This Government Won't Put Its Money

In a bank that does not guarantee it against loss. Why Should You?

The United States will not deposit a dollar in a National Bank, on any other bank, unless the bank furnishes a bond for twice the amount deposited.

The United States Government can at any time make an investigation of any National Bank and learn all about its resources. But still the Government demands a guarantee for its deposits—why shouldn't YOU have protection.

Your deposits in this bank are protected by the State Guaranty Law—no matter what happens YOU CAN'T LOSE!

Charley McGuire "Mitch" Is On The Job Has Gone to Rest

The citizens of Red Cloud were greatly shocked last Thursday evening to hear of the death of Charley McGuire.

He was a young man of more than the average intellectual ability, and though for the past ten years he had been crippled from inflammatory rheumatism, yet was able by the use of crutches to get around and enjoy the friendships he was permitted to make, the occupations and amusements which were possible to him.

Charley had no bad habits, and was an amiable, cheerful, hopeful young fellow, ambitious for such achievement as lay before him, and striving for such attainment as might be reached. His death brought home vividly to us how near we all stand to that shadowy line between life and death.

He was 29 years 8 months and 26 days of age.

The funeral services were held at his home on Sunday morning, and amid a profusion of flowers, which in a measure attested the esteem in which he was held by all who knew him, he was tenderly laid to rest beside his mother in the Riverton cemetery.

Elkhorn Valley Editors For State Booster Edition

Omaha, Neb., July 1st. The Elkhorn Valley Editorial Association, in session at Rushville, Neb., last Saturday unanimously endorsed and pledged co-operation with the plan to get out a booster edition, as proposed by the Nebraska Press Association. After the special edition had been explained by Manager Parrish of the Omaha Publicity Bureau, a motion was made that the Elkhorn editorial men get behind the movement. The motion was carried without a dissenting vote.

"The plan is the best I have had brought to my notice for many years," said I. M. Rice, president of the association. "And you can rest assured that our boys will do their part."

Details of the Booster edition are being arranged by a special committee from the executive committee of the State Press Association.

Last Bunch Sold Well

W. M. Zion of Inavale, Neb., brought down today 2 carloads of cattle, his windup shipment of spring feeding. In this consignment Mr. Zion had a carload of handy weight steers that brought $8.45, also a carload of yearling steers and heifers that sold for $8.15.—Kansas City Drovers Telegram, June 26th.

The following recently appeared in the Providence, Rhode Island, Journal regarding the playing of Clarence Mitchell, the Franklin boy, who is a member of the Providence base ball team of the International league, and shows that "Mitch" is still in the game, playing sterling ball. Manager Donovan benched Powell and sent Mitchell into centerfield, and the big fellow looked the goods. In five trips to the plate he made two hits and walked twice, grounding to Martin the other time. It was in the field, however, that his star shone brightest and his stunt of pulling down two terrific line drives at the edge of the crowd, taking both on succeeding batters with one hand while racing back at full speed will not be duplicated right away. He was given a rousing reception by the crowd as he came in to the bench.—Sporting News.

The Birth Of A New Nation

The distinguishing characteristic of civilized man is his power to organize himself and fellows into cooperative societies for work or play.

The significant fact of the American revolution is the liberty achieved by the colonists to organize themselves without asking the permission of England.

Individual freedom was a possession of the Englishmen in the colonies to a greater degree even than the Englishmen in England enjoyed. Their condition in this respect would not have justified the rebellion, nor would the achievement have sufficiently rewarded the sacrifice that followed. But associated liberty was almost denied. That was the liberty demanded, and demanded urgently, by the conditions.

The colonists were not permitted to organize for defense against the Indians, for industry, or commerce, or self government, except on the smallest scale.

The Revolution won this freedom of unlimited organization. The constitution fixed the spheres of nation and state, and then the American showed to the world the splendid powers of the race to organize itself in every direction when given freedom.

There were five cities in the whole country. Philadelphia with 30,000, New York with 20,000 and Boston, Charleston and Baltimore with less numbers.

There was not what could be called a manufacturing establishment on the continent. There were no municipal improvements, no highways, nothing that required the associated efforts of a dozen men working through a number of years to build or create.

With a grand, undeveloped continent behind them, mountain torrents to supply them with incalculable power for manufacture, the sea before them to carry their commerce to all parts of the world, the colonists were helpless because their liberty to organize was too limited to form the undertaking of any enterprise beyond the scope of individual achievement. They could not repel the Indians from the frontier. They could build no Pattersons, no Lowells, no Pittsburgs. Yankee invention slumbered because there was no chance given it to work.

