Owing to the lack of space we are compelled to leave out the standing of the Chief's Auto contest. The contest is growing in interest every week and several new subscribers joined The Chief's family this week. Below we give the standing of the two highest contestants.

Miss Gertrude Cartwright.....55,350
Miss Elenor Gilham.....54,100

E. J. Overing Jr., of the firm of Overing Bros. and Company, left for Wray, Colorado, on Monday, where he spent several days attending to business matters. The quality of workmanship on the same, together with square dealing and legitimate prices, have won for this firm an enviable reputation, and secured for them considerable outside business.

B. E. McFarland, one of the leading grocers of this place, left on Monday for Omaha, where he intends purchasing some supplies for his store here, and to attend a meeting of The Nebraska Retail Dealers Association. The meeting will be largely attended, and it is safe to predict that should any plan be devised whereby the consumer can be given a trifle more for his hard earned dollar, that Ben will return home with the complete formula.

Last Saturday afternoon the millinery openings of both Mrs. Burden and Mrs. C. W. Barrett took place. The day was an ideal one, and the feminine sex were out in numbers to enjoy the feast (which since time memorial has proven such an expensive one to dear old dad). At the Burden millinery parlor the Betz orchestra discoursed sweet strains of music both in the afternoon and evening, and at both millinery parlors all the new styles, etc., of spring millinery was displayed in profusion.

Last Friday and Saturday Edward Hanson, the up-to-date hardware and implement dealer, held a "spring opening" at which time he had on display a complete line of implements, farm machinery, etc., which are so much in demand at this season of the year. There were several representatives from the various factories on hand, who thoroughly demonstrated the different points of merit of their respective articles, and the opening was largely attended by farmers from all over the county. In all, the opening proved a big success, and Mr. Hanson is to be congratulated for his efforts to keep in the front ranks. The sales for the two days amounted to about $2500.
