

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a Home of Swamp-Root pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Why Is It?

EDITOR CHIEF.—Why is it? That we are supposed to be intelligent farmers take no more pride or interest in our country roads. It seems that a part, at least, are afraid they will do something for their fellows and the public for nothing. Why do we generally select the biggest slouches in the district for road overseers? Men, who have no pride in their own work, that have no judgment, no ambition, that care nothing for their own horses or wagons and who go to town after a rain and do nothing. If these men would call out the farmers when the roads are badly washed out and are full of ruts and holes, when they can do no work in the fields, and say: Here you men lose no time now, let's work these hills down, the ground is soft, it plows easy, we have time to do a good job, etc. How much better the roads would be.

Why is it? That any ambitious farmers too, who have badly washed roads right by their homes or within a half mile, don't say to their neighbors: Here, let us fix these roads now, we won't lose any time, we can't work in the field now, let us show the public how good practical roads can be made with good will and good sense and judgment. This would induce many others to follow suit or be ashamed to be thus outdone. Also why not each man take his mower and spend an hour or two and cut the weeds and grass along the section line as far as his land goes, while the weeds are so large they will not sprout any more yet tender enough to cut easy. Is there an excuse for not doing it? Many men will call some lady a dirty house-keeper and slouch, etc., and yet can't see how dirty they themselves are by letting the weeds grow in the roads before their own door and allowing the roads to become almost impassible. They will go to town, without an excuse, when the roads are wet, and cut them up more for the next rain to work on.

Again why is it? The road overseers have their tools, plows, scrapers and etc., in such poor condition that no one can do anything with them. Farmers often must use their own tools to work with and they are not made for such work, particularly when the ground is hard and dry. A practical man would take as good care of these tools as of his own. Keep them in repair, sharp, and bright, so they will work easy and when not in use and out of season, smear them with axle grease or something to protect them against rust. Now they lay out doors to rust and decay, and when we are called to work they are in such condition we can hardly use them. They are only sharpened once a season, if that often. We bust our whippers, our harness, and horses' shoulders and cuss and get nothing done. What is done is done without brains and is worse than nothing. A few are always ready to keep the road clean and repaired as far as their land goes; but see how the shiftless and careless fellow lets it go and is always kicking about the taxes.

Would it not be the best policy for the road overseers to take a turn among the residents of his district and see how much each can get done gratis and do what he does do in good shape. Then in a few years each district would try to show the best worked roads. Get the pride and good work started and you will see that the majority of the farmers are O. K. and intelligent enough, but need waking up. Now my farmer friends, criticize me if you will but it is not very foolish to elect nothings for road overseers, just because there is no money in it. Think of the poor horses, the loss and breakage of your vehicles, year in and year out; how the poor animals have to scratch and pull through chuck holes and washed out roads, tracks where a human being can hardly walk. What are we here for anyway, just for the dollars? Is it only how can I make the most dollars and not how can I save the most? Are our horses here only to work and keep the world from starving by pulling our old and our new improved machinery to raise crops, and for us to whip and overload in hauling the stuff to town? I hope not.

Atchison Globe Sights.

Atchison has a cannon, but is afraid to shoot it off.

When a man's kin won't visit him, he is pretty ornery.

We notice that as we grow older, we are more neglectful in hating our enemies.

A farmer is always uncomfortable when in town from expecting the town men to rob him.

Somehow, the sight of men dressed in just enough to show their muscles, never appealed to us.

The people of a country town can make a terrible lot of noise with two anvils, powder, and a red hot iron.

All that we ask of the devil when he gives us both barrels is that he takes no suggestions from those who disliked us on earth.

There are many people who believe that if they can attain a measurement of just so much around the chest, that they will never die.

We know an excellent old lady who is a good mother; womanly and deserving in every way, but she lies ten years about her age.

Eugene Smith says he doesn't care how much company they have at his house until he has to sleep three in a bed. Then he kicks.

A man may not want a dog in the house, but if a dog belongs to his child, and the child wants it to sleep on the parlor chairs, he finds that he is submitting.

