"The Captain of Plymouth"

Friday evening, April 22, in the Auditorium, the High School Chorus under the direction of Mrs. F. R. Hughes will offer the public a comic operetta in three acts, "The Captain of Plymouth". Excellent programs rendered in the past by the students of our schools is sufficient evidence that the people will be assured of a real entertainment in this coming event.

Enters Four Bulls in Big Sale

This morning, Chas. Steward, who is establishing a reputation as a breeder of thoroughbred Shorthorn cattle shipped four of his bulls to Omaha which he will enter in a sale to be held there Monday and Tuesday of next week, by a large number of the cattle breeders of this state. No doubt some new top prices will be made for this breed of cattle.

Installs Pipe Organ

Again Manager Miller of the Auditorium has shown his intentions of giving the theater goers of this community the very best in the entertainment line, as the new pipe organ arrived in the city and is being installed. It is his intention to have it ready to use for this evening's program. It is the first instrument of this kind ever brought to the city and as it is constructed especially for show houses it is needless to say it will add greatly to the entertainment of the people. Mr. Wendolph of McCook who is installing it will preside as organist for a few days, after which Mrs. Roe will be in charge.

Answers Final Summons

Marion Houchin, aged 47 years, who had been in poor health for the past two years, passed away Saturday afternoon at the home of his sister, Mrs. J. F. Smith, in the First ward. The deceased was born and grew to young manhood in Webster county but for several years had resided at Benidje, Minnesota, to which place his remains were shipped Tuesday morning, for burial. A wife and two children and several brothers and sisters are left to mourn his demise.

Martin Paul Foe

Martin Paul, the four months old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Foe, passed away Monday evening after a very brief illness. Funeral services were conducted from the home Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Bates in charge and interment was made in the city cemetery. The sorrowing parents have the sympathy of the community in the loss of their first born.

LEWIS PRAISES WORK OF NEBRASKA AUTHORESS

Nebraska's foremost citizen is Willa Sibert Cather, novelist, and her name will be associated with the state long after other names have been forgotten, according to Sinclair Lewis, himself the author of "Main Street," the best selling piece of fiction published in the last year. Mr. Lewis spoke at the Fontenelle Friday afternoon under the auspices of the Omaha Society of Fine Arts, and in paying his tribute to Miss Cather, he declared:
"Willa Sibert Cather is greater than General Pershing; she is incomparably greater than William Jennings Bryan. She is Nebraska's foremost citizen because through her stories she has made the outside world know Nebraska as no one else has done."

Mr. Lewis took for his subject, "The American Novel as an Interpretation of Life." Seemingly his novel "Main Street," is accomplishing its purpose as an interpretation of life, for since its publication last October, it has run through eighteen editions. This successful writer, a typical, tall, well groomed, diffident sort of American, insisted that Willa Cather is a greater author than he ever dared hope to be, although her books have had no phenomenal sale.

He tacitly extracted a silent pledge from his audience of 500 that before a fortnight had elapsed they would own the four books written by this former Nebraska woman, "O Pioneers," "My Antonia," "Youth and the Bright Medusa" and "The Song of the Lark." The speaker classed Willa Cather, Edith Wharton and the late Frank Norris as a trilogy representing the highest type of fiction writers in America.

No greater novels of American life will be written than Norris' "McTeague," and Edith Wharton's "Ethan Frome," in the opinion of Mr. Lewis. "Both these writers, with the seeing eye of the artist, pierced beneath the surface of the drab, shabby, commonplace life and found in seemingly uninteresting human beings possibilities of tragic suffering and superb emotion," he declared.

Mr. Lewis pleaded for a better understanding between the worldly man of affairs and the author, and between the capitalist and the laborer. He believes that through the reading of great fiction, as in no other way, will all classes get a true perception of life and learn to know the real impulses that actuate their fellow men. Thus, he declared, might racial distinctions, wars and other devastating expressions of hatred vanish.—Omaha World Herald.

Commercial Club Meets

CHEAP ADVICE!

Advice is one of the cheapest things in the world. It's as free as the air. No matter what your troubles may be, just let it be known and advice will come piling in.

The old maid knows how to rear children, the bachelor knows just how a wife should be handled, and even a bald-headed druggist can sell hair tonic and get away with it. But the advice you seek, not the kind that is volunteered, is the kind you want. We are not a volunteer in the advice business, but if you are a patron of our bank and ask advice on financial matters we will be glad to help you in any way we can.
