MORE THAN HE COULD STAND

Mr. Cityman Changed His Mind When Business Partner Began to Brag About His Garden.

What He Said to His Wife—If you want a garden this year you had better hire somebody to make it. I'm not going to try it again. I've figured it out; and if I would spend on my business the time I put in on that garden I would make enough money to keep us in vegetables for fifty years. I am off it for life.

What He Said to His Neighbor—I don't think I'll bother with a garden this year. It doesn't pay; I may do a little; but the digging and the labor—I'm off that for life.

What He Said to His Partner—Well, how's the garden coming along? I'm not doing much with mine this year. What? How high did you say? Already? What seed did you use?

What He Said to His Wife When He Got Home An Hour Early That Day—Call me when dinner's ready. I've got to get the garden started today or I'll never raise a thing.—Life.

Woman, Lovely Woman. It takes a woman longer to make up her mind than it does to make up her face, but with either she usually gets what she is aiming at.—Florida Times-Union.

MAROOINED FOR THREE YEARS

Sailor's Long Period of Loneliness on Small Island Located in the South Seas.

Marooning occasionally brings about a modern Crusoe; just as it did with Alexander Selkirk, who was put ashore at Juan Fernandez, and whose adventures gave Defoe the foundation for "Robinson Crusoe." The trading schooner, Queen Charlotte, passing a small island of the Marquesas in the South seas, landed her boat to investigate the smoke of a fire, as it was understood the island was uninhabited. Here was found a United States seaman, who had been put ashore with three shipmates by their captain, on account of their mutinous conduct. The three others had died, but the man from Connecticut had contrived to live on the fish he caught, and the breadfruit and coconuts and other products which he could gather. When rescued after three years' loneliness, his utensils consisted of great shells, and two cups which he possessed, made from the skulls of his companions.

He Got It. "If Crabbe ever comes around your place to borrow anything don't you let him have it." "You've spoken too late. He was around yesterday." "You chump! What did he borrow?" "Trouble. He's in the hospital now."—Boston Transcript.

SUITABLE ANY DAY AND EVERYWHERE

Something new for the summer outing, that may be worn any day and everywhere and fit in with all the usual vacation backgrounds—that is what the prospective tourist is looking for. Something practical it must be and a little novel and interesting at least. There is a great demand for these out-dooring clothes, informal, but smart and full of style. The shops are presenting many separate skirts, to be worn with suitable blouses, and providing handsome light-weight sweat-coats with hats and parasols to match them, in fine materials, to answer the demand.

Separate skirts for midsummer have taken to stripes and cross-bars, or large checks, in which white and a color appear together. White and black, white and brown, white and orange, white and beige and so on, are made up in neatly fitted plaited models. The sweater-coats approved for wear with them, repeat the color in the skirt usually, but are sometimes of white, or a vivid color may be chosen for wear with black and white skirts, as emerald green, or rose color. White and orange is a favorite in skirts with white sweater-coat and hat, with sometimes a white parasol. Light rose or pink sets—coat, hat and parasol—to be worn with white skirts, are very generally becoming.

Two practical dresses for the summer outing, as shown in the picture, are novel and pretty. One of the heavy crepe weaves in silk was chosen for the model at the left of the two, in white with a cross-bar pattern applied in outline stitches to the skirt.

The coat to match is slashed about the bottom and belted. It has a short rippling cape across the back and elbow sleeves. A wide, plaited ruffle on the blouse makes a frothy cascade of net down the front.

A light-weight, smooth wool fabric in a dark color makes the attractive dress at the right with plaited skirt and eon jacket. It has short sleeves and is worn with a hand-made blouse of fine voile and narrow lace. The sleeves of the jacket are finished with a pretty bit of needlework.

In casting about for something new, the innovation of knitted dresses must not be neglected; they are pretty, in the light tones especially so, and are just dawning over the horizon of the fashion world. They look as if they had much to commend them—it must be conceded that they have novelty.