When a farmer goes to heaven, and the Good Man gives him a seat on His right hand, and a harp and a robe, the farmer will look around, and say: "Well, it's all pretty nice; but it's not as good as you promised."

There is a woman in Atchison who is very ill, and as everything aggravates her sense of neatness, there is some fear of her recovery. Several degrees were added to her temperature the other day because the doctor put his big warm hands on the brass on her bed. The nurse put the brush and comb in the top drawer, when they should be in the second, and the patient had a chill. A picture didn't hang straight, throwing the woman into a nervous headache because she couldn't get up to straighten it, and the sight of the medicine bottles scattered all over the table, instead of being in a neat row, caused a relapse. Other women are warned to look out. This excessive neatness is a disease.

WHAT MICROBES ARE.

How They Multiply and How Nature Keeps Them Within Bounds.

Since Pasteur demonstrated the fact that many human diseases are due to minute living things which grow and multiply in our bodies there has been a tendency to call all microscopic organisms, whether harmful or not, "germs" or "microbes" or "bacteria" indiscriminately. This confusion may be cleared by the statement that protozoa are the lowest known forms of animals and that bacteria are the lowest known forms of plants, while "germs" and "microbes" may apply to the disease causing forms in either group.

In our laboratories, under suitable conditions of food and warmth, a bacillus splits in half an hour into two parts, each of which splits again in half an hour, and so on, and it has been estimated that a single bacillus, if given similar conditions in nature, would within a week give rise to progeny numerous enough to fill the Atlantic ocean. Such overbalancing is largely prevented by the protozoa, which feed upon the bacteria, increasing as they increase and decreasing as this food supply gives out. The protozoa in turn are eaten by animals like the worms and shellfish, these by others, and so on, the balance of nature being so delicate that no form increases disproportionately for any length of time, although, like the locust plague or the gypsy moth, some forms may occasionally predominate.—Gary N. Calkins in Century.

The Koreans.
The people of Korea are neither Japanese nor Chinese. They are Mongolians and have a polysyllabic language, with a phonetic alphabet. They have a recorded history of disputed authenticity which claims for them a continuous existence as a Korean people of about 5,000 years, the earlier part of which of course is shrouded in mists of traditions and fable.

Cold Feet.
When Dr. John A. Hartwell, better known as "Josh" Hartwell, was at Yale he was asked by a professor what would happen to a patient if his temperature were to get as low as possible. "Why, sir," Hartwell gravely replied, "he would have cold feet."

The Main Question.
Practical Father—Has that young man who wants to marry you any money? Romantic Miss—Money! He gave me a cluster diamond ring and a bracelet of pearls. Practical Father—Yes, I know. Has he any money left?

The Name Patterson.
Tompkins with a "p" is not more significant than Patterson with two "t's" if tradition is to be trusted. According to the story that has come down from the sixteenth century, the Pattersons all spelled the name with one "t" before Queen Elizabeth set about marking those of her subjects who left the ancient Catholic faith and cast their lot with the Church of England. She insisted that all the Protestant Pattersons take to themselves a second "t," and since that time many have followed that mode of spelling the name.—London Standard.

Colorado Springs Water.
Colorado Springs, Colo., has the purest water of any city in the United States. The supply is derived from reservoirs and lakes on the side of Pike's peak, which are fed by springs and melting snow. Chemical analyses of the water have repeatedly shown it to be purer than that of any other city in the country, due to the fact that the supply is derived from such an altitude as to make contamination impossible.

Her Awful Blunder.
Tess—Oh, that's your new hat, eh? Jess—Yes, and such a bargain; only $18. What do you think? I dropped in to let Miss Grumley see it just now, and she pretended she wasn't interested. Didn't even ask how much I paid for it. Tess—No, dear, she didn't have to. You've forgotten to take off that tag marked $4.98.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Absolutely Contented.
Mrs. Jenks—Are you perfectly satisfied with your new dress? Mrs. Speltz—Yes, indeed. The man I love best thinks it's beautiful, and the woman I love least has pretended to turn up her nose at it.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Dragging Pains

2925 Keeley St., CHICAGO, ILL., Oct., 2, 1902.

I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Mrs. Bush

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.
