

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How To Find Out.
Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

MODERN FABLES

Brought Down to Date, With Apologies to the Kansas Mail and Breeze.
A man who was in the habit of blowing about what a handsome wife he had, invited a friend home to dinner. The friend had expected to see an exceptionally fine looking woman, but instead he saw a plain looking female, slightly cross-eyed and with a wart on her nose.

"What do you think of her?" asked the enthusiastic husband as soon as the wife had retired from the room to prepare the meal.
"Well, to be frank," said the friend, "she is not quite as handsome as I had anticipated."
"You may feel that way just now," said the husband, "but wait till you fill up on her cooking and you will say she is indeed a daisy."
Moral—A man's opinions are often settled by his stomach.

A man who was longer on his stock of good intentions than he was on experience and wisdom, saw two bulldogs engaged in a red-hot scrap and decided that it was his duty to stop the brutal spectacle. Accordingly, he went up and took hold of each dog gently and tried to pull them apart, but each of the dogs, thinking that the man was mixing in for the purpose of helping the other dog, turned on him and before he was rescued by a passing policeman one dog had fastened his teeth in the calf of his leg and the other had bitten a hunk of round steak from the vicinity of his pistol pocket. "Me frind," said the Hibernian guardian of the peace, as the man limped away in the direction of a doctor's office, "whin ye want to stop a couple of bulldogs from fightin' I advise ye to stroke their heads wid a club instead av wid a soft pair av gloves."
Moral—Gentle persuasion is all right in most cases, but there are instances where a club is the only thing that will reach the spot.

Two horses struck up a friendship. One of the horses was kept in a handsome stable that had a lot of furbelows and expensive architecture about it, while the other animal was kept in a plain but comfortable barn where he was well fed and cared for by a kind owner. He was, however, considerably envious of the other horse on account of his gay surroundings until one day he saw the feed that was given his friend by the careless stable boy. When he saw the scant allowance he bid the other horse good evening and started back to his old plain barn. "Hold on," said the horse that lived in the expensive barn, "how would you like to exchange places with me? You see what an elegant layout I have over here, a costly stable and fine scenery all around."
"That's all right about the stable and scenery," remarked horse from the plain barn, "but I want to say, my friend, that the scenery and fine quarters cut mighty little ice with me. It is plenty of good old-fashioned corn and sweet clover hay that touch the spot."

Moral—There are people who lose the real comforts of life in an effort to throw on style and attract the attention of the public.

On a Fourth of July occasion the committee on entertainment fixed up a smooth pole which they had smeared liberally with soap. On the top of the pole was a $2 bill which was offered to the boy who would get it down. Several lads tried for the prize, but not one could get more than half way up the pole. At last all gave it up but four boys. Each of them tried the pole a few rounds, but the $2 bill still reposed on the top. Finally one of the boys had an idea and proceeded to organize a trust. He said to the other three: "Help boost me to the top of that post and I will divide the swag." The condition was that the boy who could get to the top was to have that money. Then the boys formed a co-operative association; one boy climbed onto the shoulders of another, the third climbed up on his shoulders and the fourth finally mounted on the shoulders of the third, and from his point of vantage secured the cash. As the boys afterward divided the money they unanimously decided that in some cases combination was a rattling good thing.

The attention of a party of ladies was attracted to a handsome dog that was passing by. They expressed flattering opinions of the canine and called him over to where they were and commenced to shower caresses upon him. The dog concluded that he was strictly in it for a few minutes, but just then one of the numerous fleas who were boarding with him took a nip at his flank and the dog made a quick bite at the flea. Before he could get action on that insect another flea took a nip on another part of his frame, and then another followed suit, so that for a minute the dog was doggedly busy. When he had finally temporarily routed the flea tribe, he looked around, but was astonished to see that all the ladies who had been bestowing caresses upon him had shied off and even abruptly ordered him off the premises. The dog felt hurt at the sudden change of treatment and went to a companion for sympathy. "What did I do," he asked the other dog, "that made those women suddenly give me the marble heart?" "You would have been all right," replied the other dog, who had been there himself, "if you hadn't let the ladies know by your actions what kind of a crowd you were carrying around with you."
Moral—The wrong kind of associates will ruin the prospects of any individual on earth.

Much Personal Property Not Assessed.
Railroad Property Cannot be Hidden or Overlooked—Always on Assessor's Books at Full Valuation.

COMPARE THE FIGURES.
(ISSUED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE RAILROADS OF NEBRASKA)

In the first article we published, we called attention to the fact that all railroad property, their earnings and their operations were reported periodically in such a shape that any information regarding their values or operation was easily attained by an investigator, and that this feature worked a great injustice to them in matters of taxation, from the fact that a private corporation, or a person, can refrain from returning his property for taxes, and that under the Constitution and laws of the state of Nebraska there was no way of making him divulge.

We give below a table of some remarkable figures in regard to this feature of the question, and will continue to give some comparison between the amounts returned for taxation in 1900 and the amounts returned to the assessor in 1901 in the same year. In the matter of taxation, the returns of which are at hand for 1901, the following table may be interesting:

Assesses in 1900	Assesses in 1901	Left off Assessment Rolls
2,193,939	1,623,939	226,944
3,220,242	3,220,242	1,080,833
38,594	38,594	17,034
517,229	517,229	145,954
4,221,094	4,221,094	2,468,931

When it is considered that the value of live stock for 1900 was reported at $6.79 for horses, $4.66 for cattle, $7.41 for mules, $6.74 for sheep, and $6.99 for hogs, and then take into consideration the fact that this great number as shown above was omitted entirely from assessment, it makes a startling showing.

Per Cent. of Railroad Valuation to Total Valuation of State.

In Nebraska	15.40 per cent.
In Minnesota	9.94 per cent.
In Missouri	7.90 per cent.
In Wisconsin	7.54 per cent.
In Iowa	8.42 per cent.
In Illinois	9.98 per cent.

Were the animals assessed that had been omitted from the assessment rolls in 1900, it would have increased the assessment value of live stock by $8,116,301.13, even when extended at the remarkably low valuations given above.

As it was, over 35 per cent. of all the live stock values of the State were omitted entirely in that year.

Other interests make no better showing. The following interests in the state returned for taxation in 1901 the amounts given below.
Money of bankers and brokers.....$977,630
Credits of bankers and brokers.....257,099
Moneys of others than brokers, etc.....598,117
Credits other than brokers, etc.....537,093
Shares of capital stock of companies.....95,679
Manufacturers' tools, implements and machines.....2,236,367

It is confusing to see the amount of money, credits, stocks, bonds, etc., returned in the Bank Register and other sources of information regarding banks and brokers, and try to connect them with the amount of wealth returned for taxation, and when it is found that the manufacturers report $71,982,127 as being invested in their business, with $23,201,853 worth of machinery, tools and implements, it makes the sums returned for taxation look ridiculous.

It is evident that not one-third of the personal property in the state is returned at all for taxation, and that fully one-quarter of the tangible visible property that assessors could see and estimate in their returns is omitted through carelessness.

If all the property of the state was included in their tax returns, Nebraska would show more than $161 per capita for taxation which is the lowest of any of the western or northern states.
