FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

WILLIAM FOX Presents

WILLIAM FARNUM in "A TALE OF TWO CITIES" A Stupendous Special Production

The acme of self-sacrifice is depicted in "A Tale of Two Cities," William Fox's picturization of the immortal Dickens masterpiece. A dissipated, ne'er-do-well lawyer's clerk gives his life to save the life of his rival in love.

William Farnum, who plays a double role, is still America's favorite and an unerring drawing card. The double-barreled characterization calls out the best in this great actor, and he does full justice to the novelists' great story.

The setting is splendid, and obviously involved a great deal of effort and expense. As all readers of Dickens know, the action is cast in London and Paris. The time is the troublous period of the French Revolution. The reconstruction of streets and buildings is remarkably faithful to all extant records and to Dickens' description.

The story brings into play all the opposing social forces of the time—the starved populace, later girted with the blood of their former masters; the middle class rising to dominance, and the de-throned aristocracy. In the maelstrom of revolution, and vitally affected by its course, is an individual drama of love and sacrifice. To save for the woman he loves the man who is dear to her, the lawyer's clerk accepts death at the hands of the revolutionists.

The mechanics of the plot involve a great facial likeness between two men of vastly different antecedents and characteristics. This gives Mr. Farnum the opportunity to do both parts, and both with his usual excellence.

Mr. Farnum has the support of an unusually high-calibered cast, including Jewel Carmen, Chas. Clary, Herchel Mayall, Rosita Marstini, Josef Swickard, Ralph Lewis, Wm. Clifford and Mar Robbins.

This is a special feature at the usual price.

Faces Angry Lion Alone While Locked in a Room

If you had to fight a hungry lion, or an irate man, which would you choose?

Charles Hutchison, the cyclonic hero of "The Whirlwind," had no choice. Doubtless he would have chosen the irate man but he was thrust into the lion's cage, and there was no alternative. And there is nothing in the picture to indicate that Hutchison really enjoyed the encounter, tho he did put up a considerable amount of resistance, and finally made his escape.

"The Whirlwind" is now running serially at the Besse theatre tonight. Sixty minutes to the minute is a conservative estimate.

Early Paper Making.

Papyrus, from which the word paper is derived, is not paper at all, and the beginnings of the paper industry are not traced back to it, but to the genuine paper made by the Chinese, from whom it spread to other races and then to Europe in the twelfth century. About the year 1150 a paper mill was started at Fabriano, Italy, which became the principal center for paper making, continuing to the present day. From Italy the art spread to France and Germany and somewhat later to England.

Base Metals and Gold.

The idea of transmuting base metals into gold seems to have had its origin, long before the birth of Christ, in Arabia, where the study of chemistry was remarkably advanced in early days. Lead has been nearly always the metal chosen—as recently, by a professor of the University of Manchester—to be dealt with in this way. Mercury is the next best bet, but silver is highly recommended.

Think This Over.

You don't have to belong to the "laboring classes" to be honest; you don't have to belong to the "capitalistic class" to become wealthy. Most other popular beliefs are about as well founded as those.—Exchange.

INVALE

The young people of Mr. Loeske's Sunday School class in the Methodist church delighted a crowded house Wednesday evening by their presentation of the farce: "Fun on the Podunk Limited." The characters were well chosen and acted their parts to perfection. The play consisted of a representation of a series of amusing incidents on a railroad train running from Potosi to Podunk with numerous stops en route. The proceeds from the entertainment are to be given to the church to start the fund for a basement and addition.

Just before the entertainment started Rev. Schofield announced the formation of the Invale Library Association and launched the membership campaign. The object of this association is to open and maintain a free Public Library and reading room in Invale. Within a few weeks a meeting of the members of the Association will be called for the purpose of electing officers and making the necessary arrangements for the opening of the reading room. A large number indicated their willingness to support the project by taking membership cards. The cards have been placed in the Post Office, Bank and Stores where they may be obtained and membership fees paid. All citizens of Invale and surrounding country who are interested in having a library and are ready to lend their support are invited to become members of the Association.

Sealing Wax in the Middle Ages.

Wax seals were used as far back as 1350 in England. Most of them consisted of a mixture of beeswax and resin, others of pure beeswax. Two seals in the public record office in London of the dates 1309 and 1423, respectively, were composed of wax.

To Clean Diamonds.

Diamond dust is a fine dust produced from cutting diamonds. It is extensively used by jewelers, chiefly for cleaning diamonds. It may be procured in any jewelry store, together with instructions for its use. Another quite satisfactory way to clean diamonds is to make a lather of soap, add a little ammonia and apply this cleansing preparation to the stones with a tooth brush.
