E. H. Newhouse and wife returned Monday from their eastern trip which included Minneapolis, Minn., where Henry went as Grand Representative of the Grand Encampment of Odd Fellows of Nebraska, to the Sovereign Grand Lodge, after which they visited in Chicago.

Last Friday the Franklin Academy football team and the Red Cloud High School team played the first foot ball game of the season in this city. The visiting team was composed of much larger and heavier material than our home boys, and the visitors carried off the honors to the tune of 19 to 0.

It is always good policy to keep in touch with the best elements surrounding you, and when you have business to transact, select well known, responsible men, and tell them of your plans, and in this connection, if you are considering a loan on your farm, write to The Farmers Trust Co., Beatrice, Nebr., (formerly Smith Brothers). See the advertisement in this issue of the Chief.

The Chamber of Commerce has received the governor's proclamation as regards good roads, and has appointed a committee of four consisting of Dr. Mitchell, Paul Storey, Jim McIntosh and J. A. McArthur to co-operate with the business men and farmers to see that the event is properly observed. Let everyone possessing a team, scraper or shovel, don the blue jeans and be a booster for the good of the community.

Charlie Ashley, convicted of assaulting and then escaping from the city marshal at Lebanon a few weeks back, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary last Friday by Judge Pickler. Charley didn't seem to take the sentence hard at all. He would rather be in a big institution like the pen than in a stuffy county jail.—Smith County Pioneer.

The above mentioned gentleman was taken into custody, by Sheriff Hedge, in this city one Sunday morning some few months ago, and spent several days as a guest at the Hotel Hedge before being taken to the Kansas city.

J. A. Bradford, the distinguished gentleman with the eagle eye, who keeps the tangles out of the Independent Telephone Company's lines at this place, as well as the central girls smiling, "dolled up" a bit on Tuesday morning and departed for Hastings, at which place Mrs. Bradford and children had been visiting for some days past.

Dr. Damerell shipped eight cars of cattle to Chicago Friday.

E. I. Seaton autoed to Superior Friday and returned home Saturday.

B. W. Stewart returned home Monday from a short visit in Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Turnure were Bladen visitors the latter part of the week.

The infant daughter of Wm. Galbraith died on Sunday and was buried on Monday. It is reported that another child is critically ill.

A. H. Camp left the latter part of the week for Burlington, Colorado, where he intends to devote his energies to the plow, harrow, etc., for a spell.

Rev. E. N. Tompkins came down from his new charge at Grand Island on Monday remaining over night. He was accompanied home by A. E. Atkins.

Leland Caldwell arrived home Sunday morning from Glasgow, Montana, where he attended Uncle Samuel's big land drawing, and where he also proved to be one of the lucky ones, he drawing 160 acres of good land.

Paul Storey and wife returned the latter part of the week from the east where they were called owing to the death of Paul's brother, E. H. Storey, who died in Beatrice, Nebr. The remains were taken to Fontanelle, Iowa, for interment.

Mrs. Belle Keagle this week moved her household effects from the Mrs. Julia Warren's house, in the east part of the city to the rooms formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Dumas in the Turnure block. The change was made in order that the lady would be closer to her work in the Walter Warren restaurant.

The Kansas boys, with whom Marshal Christy had considerable grief some few weeks ago, came to town the first of the week and went before His Honor—Mr. J. A. Burden, and paid twenty bones each for the disturbance they raised, thus once again being in good standing with their name on the roll of honor.

Rev. and Mrs. E. N. Tompkins were tendered a farewell reception in the Methodist church parlors on Friday evening. A large crowd was present, all of whom report a pleasant, sociable evening, during which time Rev. John J. Bayne delivered a short address, which was in itself a highly perfumed bouquet directed to the reverend gentleman and wife. Rev. Tompkins replied in his well known creditable manner, speaking in flattering terms of the way he felt sure the church would continue to prosper. Mrs. John Weesner sang a solo in her charming way, and wafers and punch were served the guests.

A deal was closed on Saturday whereby A. H. Carpenter purchased the Bailey & Bailey Shoe Store, taking possession at once. The firm of Bailey & Bailey, which was born in this city some year and a half ago, have by their business like methods, carrying a complete and full line of goods of the best quality, and by courteous treatment, built up a good business. Mr. Carpenter, the new proprietor, needs no introduction to the citizens of this community, as his business ability is a well known factor; and we predict for him the same liberal patronage in the future which the firm of Bailey & Bailey have always enjoyed.

We note in the State Journal under date or Wednesday, October 1st, where a marriage license was issued to Barrett L. Halderman of Heaton, N. D. and Miss May Hadell of Long Island Kansas. The lady is well known here where she has many friends and relatives.

"Canna Ye Boo, Ye Brute?"

Rev. Maxwell Nicholson, when minister of an Edinburgh parish, was called upon to marry a couple in humble life, and in the course of the ceremony he thrice asked the bridegroom whether he took "this woman" as his wedded wife without eliciting a reply. At last the patience of the bride was fairly overtaxed and she thus politely addressed her lord and master, in the hearing of the assembled friends, "Canna ye boo, ye brute?"

Still Demand for Flints.

Millions of flints are produced annually in England by "knappers," who use much the same tools and work in much the same manner as did the men of the Neolithic age. The flints go to Africa, South America and China. Flintlock muskets are still used by many negroes in the depths of Africa, and shipments of the bits of stone find ready market in the benighted regions.

Alfalfa In Rotation

The rainfall in the major portion of Nebraska has been below the normal for the past three years, and during that time many complaints have been made that crops did not do well upon alfalfa sod, that they were apt to burn up while crops on adjoining land remained green.

Because of this many men were vigorous in their denunciation of alfalfa as a rotation crop. The Department of Farm Management at the University has tabulated the results obtained by many Nebraska farmers. In eastern Nebraska 60 percent of the farmers who had planted corn on alfalfa sod reported an increased yield, while of those who reported a decreased yield, all but one stated that the season had been unusually dry. West of the 24 inch rainfall line 46 percent of the reports gave a less yield for corn on alfalfa sod, in every instance the lower yield due to a shortage in rainfall. 71 percent of those whose crop did not do well the first season reported that the second crop was not affected as much by dry weather, and all but four of the remaining 29 percent said that the second season had been dryer than the first. A comparatively small number had followed alfalfa with any other crop than corn, and their results, except on irrigated land, were less favorable.

The reason for corn on alfalfa sod suffering in a dry season is well understood by those who know the deep root system of alfalfa. In August, 1912, it was found that in an alfalfa field at the University Farm there was less than a third as much available moisture in the first ten feet of soil as in corn fields and wheat stubble adjoining.

The majority of men who had tried alfalfa in rotation seemed to believe that the larger crops of later years would make up many times over for any shortage of the first crop in a dry season.

Crowds See Dairy Train

More than 10,000 farmers have listened to lectures on dairy, seen the famous dairy stock and studied the exhibits on the dairy train during the last two weeks. This train traversed only northwest Nebraska, but it is planned by the University and the State Dairy Association to visit other sections of the State as soon as possible. The lecturers and exhibits were under the direction of the Dairy Department of the University. In addition to the large number of farmers many town people and school children were in attendance.
