Don't let the Galusha boom lag.

Candidates for representative are beginning to loom up on the horizon.

Prospects for a decisive land battle between the forces of Russia and Japan seem to be far away.

No one has yet been awarded the prize offered by W. J. Bryan for a platform that would be acceptable to the warring factions of the Democratic party.

We acknowledge the receipt of a copy of "Sorenson's Senatorial Scintillations." The little yellow-backed pamphlet makes mighty interesting reading. Alf Sorenson's candidacy for the senatorship is beginning to cause a stir among the dry-bones.

The Dietrich investigation begins today in the United States senate. Matters have been simplified by Senator Dietrich agreeing to identify certain papers, checks, etc., without going to the expense of bringing witnesses from Nebraska for that purpose.

The agitation for the nomination of a senator by the state convention is meeting with much favor, and it is probable that when the convention meets there will be little or no opposition to the movement inaugurated by the state central committee.

Southwest Nebraska is entitled to a place on the Republican state ticket, and if the Republicans of this valley pull together Al Galusha will land in the office of secretary of state. Newspapers all over the state speak very favorably of Mr. Galusha, and all that is necessary for his nomination is the united support of the party in the Republican valley.

Grover Cleveland has made a written denial of the charge made by Congressman Charles Scott of Kansas that he lunched at the White house with C. H. J. Taylor, a colored politician from Kansas. Cleveland may not have lunched with the negro, but he at least passed him a huge slice of government "pie" when he appointed him recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia.

Governor Mickey deserves a renomination at the hands of the Republican party. The only objections offered against him are those made by the saloon and gambling elements, and by a handful of politicians who thought they would be able to dictate the policy of the administration. By the time the state convention meets the opposition to Governor Mickey will have dwindled to such small proportions that he will be renominated by acclamation.

Good Words for Al Galusha.

Following to say of Al Galusha's candidacy for secretary of state:

"A Galusha of Red Cloud, who has a wide acquaintance in all portions of the state, has announced himself as a candidate for the office of secretary of state, subject to the approval of the republican state convention. Mr. Galusha is a Nebraska pioneer, an ardent republican and a friend and citizen of unswerving devotion to his intimates and his locality. He has helped others to position frequently and now proposes a test of loyalty on the part of his friends in return. A strong point in favor of Mr. Galusha's candidacy is that he is well fitted and qualified for the office and another argument in his favor made by his friends, is that the Fifth congressional district will be without representation in the state house unless he or some other as worthy aspirant is conceded a place on the ticket by the republicans of the state. Mr. Galusha does not come to the party as a stranger or a novice asking the support of his fellows. He has been in the harness and pulled his full share during past campaigns, having served as a member of the state central committee, and is now on the congressional committee in his district. He is intensely ardent in his campaign work, but not offensively so, having numerous friends among the fusionists who would welcome his advancement to the office, and do what they could to assist."

The Hastings Tribune falls into line for the Republican valley candidate, whose boom for secretary of state seems to be prospering:

"There will be many candidates in the field for the nomination of secretary of state upon the republican ticket. Among the best will be A Galusha, of Red Cloud, who for twenty-five years has been fighting for the good of the republican party in Webster county. That he is a careful business man is evident from the good reputation he gained for himself while engaged as one of Red Cloud's principal merchants for twenty years. Mr. Galusha has a strong following in the southwestern part of Nebraska which will back him to the end of the race."

Atchison Globe Sights.

Most men vote their prejudice and call it their judgment.

It's a mighty good husband who takes his wife to a matinee.

The cursing of oneself, which some people engage in, neither hurts nor does good.

It has been our experience that a man often admires a woman without wanting to marry her.

When a man precedes a story with a little laugh the chances are that it isn't going to be worth listening to.

A tired, disheveled woman with seven children was at the union depot to-day, and they were dragging her every which way. "I just love children," a young girl said to the woman.

You should have seen the look the woman gave the girl.

Newspaper reporters are abused a great deal, especially by people who come around afterward and borrow their nerve.

After a woman has had her thirty-fifth birthday she really should stop saying "When I am married," and say, "Had I ever married."

All the girls who invent new ways of spelling their names do not live in town; a Kate living in the country west of Atchison spells her name with a "C."

An Atchison woman is mad because the Globe lately stated that soup can't be made out of turkey. We are pretty stubborn today and insist that soup can't be made out of turkey. Of course you can boil turkey bones in water, and add butter and salt and pepper, and call the result soup, but it isn't.

An Atchison man lately tried to compliment a neighbor. The man was sincere, and wanted to say a neat thing; he thought the neighbor deserved a compliment for a good action. Still the neighbor knocked the man down. And if you should hear the neighbor's story you would not blame him. Some men have no sense, and it is impossible for them to acquire it. There are so many different qualities of that which we call "the mind," that it is very unreliable.

At a party in Atchison recently, seven women were present, and every one wanted to tell what she had heard on Mrs. Lysander John Appleton, and was afraid to begin. Finally, a bold one asked if the others liked the way Mrs. Appleton does her hair. After five minutes' talk, and just when the conversation was about to turn, the bold one brought it back by speaking of Mrs. Lysander John's behavior. The ice was thin and she might sink, so she put on a cautious feeler or two to see what weight it would bear. There was no sign of breaking (every one appearing willing to hear the worst), and the bold one told the whole story. Had anyone present looked coldly at her, she would have drawn back to shore, for the boldest gossip is timid of disapproval. Suppose, the next time you are at a party, and someone tries the ice, you give notice that it is dangerous. If someone gossips freely in your presence you are largely to blame.

Grand Army Entertainment.

Garfield post held an open meeting Saturday evening which was largely attended. Addresses were delivered by J. S. Gilham, J. R. Mercer, E. U. Overman and others; the kindergarten pupils gave a flag drill, and there were several entertaining vocal and instrumental numbers. Following the program occurred the drawing for the G. A. R. lot. chances on the lot had been sold, and as a consequence the post had the majority of the chances. The lot was drawn by No 465, held by the post.

There has been some criticism of the post's action in taking the remaining chances, but we fail to see what else they could have done under the circumstances.

With the money raised by the Relief Corps and by private subscription the post now has about $400 in the monument fund. They are considering offers for the sale of the lot, and hope to get enough out of it to raise the fund to a sufficient amount to erect a suitable monument.

"Merchant of Venice."

The good people of Red Cloud are warned to "brush up" on their Shakespeare. The senior class of the high school has decided to present an adaptation of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" as the leading feature of their commencement program, and in order to fully appreciate their efforts one must be familiar with Shakespeare's masterpiece.

Quarterly Meetings.

Quarterly meeting for Ash Creek and Inavale charges will be held March 19 and 20. The quarterly conference will be held at Red Cloud M. E. church Saturday, March 19, at 2:30. Preaching by the presiding elder at Inavale Sunday morning, March 20, at 11:00, followed by the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Everyone cordially invited to attend. W. T. TAYLOR, Pastor.
