

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How To Find Out.
Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys are also out of order.

What to Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

CONSTIPATION

"I have gone 14 days at a time without a movement of the bowels, not being able to move them except by using hot water injections. Chronic constipation for seven years placed me in this terrible condition; during that time I did everything I heard of but never found any relief, such was my case until I began using CASCARETS. I now have from one to three passages a day, and if I was rich I would give $100.00 for each movement; it is such a relief."

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

An expert view is that 60 cases of smallpox in London can be traced to one individual.
The big gray kangaroo of Australia measures about seven feet from the tip of its nose to the end of its tail. It can run faster than a horse and clear 30 feet at a jump.
A single brewery in Munich uses 118 railway freight cars of its own, besides 28 belonging to the state. Other breweries have 143, 90, 32, 80, 100, 86, etc.

A writer in the Cologne Gazette declares that servants in the United States do only half as much work, demand twice as much free time and four times as much wages as servants in Germany.
A traveler writes: "A lady to whom I was sitting next at dinner the other day told me she had a remedy for seasickness. She had been a very bad sailor, and even now if she does not practice her remedy she is sick; whereas when she does, she can negotiate comfortably a storm of four or five hours on the high seas. It is simple enough. As the vessel dips she draws in her breath; as it rises she expels it. The remedy seems to me worth knowing."
A cold-blooded scientist has just administered a death blow to the traditional belief in "the blue Danube." He watched the big river for a whole year, giving to his studies an hour every morning. The result of these observations was that he found the water to be brown 11 times; yellow, 46; dark green, 39; light green, 45; grass green, 23; greenish-gray, 69; other shades of green, 110, and that it never had anything like the hue with which it is credited by the bards.
The wild duck, the hawk and the sea gull, while in flight over long distances, usually remain at an altitude of from 600 to 1,400 feet. If they pass below the level of the highest flying kite of a tandem line the fact is easily discerned by allowing for perspective. The kite measurements are relatively accurate, because during the prolonged flight of thousands of wild ducks the kite string can be hauled in and paid out until the altitude of the ducks is exactly measured by the altitude of the kites.

AN EARL'S DAUGHTER.
Cut Off Without a Shilling by Her Father She Shows Her Self-Sustaining Ability.
The daughter of an English earl, after a neglected childhood passed among servants, was brought out in society. She was shy and sensitive, and took no interest in fashionable life. Her conduct excited so much disapproval that she became most unhappy and despondent. Neglected and despised at home, she ran away to London, and refused to return to her father's house, relates Youth's Companion.
As her father cut her off without a shilling, she had to support herself, and live on starvation wages. She began with lace-making and sewing, and had a room in a tenement house. She was a fearless rider, and at one time made a living by breaking unruly horses in Scotland.
A friend, after selling some of the daughter's lace to the mother, contrived to secure the payment of a small allowance from the father. With this money she was able to perfect her education in music, and to carry off prizes at a college on the continent.
About this time she was impressed with stories which she heard of the sufferings of native women in India and the far east. She dropped her music, and for six years devoted herself to the study of medicine and surgery. She won a medical degree in England, mastered the French language in order to obtain a higher degree in Brussels, took a hospital and nursing course in London, and had special practice in the slums of Dublin.
Meanwhile she was receiving a pittance from her father barely large enough to enable her to keep soul and body together. She was wholly estranged from her family, who were ashamed of the poor relation.
Finally she received the reward for her many years of solitary study and persistent effort. An appointment as court physician in Corea was offered to her, and she accepted it as an opening for what she considered her mission in the world—work among native women in the far east. Her father then agreed to give her a thousand dollars a year.
This is not the ordinary romance of the peacocks. It is a true story, and shows what a woman of real grit can do, when she has courage, patience and a noble ambition. The shy girl with a plain face has made her way in the world, although she was a failure in the drawing-room as the earl's daughter.

WORTH $300,000,000.
The President of a certain big Oil Company is said to be worth $300,000,000. A tidy bit of money and no mistake. And yet he isn't happy. In an address to a Bible class he spoke of trials and troubles of the rich and the loads they have to carry. A young lady whispered to a friend that he might wear a Benson's Porous Plaster on his back, or better still, divide the money among the members of the class. I don't know why her idea about the plaster makes me want to laugh, but it does. All the same I have seen plenty of people laugh after putting Benson's Plasters on their backs or chests, or on any other spot where there was weight, heaviness, weakness or pain. It may be the sharp stabs of neuralgia, the aches and wrenches of rheumatism; it may be colds in muscles or bones; it may be those kidney or lumbar throats that make you yell as at a dog bite; or it may be a strain or cramp, anything that wants quieting and comforting. Don't bother with salves, liniments, lotions, etc., or with any of the stupid and useless old style plasters. Clap on a Benson's. It relieves at once and cures quickly. It stops the pain, and makes you laugh for the very ease and good feeling of it. But watch out against imitations and substitutes. All druggists, or we will prepare postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 50c. each.

