

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

Opinion Moulders.

Last Tuesday morning we received a call from a Mr. Johnson, representing the Nebraska State Journal, who announced that the purpose of his visit was to obtain an expression of our views on the anti-pass resolution passed by the last Republican state convention, and on the pass question in general. It did not take long for our visitor to attain his object, and when he departed from our office he informed us that we were the only newspaper man he had visited who held the views we did in the matter—namely, that we doubted the sincerity of the platform makers when they adopted the anti-pass resolution in the last Republican state convention. The Republican convention in this county gave an expression against passes, yet the delegates to the state convention rode to Lincoln on passes, and it is doubtful if there was a delegate in the county convention who would not have done the same had the opportunity offered, yet we have faith enough in our brethren to believe that not one of them could be influenced by a free railroad ride.

Neither do we believe that the State Journal is sincere in its efforts to create sentiment against the pass, from a moral standpoint. The Journal's antipathy to the railroads dates from about the time the Evening Star butted into the newspaper field in Lincoln, and that feeling has been made stronger by its failure to secure state printing at fabulous prices from the present state printing board, of which Secretary of State State Galusha is the head, and at whom the anti-pass fight is directed more than against the railroads.

While the visit of the Lincoln Journal's opinion-moulder to this city may result in some half-hearted anti-pass agitation by our contemporaries, they will continue to ride free on the railroads as long as the courtesies are extended by the railroads.

Secretary Galusha, Auditor Searle and Land Commissioner Eaton have taken the position that until the Legislature provides for transportation for state officers they have a right to accept free railroad transportation, and they refuse to admit that they are being bribed by the railroads. We admire their nerve in holding out against the bull-dozing tactics of the State Journal and Frank A. Harrison's sorehead press bureau.

So far as we are individually concerned, we have always found that when we treated the railroads right they did the same by us. If one takes the trouble to delve under the surface, it is easy enough to discover the source and the support of anti-railroad agitation in those who are "out," or soon going out, as, for instance, The Omaha World-Herald, Chronicle Candidate G. W. Berge, Governor Mickey, State Treasurer Mortensen, Would-be-Senator Norris Brown, the State Journal, Frank A. Harrison, the ex-Union Pacific booster, and others who have an ax to grind.

We decline to take the position that the railroads are a menace to our prosperity. They are the largest individual taxpayers, and it is their right and privilege to have something to say regarding the management of the state's affairs. If all other taxpayers paid in proportion to what the railroads pay, the railroad assessments would be decreased, not increased, and the tendency would be toward lower railway rates.

Contrary to the plan to pass rigid anti-pass laws, we favor the passage of a law compelling the railroads to issue free transportation to state and county officers.

What good would be accomplished by abolishing the pass? If the pass is abolished, those who are susceptible of being bribed would much rather have the cash, and the bribers would find a way to get it to them.

A Novel and Valuable Vacation Tour.

Buy a $20 excursion ticket to Worland, Wyo., in the Big Horn Basin and register there to draw for a land prize in the Shoshone reservation or make Worland your objective point in looking up a mineral or timber claim in the Owl Creek mountains. The final limit of August 12 will permit you to make the side trip from Worland to the Thermopolis hot springs, whose waters and curative properties are pronounced as fine as any in the world; the outflow is 18,600,000 gallons of water every 24 hours at a temperature of 135 degrees F. Thermopolis will become one of the most remarkable health resorts of this country.

Side trip tickets from Edgemont through the Black Hills to Deadwood and return, $7; to Hot Springs, S. D., and return $2. From Frannie to Cody and return, $2.30. Stop-overs allowed on Shoshone tickets. Fifteen days' personally conducted camping tour from Cody through Yellowstone park over the Sylvan Pass route, everything provided, $55.

Another delightful mountain side trip is that from Cody to Col. Cody's Pahaska Teepee or Log Cabin Inn, in the Yellowstone Park Forest Reserve, 2 miles east of the Park boundary. This is one of the choicest mountain and forest hunting and trout fishing spots anywhere available.

