

LONE TRAIN ROBBER CAPTURED

Robs Fifteen Passengers, but is Arrested Before He Could Leave Train.

Kansas City, Nov. 26.—A lone robber, masked and armed, robbed fifteen passengers on eastbound Chicago and Alton passenger train No. 24, near Glasgow, Mo., early this morning. He was arrested before he could leave the train and was taken to Glasgow and placed in jail.

The train is known as the "early bird." It left Kansas City Sunday night. At Slater the robber, wearing a mask over his eyes, boarded the rear car as the train was pulling out. After the train had gained speed the man, revolver in hand, entered the car and began a systematic robbery of the passengers. Fifteen of them were made to disgorge. As the train passed through Glasgow, at which point it does not stop, the man was seen at work by the station agent, who wired the chief dispatcher of the fact. Armstrong, the next station east of Glasgow, was notified and officers were at the station there to meet the train. No stop is ordinarily made at Armstrong and the robber, evidently satisfied in the belief that he was secure for this reason, suspected no harm when that point was reached. When the train stopped at Armstrong and the officers boarded it they caught the robber redhanded. He was taken without serious difficulty.

The description of the robber fits in a general way that of the man who robbed the Rock Island overland train on Nov. 9, and escaped.

FOOTBALL CASUALTIES

First Season of "Debrutalized" Game Shows Decrease in Dead and Hurt.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—Eleven dead and 104 severely injured is the record of the football season of 1906, according to the resume of the season's accidents in the Tribune. These figures are compared with the casualties of 1905, when 18 players were killed and 159 severely injured, and, according to the Tribune, shows that "debrutalized" football has accomplished in a large degree the object aimed at, in rendering the game less dangerous to life and limb. The decrease in casualties is especially marked among high school players. In the season of 1905 11 eleven high school players were killed and 47 injured. In the season just closed 7 were killed and 25 were badly hurt. All the college and high school games this year were played under the new rules drawn after the close of last season to satisfy the agitation for less dangerous football aroused by the long list of casualties in the season of 1905. The value of the new rules is shown in the record of the big college games. This year not one fatality has occurred in the games played by the larger colleges. The Tribune carries interviews with a number of college presidents and coaches, east and west, in which the opinion is generally expressed that the new rules have achieved the elimination of much of the brutality and danger to life and limb that characterized the game in former years and that, above all, it has made the game safer for high school boys.

CAN DRINK, BUT NOT "TREAT"
Liquor Drummer Victim of Long Unused Section of Slocumb Law.

Lincoln, Nov. 25.—After lying dormant for nearly twenty years, the anti-treating section of the Slocumb liquor law was revived at the village of Dorchester.

A representative of a Kansas City liquor house named Mitchell, who treated some of his customers and others, was arrested and fined $50 and costs. It was the first conviction under the statute.

NEBRASKA FACES COAL FAMINE

Burlington Decides to Cut Off Grain Hauling to Relieve Fuel Stringency.

Omaha, Nov. 26.—The Burlington railroad is about to cease hauling all grain until the coal famine in Nebraska has been relieved. The car congestion has become so serious that several towns are without a ton of coal in reserve. The situation demands immediate remedy. The Burlington officials say they cannot possibly supply the demand for freight cars for grain and coal at the same time. As the coal demand is imperative and grain can wait awhile, they will turn their attention toward relieving the coal famine.

His Return.

HE.
Ah, do you remember those halcyon days
When I went barefooted and you made mud pies?
On many strange scenes have I centered
my gaze
Since you bade me good-bye with hot tears in your eyes—
I have roamed o'er the world, all its wonders I've scanned—
And here, where we parted, I'm holding your hand!

SHE.
Ah, yes, I remember the pies and the feet—
There was one of your toes which was minus a nail—
It seems as if yesterday there in the street
You left me a child, in short dresses
and frail;
And I wept, as you say, when you bade
me good-bye,
And—will you forgive me for wondering why?

IN THE LAND OF THE CZAR.

The Primrose Does Not Flourish There—Amber Hall of an Empress.

Russian air is leath to primroses. Not a single little yellow bloom has been known to survive the many attempts to make them grow at Tsarskoe Selo, says the Boston Herald. The cowslip has better luck, for now the gardens are purple with lilacs, and the golden fringe of laburnum hedges the grass, starred by thousands of the white and gold marguerite. A writer describes this residence of the czar as "enchanted." In the great palace which Catherine II built is the far-famed amber hall. The walls are covered from floor to cornice with mosaic work of different kinds of amber. The furniture is formed of the same beautiful material. Huge mirrors, framed in amber, reflect the delicate gradations of translucent color. Few people are aware how different in tone and tint amber can be.

Soap Bubbles for Weaklings.

Blowing soap bubbles for the development of the lungs of nervous and anaemic children is a treatment advised by a Montreal physician, and it has met with remarkable and gratifying results. The Canadian doctor, who has devoted himself to obstetrics, has found in the latter years of his practice that mothers in the fashionable world object to crying babies, and do not hesitate to sanction the use of opiates by nurses—and the nurses give full and unqualified approval—and he recites what is well known to every physician, that the baby which is lulled to sleep and not permitted to howl and yell becomes deficient in lung power, and after baby food is passed is a weakling. He has undertaken the treatment of just this class of children by the simple but original method of expanding and contracting the lungs by a pastime which the sickliest child will take hold of with little or no persuasion. He has devised a saponaceous mixture which will make "tough" soap bubbles, so that in the desire to increase the size of the thin-walled globe the little patient will exercise his or her lungs to the fullest extent—and the simple little trick is working wonders.

