May Brides Blossom Forth

Renfro-Burg

Mr. Frank Burg of Pawnee City and Miss Alvena Renfro of this city were married Saturday morning, May 21st, by Judge Messmore at Beatrice. The bride is the accomplished daughter of Mrs. Maude Renfro. The announcement of the wedding comes as a surprise to the bride's many friends in Red Cloud. The happy couple became acquainted at Armour where the bride has been teaching school.

The groom is an energetic young merchant standing high in business circles where he is acquainted. They will make their home at Armour.

McPartland-Doyle

Miss Anna Alice McPartland and Joseph Francis Doyle were married Wednesday morning at nine o'clock by Father Fitzgerald at the Catholic church. The bride's sister Agnes acted as bride's maid and Lawrence Doyle, brother of the groom, was best man. Many relatives and friends of the couple witnessed the ceremony. A delightful wedding dinner was served to a large number of guests at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Anna McPartland, who resides northwest of this city.

The bride is a well known school teacher who has just completed a term near Riverton, while the groom is a prosperous farmer. They will make their home on his farm south of this city.

Dr. R. S. Mitchell of Appleton, Wisconsin, arrived in the city Monday evening, preparatory to moving his family to that city.

Frank Foley was called to Norcat, Kansas, Tuesday morning on account of the serious illness of his father. Fireman Gentry of McCook is relieving him.

Mr. and Mrs. Ned Sutton and daughter, Helen, departed Monday evening for Marshalltown, Iowa, they being called there by the death of her mother, Mrs. Barker.

Saturday morning Sheriff Huffer arrested a couple of boys who ran away from home at Fall City. Sheriff McNulty of Fall City was in the city Sunday morning and took the boys home.

The Class Play

The play, "Much Ado About Betty," which was given by twenty-two members of the class of 1921 at the Besse Auditorium last night was one of the finest ever presented here. It was directed by Mrs. George Kaley and she is certainly to be highly commended for the fine training evidenced in every action of the large cast.

The story was told in three acts. Betty, a moving picture star, going South on a vacation loses her memory from the shock of a railway accident and is identified as a rival, Violet Ostrich, from a handbag she carries. In this character she encounters the real Violet, who has just eloped with her fifth husband, Ned O'Hare, and mixes things up sadly for herself and the young couple. Betty was played by Helen Albright in an expert manner. Lloyd Sibert took the part of Lia Leonard, Betty's husband and his interpretation of this part could not be improved upon in any way. The real Violet Ostrich was Ruby Koon, who had indulged in too many marriages for her own peace of mind, but always "got by" with another one. Howard Kaley as Ned O'Hare, Violet's fifth husband was always losing his wife or claimed by the wrong one. Aunt Winnie, the ever watchful aunt of Betty's was just splendidly enacted by Ruth Sutton, but she had a terrible time with that Major Jartree, from Wichita, Kansas, ably impersonated by John Bloom who tried to be a Get Rich Quick Wallingford. Lizzie, slow but sure, as played by Gertrude Wiggins was surely splendid acting for an amateur. E. Z. Ostrich, a former husband of the famous Violet, Lorimer Edson, was always advertising his photo plays but no one would listen to the reading of them. He got so far every time and had to stop.

Mr. Ebenezer O'Hare, Harold Gilbert, was the mirth-quake of the whole evening and acted in a professional way. Gladys Renfro as Mrs. Ebenezer O'Hare was great in her part, having a sprained ankle she had a time keeping watch on her sly husband.

Every character thru out the long list could thus be favorably mentioned if space permitted.

This comedy was bright, clever and full of brisk action and appealed alike to the young and the youthful-hearted. The stage was set by the Graham Furniture Co., and hats for the young ladies were furnished by Mrs. Butler's millinery.

A clever specialty between acts was given in which several young ladies were served tea by Marian McDowell, who made a mistake of putting in pepper for sugar and they sneezed the chorus of their catchy song.

Mr. Windolph in his usual talented manner played several selections on the pipe organ.

The whole evening was one of keen enjoyment from beginning to end. Everyone seemed to delight in the talent and ability of the cast represented by our graduates and agreed on the excellency of their fine choice of a play.
