DISTRICT COURT IS

The April term of District Court convened in this city on yesterday, with District Judge L. H. Backleize on the bench, he having exchanged places with Judge Dilworth and the latter going to Clay Center.

The case of Luther E. Brown vs Willard A. Brown, in which Attorney A. M. Walters of Blue Hill appears for the plaintiff and Attorneys F. J. Munday and Bernard McNeny, for the defendant, involves some two hundred acres of land and is occupying the attention of the court at this writing. The two Browns mentioned above are brothers and to complete the triangle and add additional interest to the proceedings the third brother, John, is intervening.

C. B. Steward Elected to Board Membership

At the April meeting of the executive committee held last week C. B. Steward of Red Cloud was elected to membership of the executive committee of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation to fill the vacancy created when J. N. Norton resigned following acceptance of petitions filed with the secretary of state asking him to run for governor.

C. Y. Thompson of West Point, vice-president of the committee automatically becomes president upon Norton's resignation, which becomes effective May 1.

Steward has been very active in farm bureau work in southeastern Nebraska and is one of the stalwart men of the organization. He was a delegate from Nebraska to the national convention of the U. S. Grain Growers held in Chicago last month, and was elected at that convention to the directorship of the U. S. Grain Growers.—The Nebraska Farm Bureau Review.

Musical Pleases People

A large audience attended the presentation of "Miss Cherryblossom" last night, a musical comedy given by the Red Cloud High School Chorus. It was pronounced a splendid success by all present. Considering the short time in which those who participated prepared their parts and the fact that the play was really quite difficult the affair was handled remarkably well and those playing the important roles exhibited no small amount of talent and ability along this line.

Those who played Japanese parts wore gorgeous Oriental costumes and the stage was arranged to represent a tea garden typical of Japan and decorated with Japanese lanterns. Miss Jessie Crabill's manipulation of the piano was highly pleasing. Miss Post and Miss Simmons are to be complimented for their splendid work in the direction of this play, for those who are familiar with this line of work appreciate that directing a play of this nature, in which so many take part, requires a great deal of hard labor and unlimited patience.

Paving Bond Case Carried Up

A recent decision of the district court of Webster county to the effect that district paving bonds are not an obligation of an entire municipality, but of the district itself has sadly disturbed the holders of bonds of that character issued by second class cities of the state, and they have employed a high-priced firm of Omaha attorneys to secure a reversal of that decree in the supreme court.

In 1919 the citizens of part of Red Cloud, feeling themselves flush and being possessed of an urge for civic improvement, did a lot of paving. A year later the city didn't have enough money to pay the interest on the bonds, and the city council proceeded to issue refunding bonds that are the obligations of the entire city and payable out of general tax levies, interest and principal.

Citizens living outside the paved area went into court about it, asserting that the paving specially benefited the property abutting thereon and that it is contrary to law an equity to compel everybody to pay the cost of paving that directly benefited only a few property holders. The district court held with them.

In a brief filed in supreme court Tuesday extensive arguments are set forth by the attorneys who appear as friends of the court in support of the legal thesis that district paving bonds are the general obligations of the city. It is asserted that it is the power and the duty of a city to raise by general taxation a sum sufficient to meet any deficiency caused by the failure, in the first place, to levy sufficient money by special assessments to pay all of the cost. They also interpret the existing law to support their contention.

It is pointed out that the city is within its legal authority when it orders an improvement made that does not specifically benefit any piece of property, and that its power is not limited by the cost of the improvement where it exceeds the special benefits conferred. The issue of paving bonds, they assert, is limited only by the cost of the improvement, and that the city is primarily liable for all public works.—State Journal.