An Ambiguous Invitation.
"I was traveling through Texas in company with an Englishman," said the colonel, "and one day at a small town we heard a tough-looking fellow telling a mighty tough yarn. It was full of blood and murder, and he made it out that he had to kill two men. I let it go for what it was worth, of course, but the Englishman was indignant and determined to put in his oar. Before I could stop him he started forward and said:
"Sir, I have listened to your story, and I have no hesitation whatever in denouncing you as a reprehensible prevaricator."
The language was too high-flown for the tough. He looked up, hitched around and almost blushed in embarrassment, but finally rose up and touched his hat and said:
"Why, yes, major! Being it's my time of day to licker up, I don't care if I do!"—Boston Globe.

TROUBLED BY RAIN OF STEEL.

Singular Announcements to Which Some Pennsylvania People Are Subjected.
The farmers up in Rockhill township, in the vicinity of Perkasie, are wishing they could wear armor-proof clothing, and all because of the steel rain that has been causing them to seek shelter at all hours of the day. It has been exceedingly dangerous for a peaceful, quiet-loving agriculturist up in this region to go out into his fields, says a Doylestown correspondent of the Philadelphia North American.
The commonwealth of Pennsylvania, at the instance of John P. Elkins, attorney general, has filed a bill of equity here to restrain the Rockhill Industrial company, of which Henry Freed is superintendent, from filling the air with flying missiles of steel, weighing anywhere from half a pound up to 25 pounds. A preliminary injunction has been granted.
The defendant company was organized to crush and break up steel and iron castings, so that they may be handled by the various steel companies. These "scraps" weigh sometimes 20 or 30 tons, and are shipped to Rockhill by the Reading railway. There they are unloaded and taken to the industrial works. Of course, the breaking up of the "scraps" could not be allowed in a populous community, because of the very great danger from flying missiles. The blasting out of the steel requires heavy charges of dynamite, and the pieces are thrown for distances of nearly a mile over the surrounding country.
The pieces of steel to be separated are placed in a pit, and a charge fixed in a hole drilled in the metal. The custom used to be to blow a whistle when a blast was to be made, so that the farmers who were out plowing or reaping could hunt a tree to hide behind. The horses had to take their chances. But this whistle blowing was given up, and the first notice the unwary farmer had was when he heard a peculiarly weird, whizzing noise that accompanies the flight of the projectiles through the air. The things came so fast that it was utterly useless to try to get out of the way, and there have been a good many farmers up there who have had ten-pound steel weights dropping within a couple of feet of them and being buried four or five feet in the ground.
And the storekeepers, too, have troubles of their own. Every once in awhile there is a tremendous rattle of crockery, and a lot of dishes piled up on the shelves are hurled to the floor—and all because of the concussion caused by the explosion. The fact is that some of the storekeepers are so much wrought up over the losses they sustain from these crockery breakages that they are thinking of going into some other business.

The Red Hunting Coat.
The origin of the red coat is a mystery. There is a story told "that one of the early Henrys was so enamored with the sport of fox hunting as to ordain it to be a royal sport, and the red coat was worn in consequence."
This, however, has been pointed out as absurd, as in those days scarlet was not a royal livery at all. One thing there can be no doubt about, and that is that the scarlet coat is very popular for those who hunt regularly. And it must be confessed that it adds picturesqueness to the scene. The question of color seems to be very much a matter of taste; it is looked upon as an indication of social position. In the abstract anyone can do the pink, if so desired, but it is considered out of taste for anyone to adopt that color if he does not liberally subscribe to the hunt fund. The black coat is considered to come next in social position, and the ordinary muffin garment for those whose subscription is very small indeed.—Tailor and Cutter.

CITING A PRECEDENT.

The Effective Rebuke of a Good-Natured Southern Colonel Administered to Mischievous Students.
If there is one thing a mischief-maker dreads more than another, it is a laugh at his expense, but the heartier the laugh the more the world in general enjoys itself. A capital opportunity recently fell in the way of a southern gentleman, and it is pleasant to know that he made the most of it, says Youth's Companion.
He is a southern "colonel" of the old type living in a college town, and it is the privilege of a number of students to board at his house. Now by some law of nature, the student appetite for food is keenest about midnight, and in consequence the colonel's larder suffered nightly. Hams shrank and jams deeked, while Friday's baking no longer supplied cookies for the week. The housekeeper was in despair, and the colonel grew thoughtful.
Finally, one Sunday morning, as the colonel, his family and boarders gathered around the breakfast-table, the ravages of the night before showed forth past hiding. The ham was a bone, and there was no golden sirup for the cakes. The colonel's face wore its most genial smile.
"Boys," said he, "I can't help thinking sometimes of a story of John Randolph. He had a dog he loved as much as the dog loved mischief, and watch Fido as he would, he couldn't stop the little creature's ravages.
"One morning Fido entered the library about two minutes before his master, leaped into a chair, dragged down a book that lay open in it, and had just time to munch a chapter or two and leave his marks on the cover when his master appeared. Randolph stood in the doorway, surveying the scene like a philosopher, while the dog slunk off to wait for his whipping under the sofa. But Randolph only looked at him; then picking up the book, he took a pen and wrote on the fly-leaf: "Done by Fido when he was a pup."
The colonel gave a little guffaw, while his family shouted with laughter. The students grew very red and then laughed, too. After that the pantry was quite safe.