Case of Pie Versus Tart.

Usage alone must decide the issue between "pie" and "tart," which has returned to us with the gooseberries. Philology, at any rate, draws no clear distinction. It only traces back "tart" to the Latin "tortus," twisted—the pastry being the twisted part, of course; while it is very doubtful about "pie." On the whole, Skeat's conjecture that this expresses the miscellaneous nature of the contents is persuasive. All the "pies" seem to go back to the original one, the maple—in Latin, "pica"—from whose black and white aspect come "pied" and "piebald." The old ordinal or service book was called "pica" or "pie" because of the appearance of the black-letter type on the white page; and the edible pie, having equally mixed contents, may have been christened after this by medieval humor. Printers' language retains both "pica" for a kind of type and "pie" for type all jumbled up.—London Chronicle.

EXERCISE FOR THE BRAIN.

Forcing Thoughts into Different Groove Better Than Rest.

"There is probably not a single medical man in any of the great cities who is in general practice who cannot number many among his patients suffering from brain-fag. The malady seems to affect old and young people, the patient complaining of feeling 'needy,' 'played-out,' 'lack of energy,' and 'general restlessness.' The individual who has to work hard with his 'wains,' said a doctor, 'doesn't seem to realize that the mental organs want exercise. The prevailing opinion is that one suffering from brain-fag only requires complete rest to effect a cure. I don't say that rest is not a great advantage in some cases, but more often than not brain exercise cures brain-fag. An intricate puzzle, a game of chess or checkers, or cards—anything which will exercise the mind in a different sphere to the daily groove—will act as a tonic, and, coupled with good exercise in the open air, speedily effect a lasting cure.'—London Answers.

HOW TO CONTROL A VOICE.

British Officer Says Nature is Not the Sole Regulator.

To a recent issue of the British Medical Journal Major R. F. E. Austin of Imtarfa, Malta, contributed a paper on commonly overlooked factors in vocal mechanism. In which he asserts that the universal idea that all naturally possess either good, bad or indifferent voices is wrong and contends that nature is directly responsible for one and only one of these conditions, and that the others must be attributed to man's unconscious departure from nature's laws.

It will be news to many that by far the greater number do not possess full control of the adductor muscles of the cords and are therefore unable to place and keep the cords in the most appropriate position quickly. The author asserts that it is surprising what a number of professional voice users, as well as amateurs, fail in this respect. According to his thinking, the majority of voices are lost not from overwork but as a result of improper emission.

Major Austin contends that in order to obtain quickly the thorough control of any muscles or set of muscles they should be developed by brisk movements, which fully contract them in the case of the adductor muscles of the cords this can only be done by using the voice in a most inartistic although physiological manner. That is to say, words should be sung or spoken quickly in acute penetrating tones ("pat-a-wat-quack" being an excellent phrase for the purpose.) The voice should be extended up and down, note by note, in this manner until the limits of the compass are reached. Classification into soprano, baritone, etc., should not be attempted before this has been done.

That Radium Clock.

The "radium clock" which is "guaranteed to run 2,000 years" is interesting. Unfortunately the news thus far communicated to the public concerning it is too meager to answer even the natural questions which it suggests. Who gave the guarantee? Who wanted it? How is it to be made good? Does it carry with it a patentable application of the principle of perpetual motion? How are the materials of which it is built to be protected against wearing out in much less time than that which the "guaranty" covers? Two thousand years is a long time. A piece of mechanism needs to be very well built to keep in motion that long and not be consumed by friction, however perfectly balanced and lubricated. The other details are negligible.

Promised Much for Balloon.

An English newspaper published on June 13, 1824, contained the following paragraph: "A Dr. Thornton has projected a balloon and solicited subscribers at 10 guineas ($50) each to patronize his scheme. He describes his new vehicle as having wings and a tail, worked by a steam engine and mechanical powers; made to ascend and descend at pleasure, to travel 100 miles within an hour in any direction and to carry letters and persons to any distance." The performance did not equal the promise.

The "Blood Bible."

A famous Bible, known as the "Blood Bible," has been sold by public auction at Breslau to the descendants of Frederick von Trenk, its original owner, for $200. Frederick von Trenk was imprisoned and confined in chains by Frederick the Great for his temerity in making love to the king's sister, Princess Amalia. During his incarceration Von Trenk inscribed 200 blank pages in this Bible, a present from the princess, with love sonnets in her honor, every word of which was written with his own blood.

The Bachelors of England.

Under our present system our men emigrate, but leave our delicately nurtured women at home. Families of grown-up, unmarried daughters, discontented and restless, are far too numerous among us, and all the while in far-off places of the empire, there are men by the thousand hungering for the sight of an English lass. We do not exaggerate. The flag of Britain in too many parts of the earth is flying over a generation of bachelors.—Boy and Girl.
