Wedding Bells.

Ross-Roby.

At the home of the bride's father, Mr. E. W. Ross, on Wednesday morning, occurred the wedding of his daughter, Miss Villa, to Mr. George Arthur Roby. It was just the hour of seven when they entered the room to the strains of the Mendelssohn Wedding March, played by Miss Ethel Kenady. There they were met by Rev. J. W. Embree of Superior, an old friend of the family, who made them husband and wife, using the beautiful and impressive ring ceremony. After the congratulations and examination of the many and beautiful wedding presents received, all proceeded to the dining room, where they were served with a dainty four course breakfast. The table was beautifully decorated in pink and white carnations woven with smilax. The bride is well known in this city and loved by all who know her. She is a talented and accomplished young lady, but, most of all, she possesses that charm of disposition which wins the hearts of all. On this her wedding morn, she looked very pretty as she stood beside the man of her choice, tastefully gowned in her traveling suit of blue silk. The groom is also well known to us, having grown to manhood in our midst and been one of us until his removal to Beatrice last year, where he has a lucrative position. He was one of our most promising young men and has a host of friends to wish for his success and happiness in life. The happy couple departed on the morning train for their future home in Beatrice, showered with rice and congratulations from their many friends who had gathered to see them depart on the journey of life and express their regrets that we should lose two such estimable young people from our midst.

Moore-Crabill.

On Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock, at the home of Dr. Sexton in Lincoln, occurred the wedding of Miss Zella F. Moore of that city and Mr. Charles Crabill of Red Cloud. Mrs. F. Hahn, mother of the bride, served an eight course breakfast at the Lindell hotel for the wedding party after the ceremony, and Mr. and Mrs. Crabill left at 10:30 for their future home in this city. They arrived here at 8:30 in the evening and were driven directly to the home prepared by Mr. Crabill for his bride, at the southwest corner of fourth avenue and Seward street, where they were given a hearty reception by the members of the Junior Whist Club. The bride is one of Lincoln's fairest daughters, and the groom who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Crabill, is one of our most promising young business men, being the general manager of the Red Cloud Street Railway and Transfer Company. We extend our best wishes to the happy couple.

Thomas-Letson.

The friends of Will Letson will be surprised as well as pleased to hear of his marriage last Wednesday to Miss Edna Thomas of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. The ceremony was performed at Ogden, Utah, and they will make their home at Ely, Nevada, where Will has an important position with the Guggenheimer Copper Company.

Deaths and Funerals.

Mrs. S. F. Spokesfield.

Sarah Frances Spokesfield, wife of S. F. Spokesfield, and one of the oldest residents of Red Cloud, died early last Sunday morning from cancer, with which she had been suffering for years. Funeral services were held at the family residence Sunday evening at 5 o'clock, conducted by Rev. A. A. Cressman, pastor of the Congregational church. The Eastern Star, of which order Mrs. Spokesfield was a member, performed their ritualistic service for the dead. The remains were taken to Hebron Monday morning for burial.

Mrs. Spokesfield was born near Des Moines, Ia., January 1, 1846, and was married to S. F. Spokesfield in 1868. She was an earnest Christian, having united with the Christian church when she was 11 years of age, and remained a member of that church to the time of her death. She is survived by her husband and several children.

Charles Throckmorton.

Charles Throckmorton, aged about 48 years, died yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, after a lingering illness extending over a period of twelve or fifteen years. Funeral services were held this morning at 10 o'clock, at the home of his brother, Wesley Throckmorton, near North Branch. Rev. Chas. Smith, pastor of the Brethren church in this city, conducted the services and interment was in the Waggoner cemetery.

HANGING POSTPONED.

Frank Barker Will Have Insanity Hearing on June 25.

One more breathing spell for Frank Barker, says the Star. The man who killed his brother as he slept, and the wife beside him, condemned to die on the gallows next Saturday, was on Tuesday morning allowed a stay of execution pending the sitting of a jury to determine his sanity, which Judge Holmes of the Lancaster county district court has ordered for June 25.

It was on the application of Judge F. G. Hamer of Kearney that the death sentence was pushed ahead ten days. In a lengthy affidavit the judge declared to the court that Barker is insane, a degenerate, of mind erratic and likely at any moment to break forth into uncontrollable fury. Such a fury came on him when he killed his friends.

Attorney General Thompson at the hearing contested the request of Barker's attorney. He declared that Judge Hamer has had two years in which to ask for a jury to try Barker's sanity. He has not used his opportunity, and now at the eleventh hour came in to take advantage of the law to secure another respite for the murderer.

"It is the law's delay that drive law-loving people to violence," said Mr. Thompson to Judge Holmes. "The time has come when the people have a right to know once for all how the men who kill are to be treated and if human life is to be safe."

Judge Holmes granted the application for the stay and set the hearing for June 25.

After the court order had been entered, Judge Hamer said, when asked what his will was in regard to Barker's future:

"I think that Barker can stay there and make brooms the rest of his life. He is insane, and if he had not been he would never have killed his brother. Under the constant guard maintained at the prison, he will be safe from further outbreaks."

"Then you do not want him turned loose?"

Judge Hamer looked astonished at such a question.

