One of the town divines was heard to remark one day this week, that it appeared to him as though the editor had taken an unfair advantage of the ministers by letting them take the first issue, thus, in a way, holding them up as a target, for the other organizations. Such was not our intentions, but knowing them to be men of broad minds (and shoulders) we gave them the lead.

Next Tuesday the country comes into its own again—or to be more precise, the affairs of this great nation are placed in the hands of a Democrat, President Woodrow Wilson. We had intended witnessing the ceremonies attending his inauguration, but on making our preparations, and we are short the where-with on which to stay with after we get there, which fact we are of the opinion is due to the long reign of Republican policies.

Editor Hale has been hobnobbing with the town divines this week. He turned the Chief over to them to edit, and the "boys" did a pretty good job. But just how the parsons could connive with the "devil," passeth our understanding, but they did and survived the ordeal.—Com Ad.

We cannot help but note the anxiety displayed by our contemporary for the safety of the parsons during this said ordeal. Seems to us that some sympathy is due the "devil."

F. G. Turnure, who last week purchased his brother's interest in the firm of Turnure Bros., has taken his son, Floyd, into partnership with him and the new firm is now to be known as F. G. Turnure & Son. Floyd is a model young man, and with the practical business training which he will secure from so able an instructor as his father, it is safe to say he will make rapid progress in the mercantile world. To the new firm of F. G. Turnure & Son, the Chief extends congratulations.

The International Opera Company was the fourth number of the Lecture Course, and was given at the Opera House on Tuesday evening. This number, which consisted of an entirely musical program, was up to the usual high standard of entertainment which Dr. Boles, the efficient manager of the Lecture Course, has secured for the people of this place, and notwithstanding the fact that the large audience which had assembled to witness this number, were not permitted to sit on their hands, this request being made personally by the Dr. on the opening of the entertainment, it was thoroughly enjoyed by all. On Saturday evening at the Opera House the fifth number will be given. This number will consist of a musical program and a lecture by Sylvester Long.

Died

The people of this vicinity were startled to hear the report Saturday afternoon to learn of the death of Solomon U. Beckwith.

He had been seen on the streets of this city the day before, apparently in good health, and to the majority of those acquainted it was unknown that there was anything impairing his strength and activity. The morning of his death, he had gone on about his work as usual, and had worked with his usual vigor. He had some trouble with his horses, occasioning the exertion of his strength, a little more than common, perhaps, and after returning the hay rack, he complained of some pain in his chest. His wife tried to get him to drink a cup of tea. She left him for a moment and was shocked upon her return to find him lying back in the chair unconscious. The near neighbors were immediately summoned, but arrived too late to be of any assistance, although their answer to the call for help was immediate.

Mr. Beckwith and family have resided near Red Cloud about twenty-five years. They removed to this county March 11, 1886.

Mr. Beckwith was by occupation a carpenter and house builder, his latest work of importance was the erection of the beautiful residence of C. J. Pope, completed a short time ago.

He was industrious, economical and prudent, he succeeded in accumulating a respectable amount of property. He was a man who deserved and retained the respect of his fellowmen.

Mr. Beckwith was born at Constantine, Michigan, Dec. 8, 1856. He was married Dec. 14, 1881, to Miss Martha Willemin at Constantine, Michigan.

He was 56 years, 2 months and 14 days old at the time of his death.

There were four children born to this union of whom three survive him. Lois is a stenographer in Omaha. Bruce has recently graduated at the State University in a course of Mechanical engineering, and immediately secured a responsible and lucrative position in Ohio which he is now occupying with credit. Edith quit school on account of illness after finishing the sophomore year in the class of 1914, in the schools of this city. The eldest daughter Mabel, died last May, after completing her studies in the public schools and taking a course as a trained nurse in Mercy hospital.

Mr. Beckwith served two terms as member of the Board of Education of this city.

The funeral services were conducted from the residence Wednesday afternoon, the Rev. W. F. Cole officiating.

Bruce and Lois were present to comfort their mother and sister in their distress. The sympathy of the entire community is with the sorrowing family, which so suddenly found itself bereft of a kind father.
