Where Are You Going This Summer

Not everybody can go to California; the summer will bring thousands from the East to the ranch resorts and hotels of Scenic Colorado, the Black Hills, the Big Horn Mountains, the Absaroka Mountain ranches beyond Cody, THE NATIONAL PARKS—This is going to be a big season for Glacier and Yellowstone National Parks, and for Estes Park, Colorado, just north of Denver, adjoining the new Rocky Mountain National Park. The increased number of Eastern visitors to these western summer localities during the summer of 1914 showed the "grip" that the glorious summer life of the mountains was taking with Eastern people.

Publications now coming off the press. An early mention is made to call them to your attention and to indicate the wisdom of making your plans early. Write me of the locality you have in mind.

Next week is clean-up week. Already the city is nearly clean and by next week there ought not to be a single yard, street or alley that is not fully up to the standard. Remember that the city will send wagons to collect all refuse that is conveniently placed in the streets or alleys. Do it now.

Mr. E. Peters of Guide Rock has published a booklet on the early history of Webster county which gives authentic records of the early days and is interesting to old and young alike. Mr. Peters says in his introduction that he was impelled to write this book because he is asked so many times to relate early day experiences. The book is illustrated with scenes of pioneer days and is easily worth the modest price asked which is thirty-five cents. It is printed by the Guide Rock Signal and is well printed and tastefully arranged. This book should be in every home in the county.

It has been estimated that two thousand dollars a month goes out of this post office to various mail order houses every month in the year. This means about one hundred dollars a day. This money never comes back. If all the residents of this community did all their trading with the mail order houses we would soon be a town of two or three hundred. City property and farm property would greatly decrease in value. A farm that is located near a dead town does not bring very much on the market. The town runs down, the farm runs down and then we wonder why the children are drawn to the city. The way for any community to prosper is for that community to do all its trading within itself. This is the true theory of development. You cannot fill the barrel with water by pouring in an inch stream at the top if the bung hole is left open. What helps one helps all. Trade at home and prosper.

A Lusty Engine

For the Burlington

To build an engine with pulling capacity and yet without a too healthy appetite for coal is the problem of the locomotive designer of today. The Burlington system is just now boasting some freight-pullers that seem to have come near solving this problem. They are tremendous engines in the first place, each weighing with its tender and ready for service nearly 300 tons—576,580 pounds, to be exact. The length over all for each of these engines is 83 feet 9 1/2 inches, which brings it within the limitations of most of the big 90-foot turn-tables along the system.

While these engines are not of the extreme size of some of the giant pushers along the Erie and the Santa Fe, they have begun to make service records out along the Burlington. One of them has already drawn a train of 85 cars over a division 136 miles long and possessing maximum and steady grades of three-eighths of one per cent. This performance was accomplished while the locomotive consumed 634 pounds of coal to the 100-ton-mile at eighty-five cents a ton, equal to nearly thirty cents' worth of coal for 10,000 ton miles. Put the other way around and reduced to actual figures, this lusty little boy on the Burlington hauled 10,000,000 tons of freight one mile for 29.70 cents. No wonder that the "stove committees" out in the round-houses along the Burlington's busy line—those shrewd old fellows who on every road know more about its running than all of the executive heads put together—forget to brag about the engines of yesterday and begin to grant an ungrudging praise to this new-comer among the motive power units of the "Q"—Travel for December.

Must Vaccinate Hogs

Pigs from immune sows are not always free from the liability of having cholera, according to the department of animal pathology at the University Farm. Some litters may be farrowed in infected pens and go past weaning time without becoming infected, while others get cholera within two or three weeks after farrowing. The pigs should be closely watched and if any show signs of cholera they should be given serum alone. This will usually carry them well past weaning time when they can be given the simultaneous treatment. If the herd seems to be extraordinarily susceptible to cholera, however, it will be necessary to give the serum alone more than once in order to carry them several weeks past weaning.

Pigs given the simultaneous treatment soon after weaning sometimes lose this protection within a few months. To acquire a long time immunity, pigs should weigh at least 50 or 60 pounds at the time of receiving the simultaneous treatment. At this weight the immunity usually lasts the ordinary lifetime of the hog, altho in some instances hogs that have proved positively immune at 124 pounds have later developed cholera.

Kill Gophers Now

Gophers are just beginning to work in your alfalfa field. Here are some ways to get rid of them. The returns from a little labor expended now will pay big returns.

Select potatoes about the size of English walnuts; insert an open ended quill about two-thirds of the way thru the potato, half fill the cavity in the potato (made by the quill) with strychnine; plug the balance of the hole with potato, place the medicated potatoes in a basket or pail, allowing them four or five hours to saturate before using. Take a sharp end gate wagon rod and spade and these potatoes out to the field to be treated. By probing with the end gate rod into the ground between the gopher hills, the runways are easily located. When located, carefully uncover the runway, drop in a couple of the potatoes, cover with litter and soil so that the dirt does not fill the original runway and that no light penetrates. Treat each colony in the same manner, and the field will be effectually cleared of the pests. (Note: Strychnine soaked raisins can be substituted for potatoes.)

You can walk easily in the new skirts

Women are to have their own way. The narrow skirts are gone for good.

Safety, comfort and modesty are dominant features of the new skirt modes. You are no longer to be hampered by a skirt that prevents a quick, long step in crossing a busy street.

You'll find these new skirts just the right width, and remarkably graceful in style lines. They bear this mark of style and quality excellence:

The pure wool materials were carefully skrunk before cutting. Every seam was tailor-basted before stitching. No drawing or pulling out of shape in Wooltex Skirts.

With all this superior quality and workmanship you pay no more for Wooltex Skirts than for the ordinary kinds.

You can now choose from a full assortment in coverts, serge, poplin, gabardine and Chud-dah cloth. Colors are black, blues, grays and sand colors.
