grow, and the scalp will be clean and healthy. Why be satisfied with poor hair when you can make it rich?

By hair nearly all come out. I then tried Ayer's Hair Vigor and only one bottle stopped the falling. New hair came in real thick and grew a little curly.—Mrs. L. M. SMITH, Hammonds, N. Y.

Uncle Sam makes mistakes occasionally, but he has never bought the same political gold brick twice.

Judge Parker says he will be satisfied with one term as president. The voters will doubtless convince him that he should be satisfied with one term than one term.

If the telegraph wires had been down during the St. Louis convention the convention might never have heard of Judge Parker's views on the money question, but the platform would have been just the same as it is now.

The best appeal the Democrats are making to the county is based on their promise not to disturb the Republican legislative achievements.

A list of the Democratic campaign managers looks like a roll call of a big general directorate.

The New York Herald has printed a facsimile of Judge Parker's gold telegram. It should furnish a companion picture by printing a facsimile of his silver ballot in 1896 or 1900.

The Anti-Trust law was framed by a Republican, was passed by a Republican House and a Republican Senate, was signed by a Republican President. The law remained a dead letter on the statute books during the second term of Grover Cleveland, a Democratic president. Through those four years of Democratic administration all appeals and all efforts of the World to have the law enforced were met with sneers, jeers and open contempt from a Democratic Attorney General, Richard Olney, who pretended that the law was unconstitutional, and who would do nothing toward prosecuting violators of it. The first effort to enforce the law was made by Theodore Roosevelt, a Republican President. The first Attorney-General to vigorously prosecute offenders and to test the law was a Republican Attorney-General, Philander C. Knox.—N. Y. World.

Fifteen Years Ago.

I wandered to the grogshop, Tom; I stood beside the bar, And drank a bowl of lemonade and smoked a bad cigar; The same old kegs and jugs were there—the ones we used to know When we were on the round-up, Tom, some fifteen years ago.

The barkeep is a new one, Tom. The one who used to sell Corrosive tanglefoot to us is roasting now in—well, The other has a plate-glass front; his hair is combed quite low. And looks just like the one we knew some fifteen years ago.

Old soak came up and called for booze—he had the same old grin— While others burned the lining from their throats with Holland gin. And women stood beside the door, their faces seamed with woe, And wept just as they used to weep some fifteen years ago.

I asked about our old friends, those cherished sporty men; And some were in the poor house, Tom, and some were in the pen; And one, the one we liked the best, the hangman laid him low, The world is much the same, dear Tom, as fifteen years ago.

I asked about that state's chap, that pride marked as its own. He used to say that he could drink, or let the stuff alone. He perished of the James H. Jams, out in the cold and snow— Ah, few survive who used to booze some fifteen years ago.

New crowds line up against the bar and call for crimson ink; New hands are trembling as they pour the stuff they shouldn't drink; But still the same old watchword rings, "His round's on me you know!" The same old cry of doom we heard some fifteen years ago.

I wandered to the churchyard, Tom, and there I saw the graves. Of those who used to drown themselves in red fermented waves; And there were women sleeping there where grass and daisies grow, Who wept and died of broken hearts some fifteen years ago.

And there were graves where children slept, have slept for many a year. Forgetful of the woes that marked their fitful sojourn here; And 'neath a tall white monument, in death there lieth low The man who used to sell the booze some fifteen years ago.—J. S. Holden, in Globe-Democrat.

Barker Will Appeal For Legal Delay. Frank Barker, murderer of his brother and his brother's wife near Red Cloud last March, will not be hanged on September 2. Barker, who now is in solitary confinement at the penitentiary has decided to appeal to the supreme court and the appeal will be filed with the clerk of the court within a few days. Barker's attorneys have gone to Webster county to prepare the bill of exceptions to the trial in the lower court and to file it with the district court clerk of the county. The action will come to the supreme court on a petition in error in which the usual errors in the original trial will be alleged. On the filing of the petition the supreme court will issue an order suspending execution of the death sentence until after the appeal had been passed upon.

Barker has been indifferent to his fate until lately, but now is of the opinion that he will have no difficulty in securing a reversal or a change of sentence to life imprisonment. He is in a cheerful frame of mind and is satisfied with the treatment accorded him by the prison authorities. There will be none of the sentimental gush incidental to the last days of Murderer Rhea in Barker's case. He does not care to receive visitors and has very few callers aside from immediate relatives and his attorneys. The prison authorities will permit only those visitors whom Barker expresses a willingness to see to visit him.—Lincoln Star.

Fry-Abel.

Married, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Fry, on Friday eve, August 5, at 5 o'clock, Miss Rhoda Rana Fry to Mr. Adelbert A. Abel, Rev. U. G. Brown officiating. The wedding march was played by Miss Ruth Johnson, and the ceremony was performed under a beautiful floral bower. Following the ceremony, the marriage party, consisting of about thirty persons, partook of a sumptuous wedding supper.

In the evening a reception was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Abel at the hospitable home of Dr. and Mrs. Fry, about fifty guests being in attendance. In the receiving line were Miss Cora Fry, Mr. and Mrs. Abel and Mr. Bliss Fry. Miss Margaret Fry and Miss Ada Werner looked after the comfort of the guests, and punch was served in an alcove by Lois Starbuck and Lizzie Elliott. In the dining room, which was prettily decorated with cut flowers, a dainty two-course luncheon was served by Misses Beulah Fry and Nettie Hill. The guests present from out of town were Mrs. Abel and daughters, Misses Clara and Martha Abel, of Red Cloud, and Mr. Sloan of Geneva.

Many beautiful wedding gifts testified to the esteem in which the happy couple are held by their many friends. There was also a conspicuous display of tinware which the bride had received at a tin-shower given in her honor by Miss Laura Young the week previous.

Mr. and Mrs. Abel escaped a shower of rice by driving to Geneva at 5 o'clock Saturday morning, where they took the North western for Chicago. They will be at home to their friends in Hebron after September 10.
