The last number of the lecture course given in the opera house was a decided success. The audience received their money's worth twice over. Owing to the train being an hour and a half late the management obtained Father Fitzgerald to lecture upon "Semi-Precious Stones of Webster Co." The speaker began by saying that this lecture was to have been delivered at the Farmers' Institute but that he had been limited to ten minutes for its delivery and so he was pleased to think that he now had an opportunity to speak as long as he chose.

He told about walking for his health and occasionally picking up loose stones, glancing at them, throwing them away. Later he became interested and learned that they were of value. He surprised many of his hearers first in informing them of the presence of valuable stones in this vicinity and second with his thorough investigation and understanding of what he found. He asserted that there are many stones of real value lying in the sand beds waiting for some one to pick them up. Then he described the volcanic ash to be found here, what an excellent polishing material it was, and to what commercial uses it could be put.

The speaker's delivery was pleasing, polished and extremely instructive. The concert company made good and no one regretted remaining to hear them.

Rev. Cressman gave an informal supper to the three ushers who so efficiently waited upon the audience thruout the course of the lectures. They were Ben Williams, Floyd Turnure and Will Holmes. They all report an excellent time and say that the Rev. Cressman and his estimable wife are entertainers of the highest order.

Attend the Christian Church Services

Mr. Hussong was unfortunately ill last Sunday and could not fill his appointments, but as we go to press he is feeling so much improved that he announces preaching services for both morning and evening next Lord's day, Feb. 27th. The morning sermon will be on "The Human Element in the New Testament Church." The evening theme is "The Black Man's Creed." Any one interested in the restoration of primitive christianity should make it a point to hear these sermons.

BASE BALL.

A number of base ball enthusiasts met in the Commercial club rooms Monday night and made temporary arrangements for perfecting an organization for this year. It is proposed to join the state league and play regular league ball. About $500 was subscribed by those present. A soliciting committee composed of O. C. Teel, Alf. McCall and Geo. Hutchinson was appointed. Their efforts ought to meet with generous response and make the movement a success from the start. The next meeting will be held Monday night. Everybody attend.

George Saunders.

Captain George Saunders died Sunday morning at the home of his son Tad south of this city. He was one of the early settlers of this county and kept up and active interest in all public affairs notwithstanding his advanced age. He joined the Union army at the beginning of the Civil war and served with honor until his discharge at the cessation of hostilities. Funeral services were held in the Methodist church conducted by Rev. Stiffler Wednesday afternoon.

Deceased was 82 years 22 days old at the time of his death. His wife preceded him to the great beyond about four years ago. Interment was made in the Red Cloud cemetery.

Mrs. R. B. Fulton.

Mrs. R. B. Fulton died on Saturday morning, February 19th, as the result of the accident in which she sustained a fracture of the hip some days ago. The funeral was from the residence on Tuesday afternoon, the memorial address being delivered by Rev. I. W. Eison, a former pastor, who was assisted in the service by Rev. A. A. Cressman. The following obituary was read at the service:

Adelaide E. Huzen was born at Sharon, Penn., on the 16th day of August, 1835. Her parents removed to Iowa in the year 1848, where she grew to womanhood, and was united in marriage to R. B. Fulton, Oct. 9th, 1856. During the period of the Civil war she remained at home with two children, while her husband was in the army; thus she rendered possibly inconspicuous but nevertheless very faithful and important service to the union cause. The family removed to Nebraska in 1873, where all of the vicissitudes of pioneer life were for the second time endured by her. What these amounted to the novice will never realize. The cold, the heat, the never weary wind, the failing crops, we read of these now with a shudder, and confess an abiding, never to be paid debt to those who zeal and patient effort converted the primal wilderness into a garden of the Lord.

Her decease occurred on February 19, she leaving surviving her husband and two sons, Willis and Victor B. Fulton; a daughter preceded her by some years to the home beyond. There are also three grand-children, Mildred, Donald and Robert, children of V. B. Fulton. Mrs. Fulton will be remembered as a woman of most delightful spirit, faithful, charitable and very unassuming. "She was," said an old citizen, "The most unselfish woman I have ever known."

Few bereaved homes have missed her attention, in this community, and while strength was given to her, there were few indeed who were sick and suffering that she did not in some way reach and help. In the church and abroad in the community her place will be hard to fill; she died full of years and of good works, and her memory will be cherished by all who ever knew her, and will prove lasting consolation to those who mourn her departure. The ranks are filling on the other side, she has reached home.
