TRAINING TODAY'S BOYS AND GIRLS

Fighting Instinct Diverted Into Other Channels.

REAL ENEMIES IMPERSONAL

Healthy Group Rivalries and Competitions Will Absorb Energies That Otherwise Are Likely to Be Misdirected.

By SIDONIE M. GRUENBERG.

THERE are three possible attitudes toward the instincts of children. At one extreme we find the rather crude naturalism which assumes that whatever is "natural" must be right; this leads to indifference and indulgence.

In the matter of fighting it is particularly difficult to form balanced judgments and to develop sane plans. With our usual habit of emphasizing one aspect of a problem to the exclusion of all others, we either fix our attention on the injuries resulting from conflict and become extreme pacifists, or we fix the attention upon the need for resisting aggression, for defending our "rights," and become belligerent.

Our problem is therefore to make full use of youth's eagerness to exert effort, to sacrifice, to devote itself. But we must guard, on the one hand, against drawing upon the antisocial and inhuman motives, and, on the other hand, against allowing the exertions to result in injuries, whether personal or economical.

In childhood, playing soldier means, usually, merely parading or hunting or stalking. Presently, however, the children become interested in each other as members of groups. Because of this interest it becomes possible for us to cultivate an attitude of exclusiveness or antagonism toward all who are not members of the immediate group.

But even before the child becomes interested in team plays or group action of any kind, we utilize essentially the same interest in conflict when we encourage rivalry, whether at home or in school, through prize contests or through invidious praise and blame.

The bread-baking contests and the dressmaking competitions for girls, like the corn-raising or shop contests for boys, utilize the same motives of rivalry as we find in the ordinary athletic contests or street fights. But the form of the conflict and the material consequences are in no way objectionable.

ized for team play, we begin to get the kinds of sacrifice that the group always demands of the individual, and in many respects the more victorious forms of athletic sports are quite the equivalent of good fighting, so far as the participants are concerned.

We go a step further when the corn clubs conquer insects and fungi, and control the soil and the seasons for the glory of their county or district, for soon the interest may be extended from the mere "honor" of the rivals to the increased contribution to the corn crib at home.

Interest May Be Directed So as to Center Upon the Chasing of Dirt as the Villain.

ing of dirt as the villain of the drama. Now the older children can be led to abandon the group rivalries as they had already outgrown the individual rivalries, and the object of attack can now be made some impersonal enemy, rather than some particular person or group.

These figures are only for the staple grain productions. They do not include the millions of dollars represented by the live stock and dairying industries, or the additional millions included in the root, fruit, and garden crops.

Bibles. The first Bible printed in America was in an Indian language, translated by John Elliott, pioneer missionary to the Indians, and published at Cambridge, Mass., the New Testament in 1663, the entire Bible in 1663. In 1663 one William Bradford proposed to print an English Bible by subscription, the price of the book to subscribers being 20 shillings or a pound sterling.

He Proved It. During the recitation of a college class in natural philosophy, the professor observed a tall, lanky youth in a rear seat, his head drooping, his body relaxed, his eyes half closed, and his legs encumbering the adjacent aisle.

Needed. Senator Kern was talking about a noted foreign statesman. "The people want to get rid of him," he said, "but I'm afraid they can't do without him. They're like the jealous husband."

"A husband was very jealous of his capable, managing wife. She had got him his job and he owed his various advances to her, but, nevertheless, he got so jealous one night that he pointed a revolver at her head."

WHO'S GOT THE MONEY

In Four Staples Alone the Farmers of Western Canada Produced 408 Million Dollars in 1915.

The Calgary (Alberta) printers have a house organ, called "The Magnet," and in its columns a few weeks ago appeared an article entitled "Who's Got the Money?" It was cleverly written, and but for its length, the writer would have been pleased to have copied the article in its entirety.

Reproducing from the article: The Government does not produce money. It can stamp "One Dollar" on a slip of white paper, and we accept it at a dollar's worth, but neither the paper nor the printing are worth a copper.

Let us put it into figures. The farmers of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba last year raised 342,948,000 bushels of wheat. If we take for an average 85 cents a bushel in Manitoba, 81 cents in Saskatchewan, and 79 cents in Alberta the season's wheat crop was worth $280,629,000.

Please note that this wealth is in money. It is not in real estate at inflated values, industrial stocks that are half water and the rest air, fictitious goodwills or unsaleable merchandise. It is in hard cash, or—which is better—hard wheat.

Even honey—you didn't know we raised honey (the bee kind) in this country, did you? Manitoba produced 105,000 pounds in 1915, and there isn't a bee in the province that doesn't swear he's a better honey-sorter than anything in California or Washington.

That's where the money is; in the jeans of our honest friend the farmer, who was too slow to get into the cities when the rest of us saw short-cuts to wealth; who hadn't imagination enough to think a man can make money without earning it, and who was too dull to know that hard work is foolish. Well, he has the laugh now. Likewise the money.—Advertisement.

No Complaints. Secretary Daniels was talking about the splendid morale of the American navy.

"Take the matter of work," he said. "The men work like Trojans. Nowhere does such an endless round of work go on as in our navy."

"I asked a boy apprentice once if he had any complaints to make. "No, sir," the boy answered, looking up from his work. "No, sir; no complaints. Only it's like this, sir—they keep on making you keep on."

Wished Him Well. John G. Zepp of the circuit court, who is known to his friends as "Jack," tells one about a negro funeral oration which he overheard:

"The preacher, who was wearing the conventional silk high hat, white vest and Prince Albert coat, didn't believe in being stingy with his blessings. He began by blessing the corpse, then he blessed the pallbearers, the members of the family of the 'dear departed brother,' the mourners, the neighbors, and everybody, in fact, he could think of, and ended with this exhortation:

"An' good Lord, be merciful and bless Mistah Miller, the undertaker, and may his business evah be prosperous."—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Overrefinement. William Denn Howells, the novelist, was talking about a poet.

"His work is overrefined, overdelicate, overnice," he said.

"In short, his work reminds me of the young husband who said to his bride, at the end of the honeymoon:

"Darling, I'll have to leave you every morning hereafter to go to business; but, to make the parting less abrupt, I'll no longer take the 8:15 express, as I used to do—I'll take the 8:20 slow accommodation."

Every man believes there is a reward laid up in heaven for him, but he is never in a hurry to claim it.

WOMAN HAD NERVOUS TROUBLE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her.

West Danby, N. Y.—"I have had nervous trouble all my life until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nerves and for female troubles and it straightened me out in good shape. I work nearly all the time, as we live on a farm and I have four girls. I do all my sewing and other work with their help, so it shows that I stand it real well. I took the Compound when my ten year old daughter came and it helped me a lot. I have also had my oldest girl take it and it did her lots of good. I keep it in the house all the time and recommend it."—Mrs. DEWITT SINCEBAUGH, West Danby, N. Y.