Dancing Party Frocks. Dancing parties recently have shown some interesting little frocks with pronounced Oriental and Spanish touches. One costume of henna crepe, with Persian embroidery forming a large part of the straight, slim bodice, had the skirt opened in front to show a drop of sand-colored velvet. Oriental hair decorations heightened the effect of the East.

Lines in Veils. There are several new "lines" in veils. One of the latest of these achieves a plaid effect by clever manipulation of the weaving. In another you find the dots graduated—large at the chin and smaller toward the eyes.

The Enchantment of Blouses

BLOUSES are called upon to play many roles in the summer costume and they are most obliging and convenient. Each type of blouse is made in many ways so that there is always a new story to tell of them—a thousand and one enchantments to be recorded. There are bits of splendor among them that lend a grand air to a pretty skirt; there are those that carry a flavor of daintiness and summery color with them and bestow these allurements on tailored suits, and there are those elegancies in hand-made wash blouses that tone up sport or street suits with the refinement of sheer fabrics and hand-wrought needlework.

Two new aspirants for favor, among others in the waist shops, have been chosen for illustration here. One is a kimono blouse of georgette, with short peplum. It is a slip-on model with kimono sleeves outlined and edged with button-hole stitches in silk. Lovely little chiffon roses and rose foliage are applied to it, the foliage embroidered on. A wreath decorates the front, with small clusters at each side that make the starting point for a narrow belt, which ends in similar clusters at the back. Such a blouse may be made in any of the fashionable colors, and worn with a silk or organdy skirt, it is quite equal to high occasions.

The pretty tailored blouse at the right refuses to take life seriously and bears a tailored suit cheerful company. It is made of figured silk in the most approved and simple of tailored styles, so as to leave no doubt as to its mission in a workaday world. It buttons at the front and the cuffs with small pearl buttons and relies upon a ribbon tie at the throat for a finish.

A Lintless Duster Silkoline makes a splendid dust-cloth, as it leaves no trace of lint on the furniture. The bargain counters of the department stores often contain remnants of silkoline which can be purchased for a few cents, and when sprinkled with polish, one has a genuine dustless, lintless, dusting cloth.

NOT WHAT THEY LOOKED FOR Audience, Like Readers of Novels, Wanted What They Had Been Used to Getting.

Dr. William Lyon Phelps of Yale said at a dinner in Philadelphia: "The average popular novelist and his audience are very, very well, it reminds me of a story.

"An oldtime music hall artist turned up, after some years of absence, in a certain provincial town where he had once been a great favorite. He went on in his usual make-up—bulbous red nose and so forth—expecting a grand reception, but all his efforts were received in gloomy silence.

"What's the matter with 'em?' he said afterward to the stage manager, and he dashed a tear from his eye. 'Have they forgotten old Bill?' "No, Bill, they ain't forgotten you; said the manager in a kindly voice. 'No, it ain't that, but you've changed your jokes about. You're telling the one about the star boarder ahead of the one about the limburger, and it upsets 'em.'"

Strange Inconsistencies. Here is one of life's inconsistencies: A mouse is afraid of a man, a man is afraid of a woman, and a woman is afraid of a mouse.—Exchange.

TWO THINGS NOT LOOKED FOR Even Stolid Englishman Saw the Humor in One of Josh Billings' Famous Jokes.

Andrew Carnegie told a good story at the expense of Matthew Arnold in his "Autobiography." It seems that the English critic was not successful in his lectures in the United States, but he was anxious to learn, and he asked how Josh Billings held his audience. The American humorist replied "Well, you mustn't keep them laughing too long, or they will think you are laughing at them. After giving the audience amusement you must become earnest and play the serious role. For instance, 'There are two things in this life for which no man is ever prepared. Who will tell me what these are?' Finally someone cries out, 'Death.' 'Well, who gives me the other?' Many respond—wealth, happiness, strength, marriage, taxes. At last Josh begins solemnly: 'None of you has given the second. There are two things on earth for which no man is ever prepared, and them's twines,' and the house shakes." Mr. Arnold did also.

Too many men who boast of being self-made seem to have been interrupted before the job was finished.
