"A sweet new blossom of humanity; Fresh fallen from God's own home to flower on earth."

Thus spoke S. R. Florance as he came down town Monday morning, taking two high steps at a time. "Not a lifeless, useless toy, we've a lively, bounding boy." Verily "what is home without a baby?" This paper congratulates the proud parents and trusts that promising boy may grow into manhood and fill the sunset of his parents' life with comfort and happiness such as can only come from a dutiful child.

If you desire to witness a scene of domestic bliss just step into the home of Noble Ball. It takes the ordinary man some to adapt himself to circumstances, but not so with Noble. He at once ordered his overall washed, starched and ironed and placed in the bureau drawer; his working tools polished and hung up in the summer kitchen; he then donned his "go to meeting clothes," and now occupies the best easy chair in the parlor, where he may be found any hour of the day or night holding in his parental arms eight pounds of unsullied bliss, and if you approach the home softly you will hear him singing, "Hush my babe, lie still and slumber." Surely this is a picture for the angels to gaze upon. Noble now says if any of our citizens want work done in his line they must pass on to the next town as he mistook his calling.

Just as much care, in fact a little more, should be exercised in buying electric and irons, as in buying any thing else. Some irons use more electricity than others in doing the same work. Get your electric irons of Montarr Bros., they carry the authorized iron. Be careful of "just as good" electric irons.

On Saturday, Oct. 1, we will put on sale our entire stock of Buggies and Carriages at 5 per cent above cost. This means a chance at any vehicle in our warehouse; nothing will be reserved.