Call or write for Yellowstone Park folders describing tours beyond Gardiner or Cody; or Black Hill leaflet; Shoshone Free lands; Big Horn Basin folder, etc. Let me describe to you the possibilities of an outing through the interesting northwest in connection with the cheap excursion rates to Worland, one of the principal points of registration for Shoshone lands.

REGULAR LIVING.

What Nature Demands in Return For Good Health.

First of all, one thing that nature won't stand is irregularity. We cannot safely bottle up sleep tonight for tomorrow night's use, nor force our stomachs one meal because we expect to eat sparingly the next, nor become exhausted in working night and day, expecting to make it up later.

Nature does nothing before her appointed time, and any attempt to hurry her invariably means ultimate disaster. She takes note of all our transactions, physical, mental and moral, and places every item to our credit.

There is no such thing as cheating nature. She may not present her bill on the day we violate her law, but if we overdraw our account at her bank and give her a mortgage on our minds and bodies she will surely foreclose. She may lend us all we want today, but tomorrow, like Shylock, she will demand the last ounce of flesh. Nature does not excuse man for weakness, incompetence or ignorance. She demands that he be at the top of his condition. Nature's machinery, as it exists in the human body, is most complicated and delicately adjusted. No machinery constructed by man can compare with it in the perfection and proportion of all its working parts. Every machinist knows that his wheels and cams and gearing must run absolutely true and with uniformity or they will soon break down. It is the same with the machine that keeps the human body going.—New York American.

CAUSE OF THE DELUGE.

Queer Tradition of the Aboriginal Blacks of Australia.

The aboriginal blacks of Australia have a queer tradition about the flood. They say that at one time there was no water on the earth at all, except in the body of an immense frog, where men and women could not get it. There was a great council on the subject, and it was found out that if the frog could be made to laugh the waters would run out of his mouth and the drought be ended.

So several animals were made to dance and caper before the frog to induce him to laugh, but he did not even smile, and so the waters remained in his body. Then some one happened to think of the queer contortions into which the eel could twist itself, and it was stralghtaway brought before the frog. And when the frog saw the wriggling he laughed so loud that the whole earth trembled, and the waters poured out of his mouth in a great flood, in which many people were drowned.

The black people were saved from drowning by the pelican. This thoughtful bird made a big canoe and went with it all among the islands that appeared here and there above the surface of the water and gathered in the black people and saved them.

An Artist's Feat.

One of the most remarkable and most artistic of twenty-four hours' records stands to the credit of Sir Edwin Landseer, who had promised a picture for the spring exhibition of the Royal British Institution in 1846. On the day before the opening he was found standing in front of an untouched canvas. "I shall send that to the institution tonight, a finished picture," he declared to the astonished messenger who had been sent by the hanging committee to see if the promised picture was ready, "and have consequently given orders not to be disturbed." True to his word, Landseer put the finishing touch to his canvas and dispatched it to Pall Mall that very evening; and as "The Cavalier's Pets" it was one of the greatest successes of the exhibition.

The Change of a Word.

"Spanking" did not suggest chastisement originally. It was unknown to Johnson in this sense; to him a "spanker" meant "a person who takes long steps with agility." Rapid motion seems to be the root idea of the word "spank," which is not merely representative of the sound of the act, as "slap" and "smack" are. The low German "spakern," or "spenkern," to run and spring about quickly, is close to the original meaning; hence a "spanking pace," a "spanking breeze" and a "spanker," in the sense of an active and sturdy person.

The Hudson Bay Company.

In 1670 Charles II. granted a charter to the Hudson Bay company, giving to that association the whole and sole trade and commerce on the waters lying within the entrance of the Hudson strait and on the lands adjoining. After the cession of Canada to Great Britain in 1763 the Northwest Fur company of Montreal sprang into existence, and by its competition with the older corporation compelled an amalgamation in 1821.
