

HUGHES WINS IN NEW YORK

HIS PLURALITY IN EMPIRE STATE IS ABOUT 52,000.

REST OF TICKET STILL IN DOUBT

Hearst Carries Greater New York, Buffalo, Rochester, Utica, Troy, Elmira and Some Other Cities—Republicans Gain in Rural Districts.

New York, Nov. 7.—According to incomplete returns from all over the state, Charles E. Hughes, the Republican candidate, has been elected governor of New York over William Randolph Hearst by approximately a plurality of 52,000.

Outside of Greater New York, with 160 election districts missing, Hughes had a plurality of about 124,000. In Greater New York, with 69 election districts missing, Hearst had a plurality of 75,036.

No definite figures are yet available as to the results with regard to the subordinate state officers and both Democrats and Republicans are claiming victories from lieutenant governor down.

As was generally expected, Mr. Hearst showed his greatest strength in the cities through the state and took out of the Republican column a number of the more important municipalities which heretofore have been Republican. Among the cities which gave Hearst a plurality were Buffalo, Rochester, Utica, Troy, Elmira, Rome, Little Falls and Jamestown. All of these, except Rome and Utica, were Republican two years ago. Mr. Hughes did not gain a single city. The Republican ticket was successful, but sustained serious losses in Syracuse, Gloversville, Amsterdam, Ithaca, Schenectady, Watertown and Plattsburg.

State Senator Thomas F. Grady of Tammany Hall has been re-elected over Thomas Rock, who has been known in the campaign as "Eight-Hour" Rock, and who claimed he had been "tricked" by the Independence league.

There were many odd turns to the balloting. Here in New York, it was Richmond borough that defeated Mr. Hearst for mayor a year ago and it was Brooklyn, with a big plurality, which helped him to make the race so close. Mr. Hearst barely carried Brooklyn yesterday, but ran ahead in Richmond. In Schenectady, one of the best organized labor cities in the United States, it was expected Mr. Hearst would have a substantial plurality. The Republican ticket was successful by 374 votes, as against a Higgins plurality of 1,621 two years ago.

Election Night Crowds.

New York turned out its myriads of people last night for the usual election night revel. All the pent-up enthusiasm of an unprecedented state campaign was vented in a frenzy of noise. Broadway from Forty-second to Fourteenth street and along Park Row, from the Brooklyn bridge to the end of "newspaper row," was one mass of shouting, shoving people. Of noise, there was every variety it was possible to create with the use of a good pair of lungs and a tin horn, a cow bell or other devices. It was a boisterous crowd, but good natured. Beginning at Times square, at Forty-second street, Broadway was impassable to everything except pedestrians as far down town as Twenty-third street. The greatest crushes were around Times square, Herald, Madison square and Park Row. At these places, as well as several other points, bulletins were flashed upon screens and everybody cheered impartially. Around Herald square the jam was terrific. Street cars could not get through and only by getting in the currents that surged up and down Broadway was it possible for a pedestrian to make progress.

California.

San Francisco, Nov. 7.—General George Stone, chairman of the Republican state central committee, said to the Associated Press: "Reports from the state are coming in very slowly. There is no doubt as to the result, it is only a question of plurality. Gillett has carried San Francisco by a plurality of from 500 to 1,000, and the entire Republican state ticket, including eight congressmen, has been elected by a plurality exceeding 25,000."

Washington.

Seattle, Nov. 7.—Late returns point to an overwhelming Republican victory in the state of Washington. W. E. Humphrey, Wesley L. Jones and Francis W. Cushman, congressmen-at-large, all Republicans, will be returned. The house of representatives and state senate will be strongly Republican.

Nevada.

Reno, Nov. 7.—Vote counting, which is proceeding slowly, indicates a Democratic-Silver party victory. Sparks, for governor, is running ahead of Mitchell in all quarters. Returns show Sparks, Bartlett, for congress, and Sweeney, for justice of the supreme court, in the lead.

thing else had done during this troubled period.

He bowed his head. A strong man in agony cannot endure the scrutiny of loving eyes.

"Enid," he said brokenly, "my words to you must be few. Good fortune needs but slight explanation. The proofs of my statement I do not possess, but Mr. Traill's letter to me could not have been written by such a man if he were not sure of his facts. Here it is. Read it aloud."

He handed her her father's plain spoken communication. Constance, incapable of deeper depths of amazement than those now probed, looked over her sister's shoulder. Together they deciphered the somewhat difficult handwriting of a man whose chief task for years had been to sign his name.

This drawback was good in its result. They persevered steadily to the end. Then Enid, the comforter, broke down herself.

"It cannot be true, dad!" she cried. "I have been one of your daughters all my life. Why should I be taken from you now?"

"I believe it is quite true," said Brand quietly, and the need there was to console her was beneficial to himself. "Mr. Traill speaks of proofs. You have met him. I exchanged barely a word, a glance, with him, but it is not believable that he would make these solemn statements without the most undeniable testimony."

