As Others Seen Our Celebration

The three articles which are quoted below reflect somewhat the feelings of the big crowd which attended our celebration on the Fourth. There are several different classes of people who attend celebrations and they all see the big event from their own view point. Usually people see what they look for. We are confident that a great majority of our visitors on that day were well pleased with their trip. The fact that the flying machine man did not appear sorely disappointed all the people, home folks and visitors, and yet any sensible person knows that had the aviator been on the grounds, he could not have made a flight owing to the character of the wind. The sceptical said that it was all a hum bug, that there was no flying man, others said that the city could not raise the money and that the flying man was waiting for his cash before he would come over. The letter from the secretary of the Lebanon Commercial Club made the position of the aviator plain. He would have made five hundred dollars had he made his flight, but he could not, and consequently he received nothing. This money was all raised before any arrangements were made with him.

There was not one word of complaint that we heard in regard to the two free open air exhibitions. These were splendid performances and much enjoyed by the crowd. But when one wants red lemonade and wants it very much peanuts are tasteless even tho they are the best that can be grown and that seems to be the condition in a nutshell.

The crowd was large, there was plenty of amusement and the governor of this great commonwealth was present and delivered an able address. We did our best to give the visitors a good time and fell down in one point only, and that was because we had no control over the elements:

The Fourth.

Most of the people of Campbell stayed at home and devoted their time to trying to keep cool. A number attended the celebration at Red Cloud and those who did feel that they failed to receive adequate returns for the time and money spent. They report a very large crowd there but not enough entertainment to keep everyone interested. The failure of the flying machine to put in an appearance was the crowning disappointment that added much to the grouch of the visitors. Several picnic parties were held in this vicinity and really enjoyable times are reported by those attending. A good many spent the day in the largest field and no doubt felt as good or better than if they had attended some crowded affair all fussed up in a standup collar and being jostled around in the sweltering heat. Quite a large crowd gathered in Campbell at night, some to attend the dance and others to visit among old friends, and it would have made quite a "hit" had the business men provided a nice display of fireworks for their amusement.—Campbell Citizen.

Hard To Please All

The town was more or less depopulated last Friday, July 12th. A great crowd came in from the country and took the morning trains for Red Cloud. Nearly all of those who went to that city to spend the day, returned last evening muttering words of displeasure and disgust. They declared it to be principally a celebration of drunks, and that the program was a one-ring affair when it ought to have been a three ringer. The airship failed to arrive and the ball game was punk they tell us, while the famous band were tight wads with their music. This is the kind of a howl we have heard from a hundred throats. Now we opine that the situation was overdrawn; that indeed Red Cloud presented a good program. Where she fell down and where many another town falls down, is in trying to entertain ten thousand people with a one ring line of attractions. It can't be done. Double and triple sets of amusements must be carried on simultaneously to entertain such a crowd. It costs money to do it, but a tremendous crowd ought not to be solicited to a city unless their complete entertainment is looked after. The trouble is that we expect too much these days from entertainment committees. It was a bad day to handle a crowd and while people are free to criticize, still they should be compassionate.—River-ton Review.

At Red Cloud

As per anticipation, the editor of the Herald spent July 14th in Red Cloud. About fifty of our citizens went along to keep us from getting lonesome. We are told that No. 4, was loaded to the limit and did not stop at Riverton and Inavale, and No. 16 was so crowded that at Riverton the sleepers had to be opened to accommodate the crowds. A special of 12 coaches was run from Wymore. The crowd was estimated between 8000 and 10,000 souls. The jam of humanity on the main streets was terrific.

The Ferris wheel, merry-go-round, trick cyclists and "movies" furnished amusement for the youngsters. There was the seedy country youth with his sweetheart and a roll of bills in his jeans; there was the callow dude with his girl, and a pack of cigarettes and a few dimes in his pocket. Grandma down to the baby were there. Everybody who didn't go elsewhere went to Red Cloud.

