This morning, at 10:45, the special train on the Burlington, brought to our city a train load of the business men of St. Louis. Local merchants and citizens met them at the depot and conveyed them in automobiles to the business district where they interviewed our merchants and complimented them on the neat and business-like appearance of our little city. The brass band entertained us with a few choice selections. After a brief stay, they departed for the next town on their list of 49, which they will visit on this trip.

Boost For Red Cloud
I know my town and I love my town,
And I want to help it be
As great a town to every one
As it seems to be to me.
I praise my town and I cheer my town
And I try to spread its fame;
And I know what a splendid thing
'twould be
If you would do the same.
I trust my town and I boost my town,
And I want to do my part
To make it a town that all may praise
From the depth of every heart!
I like my town and I sing my town,
And I want my town to grow;
If I knocked my town, or I blocked
my town,
That wouldn't be nice, you know!
I think my town is the very best town
In all the world—to me!
Or if it's not, I want to get out
And try to make it be!
I talk my town and I preach my town
As I think a fellow should.
Who has more at stake than to win or make
For the love of the common good!
I bet on my town, and I bank on my town,
And I think it fine to feel—
When you know your town and you love your town—
That it's part of your honest zeal.
I'm proud of my town, I love my town,
And I want to help it rise—
And that's the way to help a town—
Not curse it and despise.
—Folger McKenzie in Baltimore Sun.

What Makes A Town?

What makes a town, anyway? Is it the wealth evidenced by the fine homes and splendid store buildings? These may attest the stability and thrift of certain people, but they offer no great inducement to commercial and moral progress. Is it the spirit of good order and law observance? That is a factor only. The sleepest old hamlets that dot a map have this spirit in rank abundance. Is it the schools and churches? May their number ever increase, but they don't make a town—they only culture it. Is it the geographical location, the character of the country surrounding, the shipping facilities, the natural advantages? None of these are essentials. Well, what is it that makes a town, anyway? Just one thing—the unity of the people, the existence of a common bond which causes business and social enemies to put aside all differences when it comes to boosting the town. No town ever made real progress on the way to substantial success without the get-together spirit unanimously adopted. It has rejuvenated old hulks of towns that were yawning their way into endless sleep. It has infused new blood into the heart of commercial life and made thriving cities out of paralytic villages. Natural advantages count for much and prosperity cannot be built on shifting sand, but any town with half a chance can be made to grow and expand and thrive when its citizens join with one accord in the boosting program.—National Grocers Bulletin.
