The above cut represents one of the M. W. A. tents in Colorado where that order has established a sanatorium.

This fraternal order has been far sighted enough to realize that it is much better to save a life than it is to pay a death benefit and as the great majority of benefits paid are from the results of consumption the order has provided a way of escape for its members afflicted with the great white plague.

The order numbers over one million members and a few years ago the head officers asked for a voluntary subscription of ten cents per member for the purpose of establishing a resort in Colorado where the Modern Woodmen of America could receive the best medical and scientific treatment.

The result was all that could be asked for. Nearly every member has paid his ten cents per year gladly and one of the best equipped sanatoriums has been installed out in the health giving air of Colorado.

The ground, buildings and all needed equipment have been paid for and not one dollar stands against the order in the way of debt.

Members of the order are here treated free of charge. Many a man who has gone there in the incipient stage of the dreaded disease has been returned to his home well and strong.

The order has not only saved the paying of a death benefit but it has restored to the family a husband, a father or a brother who is once again permitted to be a member of the family household. Society is also a gainer because instead of having a family thrust upon it for support the bread earner returns and not only cares for the family but also adds his mite to the sum total of industry and help in the maintenance of society in general.

The Modern Woodmen of America has taken an advanced step along fraternal lines. This move is fraternal, charitable and business combined and is destined to place the M. W. A. in a solid substantial place among the fraternities of the world.

It is not enough that a fraternity should look after its sick members and to bury its dead and in a measure take the place of the one that has gone, but it should strive to add to the length of usefulness of all its members. This the M. W. A. is doing and the results are already far reaching. The story of the growth of this benificent order is marvelous in the extreme. While only about thirty years old it has passed all the older orders of its kind and is now the largest fraternal insurance order in the world.

This has been accomplished by its exclusiveness on the one hand and its untiring persistency on the other hand. Emerson has said something to the effect that if a man could make a better post, build a better house or make a better mouse trap than his neighbor the world would make a beaten track to his door even though he lived in the woods. But the M. W. A. realized that while they had as good a proposition to offer the prudent man as any, it would take a great deal of work to give the world information regarding what good was to be had and hence the continued activity in getting new members.

The history of many inventions proves the wisdom of the policy of the M. W. A. Many an invention beneficial to mankind has entered oblivion immediately after the patent was secured simply because the inventor did not know the how and why of disposing of his wares. The modern method is to advertise and to advertise judiciously and intelligently. Hence the growth of this great order.

Not only the largest in the world but it enjoys the largest membership in Nebraska having about 60,000 in this state alone.

Nor is its advance receding on the contrary the greatest gain in membership in its history was made in April of this year when 14,500 were added to the roll.

The order in this city was organized on April 29th, 1891, and the following officers were in the chair: W. A. Northcott, Head Consul; C. W. Hayes, Head Clerk and the following were the local officers: D. J. Myers, V. C.; F. G. Blakes, W. A.; W. A. Sherwood, B.; F. V. Taylor, Clerk; G. H. Whitson, Escort; F. W. Richardson, Watch; G. W. Hutchison, Sentry; G. E. McKeely local Physician; J. L. Miller, H. C. Scott and A. O. Berg, Managers.

The Camp here has had its periods of advancement and depression but on the whole has made a steady growth from the time of its organization. It now numbers 170 members.

The present efficient officers of the lodge are: Venerable Consul, E. W. Ross; Adviser, Ed. Hanson; Clerk, E. H. Newhouse; Bunker, L. H. Fort; Escort, H. J. Metzger; I. Watch, A. B. McArthur; Sentry, A. L. Turab; Chief

Forester, R. G. Runchey; Managers, J. W. Kinsel, Ed. Hanson, J. O. Caldwell. It is the duty of every man to provide for his own household and he should protect his family against the possibility of his being incapacitated from work or his death. The Modern Woodman of America offers special inducements in the way of protection. The magnitude of its present work is scarcely within the comprehension of man. It is one of the most solid and substantial beneficial orders in existence. This is the history of the Woodman goat and in order that you may know how he came into our camp we give the following truthful story from The Fredericksburg News: "A BIT OF NATURAL HISTORY." The sun was rising; on a western cliff, with eyes reflecting bright the coming light, there stood a goat, a common mountain goat; lithe, well formed, with bushy beard and crumpled horns, and sinewy limbs, that mocked the distance down from rock to rock, from cliff to shadowy vale, the waters' depth, the mountain lion's snarl, or even the deeper growl of grizzly bear, the hunter's hound, the uttermost that man or nature brought, to vex his life. This morn he stood, upon the outer verge of that wild cliff, and gazed with steady eye adown to where, for three days past, had been a hunter's camp. His practiced eye took note of men, a full half score, of tents and covered wains, but what concerned him most, of dogs, a score and more of all breeds, from mastiff strong to ter-
