That Lame Back Means Kidney Disease

And to Relieve the Lame and Aching Back, You Must First Relieve the Kidneys

There is no question about that at all—for the lame and aching back is caused by a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder. It is only common sense, any way—that you must cure a condition by removing the cause of the condition. And lame and aching back are not by any means the only symptoms of derangement of the kidneys and bladder. There are a multitude of well-known and unmistakable indications of a more or less dangerous condition. Some of these are, for instance: Extreme and unnatural lassitude and weariness, nervous irritability, heart irregularity, "nerves on edge," sleeplessness and inability to secure rest, scalding sensation and sediment in the urine, inflammation of the bladder and passages, etc.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are an exceptionally meritorious remedy for any and all affections or diseased conditions of these organs. These Pills operate directly and promptly—and their beneficial results are at once felt. They regulate, purify, and effectually heal and restore the kidneys, bladder and liver, to perfect and healthy condition—even in some of the most advanced cases.

E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill., want every man and woman who have the least suspicion that they are afflicted with kidney and bladder diseases to at once write them, and a trial box of these Pills will be sent free by return mail postpaid.

A Railroad Ghost Explained

"It wasn't my fault, so every one said, that Hipe Conklin missed his footin' when he was tryin' to board my engine after he had flung me on the midnight express 'n' fell under the wheels, bustin' his ribs," said the fat engineer, but I blamed myself considerably nevertheless, 'n' took it some to heart. It's customary when you're flung to just slow down 'n' let the flungin' make the tank stop to get on the engine 'n' tell you what a doin' on ahead. This night when Hipe swung me up because his fat freight train was stalled a couple of miles down the line I eased her up 'n' was nearly half a mile across or eight miles an hour when the tank step came along to Hipe, but somebody or leavin' he missed 'n' went under, his ribs killed before I could stop.

"I took a week in to get before I was back on my feet again, but I made up my mind that railroadin' at its best was a serious business 'n' it was up to me to get down to cases 'n' go back to work or have on down to the perdition.

"Natchery my first trip after the accident I was quite squeamish comin' down alone by Nicholson's curve, where Hipe had met his death. Just as we commenced to take the curve I gripped my teeth 'n' got myself on edge. As the train commenced to straddle out on the main line after comin' away from the curve I saw a white light swingin' horizontally across the track, which of course is a signal to stop, 'n' stop I did. After we had come to a standstill, however, we could find no white light nor anybody aroun' who might have been swingin' it.

"It's mighty peculiar, mighty peculiar, I says, 'bout'n' that." "Of course the boys all thought I was seein' things, but I declared up 'n' down that I had seen a white light bein' swung across the tracks 'n' I wouldn't have it any other way. Incidentally such an occurrence didn't go very far toward smoothin' out my pent up feelin's.

"I wasn't the only man who had seen the light at that, for it soon got passed aroun' up in the stove committee 'n' elsewhere at meetin's of the railroad men, 'n' other boys allowed that they'd seen the same thing.

"My next trip down there on the midnight express I just called to my fireman as I came in the vicinity of Nicholson's curve 'n' made him keep his peepers peeled just to see what he could see. As we come aroun' the curve the little white light was on the job all right.

"Did you see it, Murt?" I hollers to my fireman.

"I certainly did," he says, his teeth a-chatterin'. "You goin' to stop?"

"Stop nuthin', I answers, for I was gettin' my nerve back now. If that's Hipe Conklin's ghost he wants to read up on the rules. It ain't good form to flag a train with a white light."

"I jerked the throttle open 'n' we went away from there full tilt, but I wasn't scared a bit.

"We were not through with the spookin' of Nicholson's curve, however, for the next time I was comin' east with that midnight express I got a whistle signal from the conductor to stop and no monkey business about it. So I set up the brakes 'n' we stopped. One of the journals on the sleepers was gittin' agitated 'n' the conductor had signaled me to stop till they could soothe it.

"Well, of course I was just tickled to death to stop right there in the community of interest of that will o' the wispy light. We came to a standstill just as I was on a direct line with it. There it was all right, swingin' slowly 'n' steadily. Now that I could get a good sight on it while the engine was standin' still I saw that it was considerable to the right of the tracks 'n' some distance away 'n' only the speed of the train comin' aroun' there made it appear to swing directly across the track.

"Knowin' that we would probably lay to some minutes while the crew were pacifyin' the anarchistic box I just stepped down off the engine 'n' went to a little clump of trees at the side of the track 'n' peered through. An' what d'ye think it was? Why, there on a factory in a village a couple of miles to the right of the track they had erected one of them big clocks for advertisin' purposes. The long pendulum was fitted with an electric light 'n' as the pendulum went from right to left, left to right, the light would swing. Comin' aroun' the curve you could get a glimpse of this swingin' light through a clearin' in the trees, but after the train got straightened up again you'd lose sight of it.

"As I said before, I'm no believer in ghosts, but I was mighty glad to know that it was only a clock pendulum 'n' not Hipe Conklin's ghost that had been a-hecklin' me. If I hadn't got nervous 'n' ran so far by I would have found it out the first night, 'n' saved myself a lot of frettin'."

More of Buddha's Ashes Found.

Excavations conducted by the Archeological department of the Indian government near Peshawar have resulted in the discovery of an ancient Buddhist stupa or memorial mound containing a bronze casket, within which are some of the ashes of Gautama Buddha, the founder of Buddhism. They are included in a wrought hexagonal rock crystal receptacle sealed with royal seal of the Emperor Kanishka, who was ruling in Peshawar at the opening of the Christian era.

The discovery is reported to have taken place on a site described by the Chinese traveler Hsien Tsang in the record of his journeys in the early years of the Christian era as being the position of a large Buddhist monastery. Prof. A. Foucher of the Sorbonne, an authority on Buddhist archeology, noticed five years ago some curious mounds in this spot, but had no appliances for excavation. This clue has since been followed up by Dr. Marshall, head of the Indian Archeological department.

"When Buddha died in 482 B. C., his body was cremated and the ashes divided in eight parts among his disciples," said Dr. L. D. Burnett, keeper of the Oriental books in the British museum. "One of the vases containing these portions, known as the Piprahwa vase, was discovered a few years ago by a government survey. The other six are yet undiscovered."

Blind, But Picks Berries.

One of the most expert strawberry pickers in this country is a blind man, Robert Jolly of Orcas, Wash., for years has made his annual expenses picking strawberries and other fruit for his neighbors, and so skilled is he, and so rapid, that he earns as much on the commission plan as a man with good eyes. Jolly finds his way along the rows of vines with his stick, and carries a dozen crates with him. His nimble fingers find the fruit, and while one hand is plucking the berry the other is searching for more. Picking cherries or apples and climbing around on a ladder is as easy for him as for a schoolboy.

One Kind of Teacher.

"In a school near Concordia," said State Superintendent Fairchild of Kansas in a discussion of school work, "a little French boy was found by his teacher down under a seat trying to catch a grasshopper. The teacher got down, too, and assisted the little fellow in catching the hopper. What a chance to have done the wrong thing—to have frightened the little foreigner, to have scolded and lectured the whole school. How wisely this young man acted under the circumstances. He would have been my choice for a teacher for my boy."