"Why, I would not dare to go to sleep in his presence if he had anything he could kill me with."

Judge Hamer's application for the stay of execution was accompanied by affidavits from penitentiary guards, physicians and prison contractors, and all who have had an opportunity to watch the actions of the condemned man.

PIONEER COURT INCIDENTS.

Free and Easy Manners in Early Illinois Trials.

Most of the early Illinois court-houses were log built, but in some districts, says the author of "Lincoln, the Lawyer," the sessions were held in the barrooms of taverns, and the absence of all formality in the proceedings is best illustrated by the fact that in the circuit court of Washington county, held by Judge John Reynolds, the sheriff usually heralded his honor by singing out, "Come in, boys! Our John is a-goin' to hold court!" to which cordial invitation those having business with the law responded.

Another sheriff in Union county made laudable efforts to meet the requirements of the occasion by shouting out this singular announcement: "Oh, yes! Oh, yes! Oh, yes! The honorable Judge is now opened!"

In one case a judge who desired to display his learning instructed the jury very fully, laying down the law with authority, but the jurors, after deliberating some hours, found themselves unable to agree. Finally the foreman rose and asked for additional instructions.

"Judge, this 'ere is the difficulty," he explained. "The jury want to know if that thar what you told us was r'ally the law, or on'y jist your notion."—Youth's Companion.

EMBROIDERED TRUTH.

Mark Twain on His Own Reputation For Veracity.

I am used to having my statements discounted. My mother began it before I was seven years old. Yet all through my life my facts have had a substratum of truth, and therefore they were not without preclusiveness. Any person who is familiar with me knows how to strike my average and therefore knows how to get at the jewel of any fact of mine and dig it out of its blue clay matrix. My mother knew that art. When I was seven or eight or ten or twelve years old—along there—a neighbor said to her:

"Do you ever believe anything that that boy says?"

My mother said: "He is the wellspring of truth, but you can't bring up the whole well with one bucket." And she added: "I know his average, therefore he never deceives me. I discount him 30 per cent for embroidery, and what is left is perfect and priceless truth without a flaw in it anywhere."—Mark Twain's Autobiography in North American Review.

The Fighting Lemming.

If the lemming's powers were proportioned to his pluck, the lemming would make things lively for the hunter. It attacks with reckless fury the harmless passerby. One of these creatures, smaller than a rat, will assault without a second thought a couple of human beings weighing 150 pounds apiece. It will spring to one's knees, barking and biting, and in purblind fury fall back "all ends up" to the earth, only to renew the attack again and again. One day while one lemming was flying at me another from beyond a small stream joined in the demonstration and presently swam across to get to close quarters. I was not quite sure that the first fall into the water was not accidental, but hardly think so, since once there it came straight to the charge.—"Wild Norway."

Most Nearly Perfect Vacuum.

It was Professor Dewar's achievement in liquefying hydrogen that led to the discovery of an easy method of obtaining an almost perfect vacuum, and that in a single minute. When a glass tube filled with air and closed at one end has its open end dipped into a cup of liquid hydrogen, the intense cold condenses the air into a kind of snow that settles to the bottom. If, then, the upper part of the tube, from which the solidified air has fallen, is removed by heating and cooling it off it becomes a vacuum chamber so free from air that it is difficult to force an electric current through it.—New York Herald.

His Old Letters.

A Wall street business man showed a visitor a bundle of old letters that he was taking home from his office to burn in his furnace. "I wasn't always so particular about these useless business letters," he said, "until I learned that the women cleaners were sorting them out of the wastebaskets and selling them to certain firms which make a business of furnishing lists of names for various purposes, mostly to speculative concerns. Then I concluded that I owed it to my clients to protect them from the nuisance that follows getting one's name on a mailing list."—New York Sun.

The Aye-aye.

A very strange animal, related to the lemurs and peculiar to Madagascar, is the aye-aye. It feeds on wood boring grubs that tunnel into the bark of trees. The beast cuts away the outer bark with its chisel-like teeth, and as the worm retreats to the end of its hole pokes after it with a finger. This finger is a remarkable organ, evidently provided by nature for this purpose, being abnormally long and armed with a hook shaped claw for dragging out

Wants to Know Why.

BLADEN, NEB., June 10.

Editor Chief:—When Webster county is so poor that it can not build a court house, and has to store the county records any old place, how can it have money to give to the town of Bladen, located in a corner of the county, to have a fair that does no one any good but the town of Bladen and a few farmers around the town?

TAXPAYER.

The above inquiry was sent in by a well known resident of the north part of the county. We interviewed one of the county board on the subject this morning, and he informed us that it was the opinion of the board that the Bladen fair was a worthy enterprise and needed the money. Section 3019 of Cobbe's annotated statutes of Nebraska gives the county commissioners authority to make an appropriation of this character equal to 3 cents for each inhabitant, and the commissioners believed that, as the Bladen fair was a new enterprise, it would be no more than right to help it along. Of course, the commissioners could have refused the request for aid, but as that would probably have meant the death of the only agricultural exhibit held in this county they wisely appropriated the money. If the fair is as well patronized this year as it was last, the association will probably be able to get along without county aid in the future. And we will undoubtedly get our new court house anyway—sometime.
