STATE FARM BUREAU NOTES

John G. Brown, secretary of the Indian Farm Bureau Federation is to be the principle speaker at the annual state convention of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation to be held in Lincoln January 4, 5 and 6. Mr. Brown is also a member of the farmers live stock marketing committee of fifteen and will probably be a member of the board of directors which will have charge of the national live stock marketing organization. A main speaker for the woman's section of the convention Mrs. Chas. Schuttler of Farmington, Missouri, has agreed to be on hand. Mrs. Schuttler is president of the woman's committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation. The voting delegates at the state convention will be limited to two from each county Farm Bureau, one man and one woman.

Recent newspaper dispatches from Washington to a Nebraska daily newspaper quotes Eugene Meyer Jr., of the war finance corporation as saying that the Nebraska farmers themselves are to blame, if they have not received their production of war finance money. "Somebody has been badly misinformed," says H. D. Lute, secretary of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation; "when this statement was called to his attention. When the war finance corporation was resurrected Nebraska farmers by the hundreds with ample security went to their banks only to find that there was quantities of red tape and state limitations that prevented their getting loans in proportion to surrounding states." "This," he says, "was nobody's fault in particular, unless certain bankers might have wanted to discourage the influx of cheaper money, and most of the trouble is being ironed out, but so far as the Nebraska farmer being to blame either from lack of desire or lack of ample security it is all a mistake." Mr. Lute later communicated with members of the war finance committee and found that their ideas coincided with his own.

The endorsement of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes waterway project by the national convention of American Farm Bureau Federation last week at Atlanta, Georgia, is largely due to the efforts of the middle western delegates headed by H. D. Lute, secretary of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation who represented this state. Naturally this project which would bring ocean going vessels into the Chicago port is going to be the greatest benefit to the shippers east of the Rocky mountains and around and west of Chicago. In the original draft of the resolution presented to the convention a mere endorsement of "inland waterways" was as far as the subject was handled and it was only after a fight on the floor by the middle western men that the Great Lakes project was finally specifically brought to the fore.

Annual meetings of county Farm Bureaus throughout the state are being held during the first two weeks of this month for the purpose of electing the county boards and also for the election of delegates to the state convention to be held at Lincoln January 4-5-6. In nearly every instance the county conventions have been attended by enthusiastic audiences, but, according to a representative of state headquarters who has attended several of these meetings, the outstanding feature is that those attending the meetings have definite plans in mind and are putting their shoulders to the wheel for definite purposes. "Their attitude," he says, "is not one that registers the inference that they know some things are wrong but they don't know what to do, but on the other hand their appearance is that of men who know what is wrong and also what they have in mind to remedy the evil. It is the case now of the farmer knowing what he is talking about."

Starke's Holstein Cattle Make Another Record

Records come thick and fast on the Starke Farm. This week one cow, owned by Starke Brothers of Red Cloud, Nebr., is listed with creditable record in the latest official bulletin from the office of Malcolm H. Gardner, Delavan, Wisconsin, Superintendent of Advanced Registry of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

This cow, Pietertje Homestead Ormsby 2d, at the age of five years and two months, produced 6290 lbs. of milk and 24,021 lbs of butter fat, in seven days, equivalent to 30 lbs of butter.

The Champion Holstein for Nebraska in the Full Aged Class for seven day production is Niva Kalmuck, whose record of 6449 lbs. of milk and 36141 lbs. of butter fat, equivalent to 45.1 lbs. of butter, surpasses all others, according to the records of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. This record production was made at the B. B. Davis Farm, Omaha, Nebr.
