The value of a summer institute depends more upon the individual teachers than upon any other element of the institute. However careful the Superintendent is in getting able instructors it can all be set at naught if the teachers themselves do not put forth efforts to get the most out of it. Judging by a short visit to the instruction rooms we believe that the teachers this year are alive to their own interests and are doing real work. The instructors are efficient and every thing possible has been anticipated that will in any way add to the comfort of the teachers. In the language of the Examiner "Welcome to our city."

Evidently the base ball management has whispered something into the ears of our players. They have returned to life and act like real wide awake men. We are with you boys just as long as you keep awake and play the game. Win or lose it is all the same to us provided you do your best. There is nothing that will kill base ball fever like listlessness on the part of the players. Our team is the best in the league and has the ability to capture the pennant. The boys play better all around ball than any team that comes here and by official score they are the best batters and have the best pitchers. It is no disgrace to lose a spirited game but it is most discouraging to witness a game devoid of spirit, snap and enthusiasm. The management is to be commended for tightening up the strings. This is their right. Men who sell their time ought to give value received and deliver the goods.

Bladen will have a special election this month to see whether or not they will have water works and electric lights. We hope the bonds will carry and that at least the water works proposition will carry because Bladen is a good live town and we would not want an unexpected fire to come along and wipe her off the face of the earth. It is a sign of progress when a town begins to wake up to the necessities of protection and convenience.

Omaha papers complain about the "senseless prejudice of ruralists against anything emanating from Omaha." The trouble with Omaha is that the people there seem to think that they own the State of Nebraska. They have no conception of the finer sensibilities but are ready at all times to gobble up everything in sight. If they cannot get all they want they go home and sulk. At both of the big state conventions last week the delegates from Omaha called odium upon themselves simply because they took the position that Omaha was against and hence the whole state should fall into line and let them have their arrogant way. If Omaha really desires to obtain the good will of the rest of the state she must adopt different tactics. The biggest city in the state ought to be big enough to realize that winsomeness goes farther to gain favor than does bulldozing. The trouble with Omaha is that she is so self centered that she can't see anything but her own reflection.

In many towns of this size woman's clubs are numerous, and while they are criticized by some, they are certainly beneficial in many ways. In small towns and villages the club has been a special providence to many a weary mother or to the woman of few early advantages and large aspirations. In our great cities women's clubs have been the first to institute social reforms and to call public attention to crying evils. They have controlled superficial and selfish customs until such customs have become obsolete. In home government and the training of children they long ago struck the key-note of a grand chord of reform which will become more and more harmonious as the years roll by. Out of the selfish "ego" they have evolved the progressive "we." They have strengthened two weak hands with the combined power of twenty or a hundred they have taken a dull blunt gem of thought and polished it until it has been fit for the purest setting in refined gold; they have mastered great difficulties, conquered absurd prejudices, and solved difficult problems; and the grandest work of all has been to teach the women their own possibilities and the glory of their own heritage.

Bryan in Defeat.

Bryan's meanest enemy could not have hoped for a more signal defeat than was administered to the national democratic leader by the Nebraska democratic convention in Grand Island last Tuesday. It was a throwdown, pure and simple. Democrats vied with each other in throwing clubs at the man whom they had hitherto followed as a leader. Every weapon known in political warfare was hurled at the head of a man who through the years has held the undisputed control of the democratic organization in his state. In his effort to get county option into the platform Mr. Bryan could rally only two hundred votes out of the 886.

But Bryan invited the assaults upon him. At his first appearance in support of his county option plank in the platform he boldly stated that he asked no man's sympathy. He regretted that he stood opposed to the certain majority of the convention, but he said he had always been ready to stand alone in any fight in which he believed he was right. He told the delegates that if they found anything inconsistent or undemocratic in his conduct he invited their censure, and asked that they spare him not. They took him at his word.—Columbus Telegram.

Bryan at Grand Island.

The editor of this paper attended the democratic state convention at Grand Island and we feel we do not exaggerate the least in declaring that for dramatic situations and incidents, display of oratory, invective and withering sarcasm by those skilled in rhetoric and logic it was a struggle such as was never witnessed before in Nebraska and in many particulars was the most intensely interesting and exciting political battle ever waged on a convention floor in this or any state in the union. It was a Titanic struggle pitted against one man—W. J. Bryan—and when all was said and done and the smoke of battle had lifted from the scene, there seemed but one inevitable conclusion, and that was that it was turning down of a great leader that to his friends could not have been considered otherwise than painfully humiliating. Never did the genius of Bryan as an orator shine with greater lustre. Indeed, there were those present at Chicago who heard the great speech which swayed a convention, electrified the people at

Institute In Session.

TEACHERS ENTHUSIASTIC

Superintendent Pleased.

The twenty-ninth annual session of the Webster County Institute is being held in this city under the efficient management of Superintendent Mabel Day. More than one hundred teachers are enrolled which shows that they value the institute highly. The instructors are exceptionally good and excellent work is being done. Monday evening the teachers of this city tendered a reception to the visiting teachers and a most enjoyable evening is reported.

The teachers of Webster County evidently desire to equip themselves thoroughly so as to render the very best service possible. This county is one of the leading counties in the state and we are pleased to note that our teachers have high professional ideas. Miss Day is evidently pleased with the large enrollment and the enthusiastic manner in which the teachers are taking hold of the work. This is one of the most successful institutes ever held in the county and the credit largely belongs to our County Superintendent.

Aside from the regular instructions several lectures have been delivered much to the enjoyment of the teachers.
