"It is in these the iminary lessons that a good perferner is made or spoiled. The instructor must be firm and resolute, but kind always kind. A horse is like a child you may coax him, but you can't force without spoiling his disposition. The animal quickly notices any show of ill temper or roughness on the part of the instructor and resents it by becoming balky and obstinate. Blows or high punishment only make him worse. You frequently only make him works. You frequently hear people assert that animals are beaten into submission in teaching them tricks. In this mature state he is the delight of the curiosity seeker and a mine of study to those who delight to delve in nature's bypaths. Those which have been fortunate enough not to have been carried very far from water by the insects which they encumbered during life make their way back to the ponds to lay their eggs. They then wrap themselves around the eggs, which soon hatch into the little flesh colored mites mentioned in the opening. About this time the parent "snake" dies to make room for its progeny.

What the Witness Saw

"Do you mean to swear," said the foreman of the jury to the witness, "that at the time of the quarrel that constitutes the cause of this action you saw the prisoner with a coal scuttle in his hands making ready to heave it at his wife?"

"Not exactly," said the witness, with considerable hesitation. "I mein to swear that I saw the prisoner with a coal scuttle in his hands." "In what attitude was he then?"
