TWO a m.-inky dark-that's when Big Ben starts the milkman's day.

Out of bed like a boy on the Fourth-nudges Big Ben to a hush-takes up the tune as he whissles to work.

You've heard the patter of nimble fort-the clink of bottles in the wire tray-the rattle of boxes, of cans and ice-the giddap-the wheels-the merry tune-all mindfal of the world at sleep. You've wondered.

Try Big Ben yourself a little earlier. See how he'll bring you the cream of the day-rich morning hours that start you right and stretch out till night with minutes aplenty for every task And you'll take up his tune and smile through the day.
