San Francisco recently received its first cargo of lumber from the Tongass national forest, Alaska. The shipment consisted of 1,500,000 feet of Sitka spruce.

Over one hundred acres on the Florida national forest will be sown to Maritime pine seed this fall. This pine is the source of the French turpentine industry.

October marks the beginning of the Institute season. There is usually a good attendance because the corn harvesting season is not yet really started and the weather is unusually good. In fact, October is one of the best months for Institutes. Institutes will be held at fifteen different points in October at which places a total of twenty days' work will be given. In addition to this there will be four Short Courses at the towns of Hershey, Paxton, Utica and Farnam, making a total of twenty more days work. This makes a grand total of nineteen points and forty days' work for the month.

At the end of the first week of registration in the University of Nebraska this year there were exactly the same number of students registered as at the end of the first week last year, 2079. In the College of Agriculture, however, there was an increase of about 20 per cent. The agricultural college students now registered numbers 416. Just think of it, about one-fifth of the total number of students in the entire university. In addition to this over one hundred students registered in the Agricultural high school at Curtis and the indications are that registration at the school of agriculture at Lincoln will be larger than ever before. The attendance at the Farmers' Institutes and Short Courses so far this year is also the largest on record.

Members of the church make a mistake when they criticize the church in the presence of their children. It causes the children to form a mistaken judgment about the church. They forget that it is a divine institution and, notwithstanding all the mistakes of men and women in administering its affairs, yet it, and it alone, has the forgiveness of sins and the promise of eternal life, and while the mistakes of men will pass away, yet the church remains forever—it is immortal even on earth—because it is divine. Christ knew how much we would need it when he built it and gave it his own divine life. In the face of all the mistakes of men in governing the church, yet it is divine, and to criticize it too freely, too harshly, before our children, is to mar its divine beauty in their eyes and really to do them an injury.—Madison, (Mo.) Times.

Boys are men that have not got as big as their papas, and girls are women that will be ladies by and by. Man was made before woman. When God looked at Adam he said to himself "Well I think I can do better, if I try again." And he made Eve so much better than Adam that there have been more women than men.

"Boys are a trouble. They wear everything out but soap. If I had my way half the world would be girls and the rest dolls. My papa is so nice that I think he must have been a little girl when he was a little boy."

"Man was made, and on the seventh day he rested. Woman was than made and she has never rested since."—Pittsburg Advocate.

The National Conservation Congress.

Washington, D. C. Oct. 15 Through an announcement made here today it became known that the National Conservation Congress has arranged to establish an organization in every state for the first time in the history of the Conservation movement. The state organizations are to be under the directions of the Congress and are being formed under a policy that will give powerful impetus to the state work of the national body. Plans have been made for nation-wide activity by the state organizations prior to the Fifth session of the Congress which is called to meet in Washington November 18, 19 and 20.

Through the machinery thus created the Congress expects to be able to set in motion in the various states concrete plans for putting into practical effect the conservation principles for which the Congress stands. Heretofore the Congress has contented itself for the most part with working up public sentiment through its annual meetings. In this it has been highly successful. Each of the four great annual meetings of the body has had a noticeable effect on sentiment and legislation.

The Congress is already powerful in its function as a clearing house among the state Conservation Commission and the Conservation committees of various national organizations. Thru these, and particularly the latter, it has been able to exert great influence. President Charles Lathrup Pack feels that its scope should become still broader. To this end he has caused the state organizations to be perfected.

Each state organization will consist primarily of a state vice president and a state secretary. Contrary to custom these officials will not be mere figureheads. Active men of known influence have been selected and are committed to energetic application to the work in hand.

The Vice President for Nebraska is Geo. Coupland of Lincoln and Secretary A. E. Sheldon, Lincoln.

The Currency Bill

The following article from the pen of our friend, F. A. Good, the popular lumber man of Cowles, was observed by us in the column called "The Public Pulse" of the World-Herald a few days ago. It contains much food for thought and as a consequence we reproduce it.

Cowles, Neb., Oct. 6.—To the Editor of the World-Herald: Of course its nothing new to take an editor to task for expressing views contrary to the writer's own. Sometimes when I see the criticisms they publish I think were I an editor there soon would be some censoring done, but I have a complaint to make and so here goes. Why doesn't the World-Herald be a "sure enough" democratic paper? Let me show you how you mislead one who takes you seriously. From oft repeated headlines, cartoons, editorial articles and general makeup of the paper I was led to the conclusion that the currency bill of the administration had little show to pull through—the references to it were such that I felt that the public and their elected representatives had a general apathy about currency legislation and that Mr. Wilson had taken on a white elephant that no one wanted to touch. Imagine my surprise when the house passed the bill 285 to 84. Now if the World-Herald didn't know that the bill was a popular one its staff is a powerfully weak one. If it did know then why didn't you let me in—what's a newspaper for anyway? One of your cartoons a few days ago shows that the bill is to be detained in the senate and today's issue, a head liner proclaims that "Currency Situation Perplexes the President."

Now there are very few people whose opinion is worth while that will deny the proposition that we have the worst currency system of any powerful nation on earth—if that isn't a situation that would make a live president get busy why, you name one that would. And when he gets behind a bill that even its critics admit is better in many ways than the one now extant, an one that nearly every democratic representative and a good big bunch of the republicans voted through in the lower house, then I say it's a bad time for a paper that claims to be either democratic or republican to knock on it.

Here's a present situation: Nebraska banks have more money on deposit than ever before. Go to one of them and try to get a loan on a year's time, or, in fact, any time longer than three months and they will tell you that while the bank has a big surplus that they have "by previous experience found that in a short crop year deposits after the first of the year will shrink and they don't want to be caught in a pinch—a beautiful system, isn't it? Land has not shrunk a dollar an acre, you can't hire a hand for 25 cents a day less than you could a year ago, securities are just as good as ever, but everyone is embarrassed; if a country can thrive in spite of such a condition what would it do if it had a currency bill that gave the common people a chance?

Let me add that if the situation within his own party perplexes the president he must have been looking over the World-Herald or talking with Senator Hitchcock—say, it perplexes me, too.
F. A. Good.
