A family of girls in North west At chison made so much noise with their laughing, singing, piano playing and porch entertainments that the neighbors were kept awake nights. They protested in vain, till finally a man called who told the young ladies that he had to work, and could not have his rest at night disturbed. They gave him a flippant reply which aroused his anger, and he took steps to get out an injunction. This is said to have had a chloroform effect, but it is not known how long it will last. Why not an injunction? Why not an injunction restraining the man who owns a lady dog? Why not an injunction against the owner of cows that bawl all night?

The electric light on the front porch is an effective chaperon for girls. If you haven't one on your porch, put it on and don't grumble when you pay the bills. Save on the light in the kitchen, if need be, but keep that light going on the front porch.
