In a great measure the commercial standing of a town is reckoned according to the number and value of its business enterprises; its moral standing, according to the number and power of its institutions, exerting a good influence as opposed to those exerting a bad. These things being true, it should be the intent of the citizens of a place to encourage such new enterprises as tend in any way to make the place better; for a town is greatly what its citizens make it, nothing more and nothing less.

Mrs. Reigle
Mrs. Reigle, aged 80 years, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Adam Morhart Tuesday afternoon after a long illness. A few months ago she received a stroke of paralysis and was sick for several weeks, but finally rallied. A few days ago she was again taken ill from the same cause, but being old and feeble could not withstand the trouble and after lingering a few days finally passed away in the presence of most of her children. She had lived in Red Cloud more than a third of a century, coming here with her husband in the early pioneer days and has lived here ever since. She was a kind neighbor and loved by all who knewed her. The following children are left to mourn: Mrs. Adam Morhart, Mrs. J. H. Kellogg, Charley Reigle, Mrs. Liggitt and Mrs. Rickards. The funeral occurred today and she was laid to rest in the Red Cloud cemetery.

In Memory
Thomas Boren was born in Adams County, Ill., February 16th, 1836, and died at his home near Cowles, Neb., May 9, 1910 being 74 years, 2 months and 23 days of age. He was married to Mary J. Beecher August 14th, 1862. To this union was born 5 children—4 boys and 1 girl.
From Adams County he moved to West Point, Hancock County, Ill. From there he came to Nebraska and settled on the farm upon which he has resided ever since.
He was one of a family of 13 children. One brother in Illinois preceeding him in death only two days.
He was a man of generous impulses and never forgot the hospitable ways of the pioneer. The stranger, even though a beggar, never failed to find food and shelter if he sought it at his hands, and he was at home by the bedside of the sick and delighted in all kinds and neighborly offices. He had borne adversity bravely and enjoyed prosperity quietly. He had filled the various relations of life, as son, husband, father brother, friend, and filled them well. Who can do more?
But he is gone! Another name is stricken from the ever lessening roll of our old settlers, and a solitary woman in the sunset of life, and a lonely home, are left to attest how sadly they will miss him. It must be so; these tender human ties cannot be severed without a pang. Yet in such a death there is really no cause for grief. His life work was done, and well done. He had passed his golden wedding day and wearied with life's duties and cares, weary of suffering and waiting, he lay down to rest.
"Tired! ah, yes! so tired dear,
I shall soundly sleep tonight,
With never a dream and never a fear,
To wake in the morning light."
He was a man who united sound sense with strong convictions, and a candid, outspoken temper, eminently fitted to mould the rude elements of pioneer society into form and consistency, and aid in raising a high standard of citizenship in our young and growing state. How much this community owes him and such as he, it is impossible to estimate, though it would be a grateful task to trace his influence through some of the more direct channels, to hold him up in these degenerate days, in his various characters of husband, and father, of neighbor and friend, to speak of the sons and daughter he has reared to perpetuate his name and emulate his virtues. But it comes not within the scope of this brief article to do so. Suffice it to say, he lived nobly and died peacefully at the advance age of 74 years. The stern Reaper found him, "as a shock of corn, fully ripe for the harvest."
Not for him be our tears! rather let us crown his grave with garlands, few of us will live as long or as well, and fewer yet will the Angel of Death greet with such a loving touch.
He was a member of the Cowles M. E. church.
The funeral services were conducted at Cowles by Rev. Stiffler of Red Cloud assisted by Rev. Angle of Cowles and interment was made in the Cowles cemetery.