"Indeed, Enid," murmured Constance, "it sounds like the truth, else he would never have spoken so definitely of my father's first claim on your affections."

Brand stroked the weeping girl's hair.

"One does not cry, little one, when one is suddenly endowed with a wealthy and distinguished relative. Now, I did not spring this revelation on you without a motive. If a cleavage has to come let us at least face every consideration. Providence by inscrutable decree ordained that my wife and I should meet after twenty-one years. That cannot have been a purposeless meeting. In my careless youth, when I assigned all things their scientific place, I have scoffed at presentiments and vague portents of coming evils. I retract the immature judgment then formed. During the height of the hurricane when I feared the very lantern would be hurled into the sea I was vouchsafed a spiritual warning. I could not read its import. These things baffle a man, especially one whose mind leans toward materialism. Nevertheless I knew, though not in ordered comprehension, that my life was tending toward a supreme crisis. As the storm died, so I became normal, and I attributed a glimpse of the unseen to mere physical facts. I was wrong. The coming of that ill fated vessel was heralded to me. I lacked the key of the hidden message. Now I possess it. On board that ship, Constance, was your mother. How strange that her advent should be bound up also with the mystery of Enid's parentage!"

"Father, dear, if you can hear it, tell me of my mother. She knew me, and that is why she asked me to kiss her."

"She asked you to kiss her?" Each word was a crescendo of surprise.

"Yes. One night she came to me. Oh, I remember. She wished Mr. Pyne to telegraph to his uncle. When he quitted us to take the message she, too—how weird it all seems now!—admitted that she experienced something of the intuitive knowledge of the future you have just spoken of."

"I am not surprised. Poor Nanette! She was always a dreamer in a sense. Never content, she longed for higher flights. She was a woman in ambition ere she ceased to be a child. When I married her she was only eighteen. I was ten years older. My thought was to educate her to a somewhat higher ideal of life than the frivolities of a fashionable world. It was a mistake. If a girl harbors delusions before marriage the experience of married life is not a cure, but an incentive. A less tolerant man would have made her a safer husband."

Constance would listen to nothing which would disparage him.

"I hate to be unjust to her even in my thoughts, but where could she have found a better husband than you, dad?"

"Millionaire, indeed!" protested Enid, breaking in with her own tumultuous thoughts. "I would not exchange you for twenty millionaires."

was... In fact... eleme... ly, not... of her... ish. The... cruted... generat... compell... tray owl... island. There is something... the idea... was only a small farm. When... married... stipulation... cause it was more advisable for me to retain my own name. I wish then... help to a little I can now claim... locally and lawfully Sir Stephen Brand, sixth baronet of Lesser Hambleton, in Northumberland."

"And you became a lighthouse keeper?"

It was Enid who found breath for the exclamation. Constance braced herself for that which was to come. That Stephen Brand was a well born man was not a new thing in their intelligence.

"Yes, a cleaner of lamps and transmitter of ships' signals. Have we been less happy?" A most vehement "No!" was the answer.

"Don't run away with the idea that I was, therefore, endowed with ample means. There are baronets poorer than some crossing sweepers. The estate was encumbered. During my father's life, during my own until five years ago, it yielded only a thousand a year. Even now, after fifteen years of retrenchment—you both forget that while I was stationed at Flamborough Head I was absent for a few days to attend my father's funeral—it produces only a little over £3,000. Enough for us, eh, to enjoy life on? Enough to satisfy Lady Margaret's scruples, Enid, as to her son's absurd notion of matrimony? Enough, too, Constance, to mate you to the man of your choice, whatever his position?"

"Dad," murmured Constance, "is there no hope of the old days coming back again?"

"Who can tell? These things are not in mortal ken. I need hardly say that my allowance of one-third of the family revenues was barely sufficient to maintain a junior in the diplomatic service. Yet I married, heaven help me, in the pursuance of an ideal, only to find my ideal realized, after much suffering, on lonely rocks and bleak headlands. With strict economy we existed happily until you were born. My wife at first was sufficiently delighted to exchange Jersey society for Paris and the distinguished circle in which we moved there. But you were not many months old until a change came. A Frenchman, a rich fop, began to pay her attentions which turned her head. I do not think she meant any harm. People never do mean harm who accomplish it most fatally. I did that which a man who respects himself loathes to do—I protested. There was a scene, tears and wild reproaches. Next day the crash came. She endeavored to mislead me as to an appointment. God knows I only wished to save her, but it was too much to ask me to pass over in silence the schemes of a libertine, though he, too, was infatuated by her beauty. I discovered them in a clandestine meeting, and—my blood was hot and the country was France. We fought next morning, and I killed him."

Constance bent her head and kissed his right hand. Here at least was a lineal descendant of nine generations of border raiders, who held their swords of greater worth than musty laws.

Brand's eyes kindled. His voice became more vehement. The girl's impulsive action seemed to sanctify the deed.