With the achievement of independence, the inventiveness of the colonist was stimulated into activity, and he not only organized his fellows, but he taught the world organization on a scale never before dreamed of.

When New York state built the Erie canal by the votes and toil of freemen, a creative work to forward the industry and commerce of man was built such as no empire had ever completed.

The military highways constructed by imperial Rome were dwarfed into insignificance by the transcontinental railroads of America constructed by the free toil of its citizens.

An American constructed the first steamboat, the first railway, invented the telegraph, the aeroplane. An American astonished the world by spinning a bridge across Niagara, and later repeated the undertaking over an arm of the sea at New York City.

America squanders more freely for its government than any two great powers of Europe, and hardly grudges the wasteful extravagance with which its resources are dissipated. There are no industrial corporations on earth equalling in size, extent and wealth the industrial corporations of this country.

It is the free working, free spending of the Americans that offers the strongest inducements to the highest art, the most daring enterprise, the most ingenious cunning, the most learned scholarship of earth. It is on American soil, and from the American purse that genius all over the world looks for its highest compensation.

America leads the world in its great charities, its institutions of beneficence, its provision for the poor and helpless. Its metropolis already out ranks all the cities of the earth past or present London alone excepted in size, and its interior capital of a half century's growth ranks with the proud capitals over whom the centuries have brooded.

America spends more annually for the support of its free schools, its free churches, than can be extorted by the largest empires for the sustenance of state churches and state schools.

A Noted Man Gives Us Praise

The Chief prefers to say kind words when it can and we enjoy as well as others the knowledge that our words are appreciated. It is pleasant, therefore, to receive a letter like the following from a gentleman for whom we entertain the respect that we do for Bishop Beecher. The assurance that some thing in our columns has been deemed worthy of notice by the Bishop is exceedingly gratifying to us.

HASTINGS, NEBR., June 20, 1913.

Editor Red Cloud Chief, Dear Sir:—I beg to acknowledge with thanks your kind reference to the service at the Methodist church last Sunday evening, June 8th. It is sometimes an inspiration and real blessing to have a few kind words spoken in earnest to the living, than to write "obituaries" or "anathemas" post mortem.

Very Sincerely Yours
GEO. A. BEECHER.

An Important Department

Dear Folks-at-large:—Don't let your baby keep you away from the state fair this year. There's something of immense importance for him there. He will have a chance to make $110 for you simply by being on the grounds.

We are proud of Nebraska farms and factories; we are proud of sports and schools and we have exhibits from every one of them at the state fair.

We are also proud of our Nebraska homes and a good baby is the best exhibit that the Nebraska home can put forth. So there is going to be a Baby Show at the state fair, Sept. 1-5, based not on beauty, but physical health and development. To prove that we are in earnest $304 is offered in prizes by the state fair board and $200 by an eastern publication.

Cordially yours,
BETTER BABIES DEPT.,
Nebraska State Fair.

Nebraska Apples

Secretary Marshall of the state horticultural society has estimated that the apple yield from sprayed orchards in Nebraska at 1,500 cars. In eastern Nebraska the crop will be about 125 per cent as compared with the normal while in the northeast and southeast sections he fixes the estimate at 100 per cent.

Red Cloud's celebration tomorrow will be the biggest ever.

Read His Own

Precedent is the slow consumption that eats into the vitals of progress. It throttles ambition and makes drones of people who would and could "make good."

Years ago folks said, "competition is the life of trade." Fiddlesticks! Ideas are the life of trade. Good ideas, well carried out, are the backbone of all successful business.

The locomotive that pulls the "Pennsylvania Special" from New York to Chicago in 18 hours once lived as a big idea in the brain of Stevenson.

When we started in the jewelry business we had a little money and a big idea. The idea was to impress on you that we are selling the very best in jewelry at reasonable prices.

And judging from the splendid growth of the business you have tried it out and found it true.

Still they are a few sceptics—a few "show me" folks. To these we say one little visit—one small purchase will convince you that we have the best goods at the right price. Try it and prove it.

Perhaps you are thinking of making a gift. If so, here's your chance to save money. Gems, jewelry, cut glass, watches and novelties, silverware—an army of bargains are camped in our store. Suppose you come in and look them over today—while the best are still "on deck." You will be glad you came.