The object of our visit was to get acquainted with the newspaper boys and to renew acquaintance with Father Fitzgerald whom we as a boy knew at Auburn, where he was in charge of the Catholic church. He is known down there as Red Cloud's grand old man; he is a friend of all, not a child or street urchin but who knows his pleasant smile or loving pat. Older people find in him a sage advisor and good counsellor. He was solicitous of our parents' welfare and asked that we express his regards to them. He readily acquiesced, when asked to pose for camera. We hope this fine old man will be allowed to live for many years.

Red Cloud has many beautiful residences and her citizens vie with one another as to who can have the prettiest lawn.

Red Cloud also has a courthouse. (We found it, despite the fact that Bro. Hale would not tell its location.) We wonder not that you are ashamed of it. Really it is more disreputable looking than the Bloomington "shack". It is a disgrace to your beautiful city and the site on which it stands.

The flying machine did not fly and the ball game did not interest us, so we boarded No. 11 for Naponee and arrived in plenty of time to see a fine display of fireworks set off from the school campus.—Naponee Herald.

Coroner Amack Proves Efficient

Coroner El Amack, after a faithful search since taking in charge the body of the unknown colored man who died at the depot last Tuesday morning, has succeeded in locating his mother at Topeka, Kansas, and word was received from them requesting that the body be held until today, as she was making an effort to raise the necessary amount of money to defray the expense of having him sent home.

There was nothing at all about the man, by which he could be identified, except the mark, "Harvey E" which was found on the inside of his vest. However, Coroner Amack immediately got busy and exhausted ever know clew, before locating the right parties. He placed an advertisement in the Denver Post, wrote to the superintendent of the dining car service of the Rock Island, after learning in a round about way that the dead man had formerly worked for this company. He also wrote to several parties in Kansas City, after hearing certain things from employees of the C. B. & Q. dining car service at this place, who in fact, claimed to know the man and that his people resided at this place.

All of these, however, turned out fruitless, and on Tuesday morning, at the early hour of 5 a. m., when another employee of the said rail road called him from his bed to tell him he knew the man and his people, it was with but a small bit of confidence left, that Coroner Amack called up the Chief of Police of Topeka, Kansas, and learned from him that the dead man was a familiar character around that city, and was an epileptic and that his name was Harvey Enoch, and that he would immediately notify his mother of his demise.

Consequently Coroner Amack has received word from his mother to hold the body until further word is received tonight, and the chances are that she will procure the necessary amount required to have him sent home. Even should she not do so, due credit should be given Coroner Amack for the faithful way in which he set to work to learn the unknown dead man's identity.

Precedent is the slow consumption that eats into the vitals of progress. It throttles ambition and makes drones of people who would and could "make good."

Years ago folks said, "competition is the life of trade." Fiddlesticks! Ideas are the life of trade. Good ideas, well carried out, are the backbone of all successful business.

The locomotive that pulls the "Pennsylvania Special" from New York to Chicago in 18 hours once lived as a big idea in the brain of Stevenson.

When we started in the jewelry business we had a little money and a big idea. The idea was to impress on you that we are selling the very best in jewelry at reasonable prices.

And judging from the splendid growth of the business you have tried it out and found it true.

Still they are a few sceptics—a few "show me" folks. To these we say one little visit—one small purchase will convince you that we have the best goods at the right price. Try it and prove it.

Perhaps you are thinking of making a gift. If so, here's your chance to save money. Gems, jewelry, cut glass, watches and novelties, silverware—an array of bargains are camped in our store. Suppose you come in and look them over today—while the best are still "on deck." You will be glad you came.

Departed this Life

Wednesday morning the sad news was brought to Red Cloud that Mrs. Estella Hartwell, the beloved wife of A. F. Hartwell, of Inavale, had departed this life, after an extended illness, covering more than a year. For the last nine months she had been seriously ill, and but slight hopes prevailed of her recovery. She was a great sufferer, but bore her troubles with Christian fortitude. She was married to Mr. Hartwell 29 years ago and her husband and two children, Donald and Dorothy survive her. She was 56 years of age. Their many friends in Inavale and this city, extend heartfelt sympathy, in this their hour of sorrow. The funeral takes place at the home, in Inavale, Friday afternoon at one o'clock, and interment will be in the Red Cloud cemetery.
