IS CROWNED KING

GEORGE V OF ENGLAND RECEIVES
INSIGNIA OF POWER.

A PROUD DAY FOR BRITANNIA

Royalty All a-Glitter Within Its Sacred
Precincts, and Nabobs of Lesser
Light Shine in Subdued
Splendor.

King George V, crowned with impressive ceremonies in Westminster abbey, is the sixth ruler of the house of Hanover, son of the late King Edward VII and grandson of Queen Victoria. He is forty-six years old this month.

London.—On Thursday, the day of the crowning of George V king of the united kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British dominions beyond the seas, nothing had been wanting to make the solemn and impressive ceremony one long to be remembered, not only throughout the country, but in every corner of the great empire. Never before in history has the imperial note been struck in such magnificent manner. Its impartial aspect undoubtedly has been the most remarkable feature of the coronation.

George V, more than any sovereign in the past, represents the embodiment of the imperial idea. He only of all his predecessors on the throne traveled through his vast domains and thus acquainted himself at first hand with the needs and aspirations of all the various peoples of his empire.

Then, by happy coincidence the imperial coronation sitting at the time of the coronation enabled all the representatives of the king's over-sea dominions to participate in the significant ceremony at the opening of the new reign, which, if hopes of those attending the conference bear fruit, will bring all parts of the empire into closer and more intimate relations.

The great state pageant was carried through with dignity and impressiveness and made a deep impression upon all those privileged to witness it, and it was accompanied by an outburst of loyalty throughout the kingdom that might appear surprising at a period in the world's history when thrones no longer appear to be established on the surest foundations.

The remotest suburbs of the great city and every village in the land gave evidence of devotion and loyalty to the throne. Not the humblest home but displayed a flag or illuminated device, portraits of the king and queen and a loyal motto.

The Worth of the Voice.
How wonderful is the human voice! It is indeed the organ of the soul! The intellect of man sits enthroned visibly upon his forehead and in his eye, and the heart of man is written upon his countenance. But the soul reveals itself in the voice only; as God revealed himself to the prophet of old in the still, small voice, and in the voice from the burning bush. The soul of man is audible, not visible. A sound alone betrays the flowing of the eternal fountain, invisible to man.—Longfellow: Hyperion.

WANTED TO SLEEP
Curious That a Tired Preacher Should Have Such Desire.

A minister speaks of the curious effect of Grape-Nuts food on him and how it has relieved him.

"You will doubtless understand how the suffering from indigestion with which I used to be troubled made my work an almost unendurable burden; and why it was that after my Sabbath duties had been performed, sleep was a stranger to my pillow till nearly daylight.

"I had to be very careful as to what I ate, and even with all my care I experienced poignant physical distress after meals, and my food never satisfied me.

"Since I began the use of Grape-Nuts the benefits I have derived from it are very definite, I no longer suffer from indigestion, and I began to improve from the time Grape-Nuts appeared on our table.

"I find that by eating a dish of this food after my Sabbath work is done, (and I always do so now) my nerves are quieted and rest and refreshing sleep are ensured me.

"I feel that I could not possibly do without Grape-Nuts food, now that I know its value. It is invariably on our table—we feel that we need it to make the meal complete and our children will eat Grape-Nuts when they cannot be persuaded to touch anything else."
