in the near future be given an opportunity to hear a home talent comedy-drama, the title of which is "A Modern Ananias." The exact date of the play has not yet been announced but it will probably be given in about three weeks. The play is an exceptionally good one for home talent to undertake, but the participants are putting in all spare time practicing and rehearsing, and when the date is announced our citizens can be assured they will see as good a production of the play as though it were a traveling troupe. The participants in the play represent the best talent in the city and those who attend can be assured of a rare treat.

A Lucky Escape.
Gustav Miller, one of the carpenters who has been working on the Potter-Wright building all summer, last Monday met with quite a serious and painful accident which will necessarily cause him to take a holiday vacation. While assisting the other workmen in putting the high ceiling on the lodge lodge room, he stepped on a loose plank on the trestle and fell a distance of sixteen feet, and the heavy plank following landed upon him. He was at once removed to the Holland House and Dr. Cook summoned and his injuries attended to. It was at first thought he was injured internally, an examination proved, however, that with the exception of a few bruises he had escaped serious injury.

Dies on the Train.
Undertaker Taylor was called to the depot on Wednesday evening to take charge of the remains of Miss Esther Wade, who died on train No. 15 near Bostwick. Deceased would have been sixteen years of age on December 30th. She had been a sufferer from consumption for some time and at the time of her death was enroute from her home at Potosi, Wisconsin, to Denver, with her mother Mrs. Olive Wade, in hopes that a higher altitude would be beneficial to her health. The remains will be shipped tomorrow to her former home in Wisconsin for interment.
