Sell Your Cream
Feed Your Calves And Pigs Skimmed Milk
You no doubt will shake your head in disapproval at this suggestion, and yet farmers over the country are doing this very thing and making money by it.
You Can't Afford to Let a Calf Have Cream so long as butter fat is bringing the price that is being paid for it at the present time. Give the pigs and calves an inexpensive food mixed with the skimmed milk and market the cream for cash.
Security Food Compound for calves or pigs contains every element necessary for their healthy growth that the cream contains. Besides being an ideal food it acts as a tonic, giving strength and vitality. A small amount of Security Food mixed with skimmed milk gives surprising results.
A special offer to prove its merits
To get you to using this food we are going to make a special price of $4 for a 25 pound pail, the regular price of which is $5. We also have the Buttermilk Hog Builder. A trial will convince you.

Corn Eaters Banquet Jan. 4
Lincoln, Nebraska, Dec. 24—The many committees from the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce are completing plans for the dinner and the installation of the "Corn Eaters Club of America", which takes place on Wednesday evening, January 4th.
During that week Organized Agriculture meets in Lincoln, bringing hundreds of representatives from the many farm organizations, and it is expected that there will be delegation from each of these organizations in attendance at the dinner.
Briefly, the program calls for a banquet with the menu replete with corn products—from corn soup to corn ice cream, the committees having the motto in charge promising many innovations.
Following the dinner, the Corn Eaters Club of America will be organized. Delegates will receive the corn eaters button and will pledge to use more corn products.
Secretaries of the many chambers of commerce are expected to be in attendance, to return home and assist in the introduction of this movement in their own communities.
This is just the opening gun for a campaign that Lincoln business men hope will be taken up in all parts of the state with the intent of educating the businessmen in this state and in the middle west to further the use of all-corn products—a move certain to reflect back in a larger and more increased use of corn for human consumption.

Chief Begins Fiftieth Year Next Week
This issue of the Chief completes the 50th volume and next week this paper enters its 50th year. It hardly seems possible that the city of Red Cloud and the Chief have been in existence for half a century and yet such is the case. The first issue of this paper made its appearance in July of the year 1872 and has never missed an issue since that time. A large number of the old settlers distinctly remember the first issue that was published. It was quite an achievement in those frontier days. In the near future we will have some of those who were present when the first paper came from the press tell us about it. In looking over the files of the paper we notice that news was different then and advertising not very plentiful. Yet the Chief has survived through adversity and thrived with prosperity. It has been edited by thirteen different editors and was operated at one time as a daily. The important events in the entire life's history of some of our citizens are recorded in the files of this paper from the notice of their birth to the time of their obituary.

Buy's Shop at Bladen
Chas. Dickenson and sons, C. A. and Clyde, were in Bladen Wednesday and closed a deal with Frank Whelan, present owner of the Blacksmith shop, for his building and business, possession to be given about the first of the year. Mr. Dickenson also purchased the residence property south of the Carl Ruschke home now occupied by Levi Vost. Both Mr. Dickenson and his boys expect to make their future home in Bladen. Mr. Whelan expects to look up a new location but is yet undecided as to where he will locate.—Bladen Enterprise.

CHRISTMAS AT THE RED CLOUD CHURCHES
CONGREGATIONAL
The service held in this church was noted for its simplicity and reverent spirit. Those who properly celebrated this occasion in the true Christmas spirit, will not have had reflections in the days that follow. Familiar songs and carols were sung by all present. It was a "giving" Christmas in this church. Christmas giving should be from purest motives and with the desire to please Him who has made the joy of Christmas possible to all. They gave themselves over-generously and thus a great spirit resulted. A pleasing feature of the program was the legend of "Boniface" or "Keep It All," told by Rev. Mary Mitchell. In accord with the story, the collection was given as a missionary offering.
CHRISTIAN AND MISSION
This was a fine program, and though we know that many methods of celebrating Christmas do not save of religious devotion and many fail to honor Christ, but rather dishonor Him by worldliness and self-indulgence which preclude all thought of Christian worship, these services had not this fault. In addition to the songs, readings, music and exercises, Miss Owens told the Christmas story in dialogue form with the children. She depicted the idea of deceiving the children about Santa Claus, for his proper place is in legend or myth. Such delightful stories of the Babe of Bethlehem to which little ones listen, endear the day to them. The Christmas exercises in which they take part, make Christmas memorable.

BAPTIST
After the study of the Christmas lesson on Sunday morning, the primary department gave a short program of songs and recitations. Special hymns were sung and the pastor preached an appropriate Christmas sermon. The church was beautifully decorated for the glad season.
GRACE CHURCH
The customary service with holy communion administered by Rev. Bates; the Christmas sermon on "Remembrances" by Rev. Hardman, and a program of song was the celebration at Grace church. The offertory anthem, "We Have Seen His Star" was beautifully rendered. The program was rather more elaborate than in former years. They had their tree and treats on Monday evening.
METHODIST
Members of the Sunday School presented the beautiful pageant "Carrying Christ to Every Child" on Sunday evening at 7:30. The lights were turned low and a fireplace was the decoration on the stage. A mother and her children were discovered sitting before the fire, and she was telling Christmas stories. They asked for the story of St. Christopher, and as she told of the characters in this legend they appeared in the fireplace. About twenty-five children took part in the pageant. Miss Gem White played the mother's part and Irene Mays, Mary Hamilton and Nellie Kullely were her children. The congregation sang Christmas hymns and carols. The offering taken will apply on the Centenary apportionment that ministers to the welfare of childhood and youth.

BRETHREN
The evening was given over entirely to a special Christmas program, on Sunday. The primary department gave some splendid songs; Mrs. Ruth Eshelman read "The Christmas Carol" by Dickens; Miss Nellie Frantz gave the reading, "The Christmas Spirit Speaks;" several solos were given, in splendid manner, by Mrs. Bruce Eshelman and Miss Frantz. The special feature of the evening was the spectacular play, "The first Christmas." "Joy to the World," concluded this beautiful service.
Mr. and Mrs. Downey have returned to this city after spending a few days at Holyoke, Colorado.
