

"Bread Winner"
Children Play Clothes

Standing the strain

WHEN you give the playclothes problem the careful consideration it deserves—you invariably buy only such garments you believe will stand the strain of strenuous play.

At each step in the making of "Bread Winner" playclothes this strain is considered. Each garment is reinforced where there is any considerable strain upon it, each garment is finished to the last detail of buttons, buttonholes and seams with the necessary care to withstand this strain.

You can buy our playclothes bearing the label "Bread Winner" with the positive assurance that you have purchased a garment that will absolutely satisfy. Made under the most sanitary conditions, for tiny tots in creepers up to boys of eight and girls of six.

Come into our children's washwear department and let us show you our full line of sturdy garments.

SOILS AND FIELD CROPS

F. H. Stewart, Extension Agronomy Specialist of Lincoln, and Mr. Fisher, of Washington, D. C., spent two days in Webster county, testing soils and looking over field crop conditions.

Mr. Stewart talked to farmers over in Garfield township Thursday night, at School District No. 36. His subject was "Soil Erosion and Sweet Clover." Friday night, he talked to the farmers in School District No. 40 on "Pastures and Seeds." Friday he made soil tests on the farms of L. P. Whiting and J. F. Wilson of Guide Rock. On the Whiting farm, alkali was found in the low wet spots. These wet spots are due to not having proper drainage. The soils salts, such as Potash, Soda and Lime, come out of the soils on the higher ground, and forms in these low places and make it impossible for any vegetation to grow on these spots. In dry weather these spots become very hard and a white crust forms on top. Mr. Stewart advised the farmers east of Guide Rock, who are bothered with alkali to drain their soil by tiling and ditching. This is very valuable land and nothing will grow on it, under present conditions. The following are farmers who were interested in this project: L. P. Whiting, L. W. Sabin, Lewis Yung, Louie Seebe and W. L. Williams.

On the J. F. Wilson farm, soil was examined in an alfalfa field, where part of the alfalfa in the field, was only half as tall as the balance of the field. A sample of this soil was taken into the Experiment Station Laboratories, to see what was wrong. We will hear from it later.

FIELD CROPS

This was Mr. Stewart's first visit to Webster county and he was very much interested in finding out the adaptability of the various crops to our soil conditions.

Mr. Stewart will be back June 28 and 29, to inspect the fields of Kanred wheat and Nebraska No. 21 Kherson oats, that the farmers of this county are growing this year. He will inspect these fields for purity, and after threshing, will make another test for purity and germination. Farmers raising new strains of wheat and oats, and wanting their fields inspected, should write or see me, before the above named dates. This inspection and testing of new varieties of grain will afford the farmers of Webster county an opportunity to get these improved strains and also know what they are getting. We will be able to inform farmers where they can get wheat and oats for seeding purposes.

SOCIAL CROOK IN "THE WHIRLWIND" AN ARCH SCHEMER

Manager Atkins of the Besse Auditorium Tells Something About His New Serial

The Manager of the auditorium does not believe in spoiling an evening's enjoyment by telling his patrons in advance the details of what they are going to see. For that reason he is keeping secret the action of the plot of "The Whirlwind," one episode of which will be shown each week for fifteen weeks at his playhouse.

But he does want to call attention to this serial which he believes is the best from an entertainment standpoint that he has ever booked. Not only does it contain more thrills than the average chapter picture, but it is written around a theme that provides every opportunity for enjoyment by those who love the sensational.

The central figure in the plot is a man known as "The Whirlwind" from his exploits on a motorcycle. After rescuing a beautiful girl, he becomes involved in a net of intrigue in which the future happiness of the girl is involved and his own life is at stake.

Opposed to him is a man who holds a high social position, but who in reality is the leader of a gang of high class crooks. By means of his entrance into the homes of his wealthy companions, the master mind of the criminals learns many things that enables him to pillage and rob.

But the crowning achievement of his career is an attempt to marry the girl, who is wealthy and beautiful. She is infatuated with him and promises to wed him. Then "The Whirlwind" enters her life, and by slow degrees opens her eyes to the true character of her fiance.

When she learns the character of the man she is going to marry, the girl breaks her engagement. But the social crook will not give her up. By many schemes he attempts to force the young woman to marry him, but each time "The Whirlwind" steps in and thwarts him.

How he does this will be shown in fifteen thrilling episodes at the Besse auditorium. The picture starts off with a punch in the first episode, and there is not a minute in which there is not action.

Of course "The Whirlwind" marries the girl in the end, but even as they are ready to face the clergyman, the crook makes one last and desperate attempt to force the girl into his arms.
