Flour Limit Set at Six Pounds Per Month

New rules and regulations effective Monday of this week for the use and distribution of wheat flour have been promulgated by Gordon W. Wattles, food administrator, upon advice from Herbert Hoover. They are:

First—Householders must not use to exceed one and one-half pounds per week of wheat products for each person in the family. This means not more than one and three-fourths lbs. of Victory bread containing the required amount of substitutes and about one-half pound of cooking flour of all kinds combined.

Second—Public eating places and clubs to observe two wheatless days a week, Monday and Wednesday, and one wheatless meal daily as at present.

In addition they are not to serve in the aggregate a total of more than two ounces of wheat products to any one guest at one meal. No wheat products are to be served unless specifically ordered. Public eating establishments are not to buy more than six pounds of wheat flour per month per guest.

Third—Retailers shall not sell more than twenty-four pounds of flour to any town customer at any one time and not more than forty-eight pounds to a country customer at one time. And then only with an equal weight of substitutes.

Fourth—Bakers and grocers are asked to reduce the amount of victory bread sold by selling three-quarter pound loaves where the pound loaf was sold before. Bakers are also asked not to increase the amount of their wheat flour purchases beyond 70 per cent of the monthly amount purchased in the four months prior to March 1st.

Fifth—Manufacturers using wheat products for non-food purposes are directed to cease such use entirely.

Sixth—No limit is placed upon the use of other cereals such as corn, barley, buckwheat, potato flour, etc.

"If we are to supply the necessary wheat to our associates we must comply with these regulations" says Wattles. "We must reduce our consumption one-half, and only strict compliance with these rules will enable us to do so. This is a military necessity and must be so construed."
