Commissioners' Proceedings.

County commissioners met in session November 19 with all members present. Treasurer was instructed to correct the error in the taxes of E. Peters, as property was assessed in the village of Guide Rock by mistake.

On the petition of N. E. Harvey and others, asking that a road be opened on Sec. 29-2-12, the chairman appointed H. G. Sawyer, J. G. Overman and W. E. Anderson committee for investigation. The county assessor was instructed to adjust the taxes on new 16-18, same being school land.

In the matter of the road petition of James McCoy and others, the committee reported favorably and the road between sections 15 and 16 was ordered opened and platted.

November 20.

John Darwin asked to have sec 36-1-9 appraised for sale and Commissioners Sawyer, Chaffin and Richards were appointed as appraisers.

The annual statements of the following road overseers were approved:

John Kimpzek, District 44; Jos. Kohmetscher, Dist. 40; Gus Novak, Dist. 27; Fred Langman, Dist. 19; Simon Van Boring, Dist. 23; E. E. Shipman, Dist. 22.

To the Lovers and Learners of Good Music of Red Cloud and Vicinity.

The Red Cloud Business College has again made a step toward the advancement of success by securing the services of Mrs. Mattie Hundcrup who is known throughout the country for her talent as a musician.

She is a cornetist, teaching the same and is also teacher of the violin, mandolin, guitar, and piano.

The music studio is in connection with the college and all those wishing instruction on any of the above instruments will please call at the college office and make arrangements. Here is a chance to learn music at home.

Boost

The school bond middle is gradually clearing up. Those who circulated the petition asking the board to cancel the bonds acknowledged at the last meeting of the board that they knew when they presented their petition that the board could not legally do as their petition asked them to do and of such actions perhaps the less said the better. Now let us all get behind the band wagon and push this thing along to a success. The suggestion of Brother Hosmer is, we believe, the best one offered yet. There is in the banks of this county approximately one-half million dollars on which the depositors obtain no interest. Now should a few of them buy these bonds they would receive after paying their taxes a net income of not less than three per cent, and certainly they can get no better security than these bonds. The board has been unjustly accused of holding secret sessions and of other irregularities. Now we would suggest to them that they have out made of the building which they contemplate building, also give some of the specifications, so that all may know what this building will look like.

Trade at Home.

If you want to down the department houses, the fallies, etc., get the people right by teaching them to patronize home institutions in preference to foreign shops. It is all right to hold "Stop thief," but at the same time Red Cloud people ought to be for Red Cloud all the time. We will bet a penny that nine times out of ten people who come out of town to buy goods could buy them just as cheap in Red Cloud, and perhaps cheaper.—C. W. A.

Yes, brother Hosmer, it is business to patronize home people as well in buying one kind of merchandise as another. Those who send their orders for goods seldom give the home merchant an equal chance with the foreign merchant. They send an order to the foreign merchant and take whatever kind of goods they may receive, thinking they have saved money on their purchases. How many people really know the value of the different kinds of merchandise? We believe we are safe in saying that not more than one in fifty or even one hundred know the difference in value of different classes of merchandise. It is our conviction that not more than one person, a higher merchant or otherwise, can tell the difference between different kinds of goods and more than one person in one hundred can tell the difference in price of two pieces of dress goods, each costing about fifty cents per yard. In fact, yesterday we took three pieces of goods around town to find if they were not true and found that the proportion was really too large.

The New York Tribune Farmer.

When The New York Tribune Association six years ago decided to establish the New York Tribune Farmer, a non-political, national journal to be devoted to every branch of agriculture and other interests of the farmer and his family in every part of the country, men of the highest authority in every branch of farm work and experience were consulted as to writers whose services it would be most desirable to secure.

When the late Dr. C. J. Currier, of Minnesota, the author of "Horse Sense," was asked to name the best writers on horses and on veterinary practice he named only one; "Dr. C. D. Smead, living in Logan, N. Y., is just the one you want if you can get him." Dr. Currier's opinion proved him as good a judge of men as of horses.

Dr. Smead undertook the work of answering not only veterinary questions, all reasonable queries in regard to the breeding, the care and feeding of all domestic animals; he taught how to keep them well and that beasts seldom need medicine if properly looked after. Not the questions alone profited by Dr. Smead's department, the value of which received immediate and extended recognition. There is good reason for this.

Dr. Smead didn't take up his profession as an easy way of earning a living. He has been a practical farmer and live-stock breeder from his youth. He loves animals and is unhappy when they suffer or fall in health, so many years ago he decided to learn how to care for and cure them; he dropped work, took a course and became a doctor himself—not for the money he might earn, but for the sake of the neglected and suffering animals. And he didn't stop there when he left school; he has studied books, reports and, better still, the animals themselves every day since. No wonder he succeeds and is to-day largely on account of his work the New York Tribune Farmer, the best known veterinary surgeon in America. We can get you the New York Tribune Farmer and the Chief for $2.50 a year.

W. C. T. U. Notes.

During a Sunday afternoon women's meeting held in the auditorium at Lincoln by the noted evangelist, Chas. Reigh Scoville, W. C. T. U. notes were passed among the audience, which resulted in one hundred and fifteen additions to the unions of Lancaster county.

On the opening night of the W. C. T. U. national convention recently held at Nashville, Tenn., addresses of welcome were given by the governor, the mayor, the superintendent of public instruction, the president of the Anti-Saloon league and the president of the Tennessee W. C. T. U. Prohibition gains were reported every where.

Omaha has begun working for the state W. C. T. U. convention for 1909. That city does not propose to submit to another defeat.

At a recent Purity congress held at Battle Creek, Mich., a large number of delegates were present, all of whom were entertained at the Dr. Kellogg Sanitarium and the McFadden Health Home. Noted reformers were present, among them being Anthony Comstock, who told of the destruction of tons of stuff unlawfully passing through the mails. Carrie Nation was there, and although not on the program spoke three evenings to audiences limited only by the size of the building.
