PASTURING WHEAT

Much valuable feed may be secured this fall and winter from pasturing wheat without material injury to the wheat if judiciously done. The value will of course depend on many things, such as the growth of the wheat and the scarcity of other feed. For the farmer who has plenty of other pasture there is little to induce him to pasture his wheat and probably as a rule he had better not. But the man who is short of feed, especially if he has dairy cattle, can save considerable expense and the effect on the wheat will scarcely be noticed.

The general opinion of farmers and the results of experiments seem to agree rather closely in showing that wheat is rarely benefited by pasturing. Sometimes on rich bottom lands—where wheat is not often grown—pasturing will prevent an excessive growth of straw and reduce to some extent the danger of lodging. Late spring pasturing, however, will delay the crop, cause it to ripen late and almost invariably reduce the yield. Pasturing too closely or before the plants get started and pasturing when the ground is wet will usually cause more injury than will be offset by the value of the pasture. Care must also be exercised in turning cattle on to wheat pasture for the first time on account of danger of bloating.

Soft wheat as a rule furnishes better pasture than hard wheat because of its rank and more rapid growth. The difference, however, is not sufficient to justify growing soft wheat where hard wheat is considered a better variety.

Experiments at the Kansas Station from 1888 to 1896 give valuable indications of what may be expected from pasturing, so far as the effect on the wheat is concerned. In these experiments, stock was not allowed on the fields until the wheat was well started, and never when the ground was wet. Neither were they pastured close enough to cause any apparent injury. The average yields for five years were as follows:

Fall pastured, 26.3 bushels per acre; Spring pastured, 27.8 bushels per acre; Not pastured 29.6 bushels per acre.

A similar experiment at the Oklahoma station for five years gave the following results: Heavily pastured 8.4 bushels per acre; Lightly pastured to March 1 11.6 bushels per acre; Not pastured 12.7 bushels per acre.

Cattle men value wheat pastures at from 25 cents to $2.00 per acre, depending on the wheat and the price of feed. Most cattle men and wheat growers in the district believe in the value of the pasture in the fall as that which carries them. They claim that judicious pasturing does not injure the wheat and if they get some pasture they are certain of that much which may be all they will get out of the crop.

MANNERS, MARRIAGE

DID it ever occur to you that manners have quite as much to do with happiness in marriage as temperament, and that many a separation laid to incompatibility was due more than to anything else to plain bad manners on the part of the two persons most concerned?

And good manners are made up of attention to a lot of seemingly little, trifling things. For instance, there is the matter of interrupting. Every one knows this is bad form, and most persons guard against interrupting mere acquaintances, associates in business or society; but they are not so careful about interrupting members of their own family. And a time comes, after you have been interrupted again and again, when it begins to irritate to the point of exasperation. Then there is the habit of contradicting. You guard carefully against saty contradicting the man or woman whom you wish favorably to impress, yet there are a good many husbands and wives who do not hesitate to contradict each other whenever their own opinion differs with that of the other.

Now, don't think just because your husband doesn't rebel against your habit of saty contradicting him, that he really is insensitive to it. It irritates him, even if he doesn't seem to note it, and he would really enjoy being in your society a little bit more if you did not have this bad habit. So often a man begins to tell some anecdote or incident for the entertainment of a guest, and before he has got fairly under way the wife comes in with: "Now, let me tell that story. You're getting it all wrong," or "Well, that's the first time I ever heard that; you must be dreaming." Such interruptions and contradictions are boring to the guests and irritating and embarrassing to the host who is trying to tell the story. And usually the point raised by the contradiction was some trivial matter that she might have let go unchallenged, even if she did feel convinced that there was some discrepancy about it.

CITY MAKES FINAL PAYMENT ON OIL ENGINE

Mayor Peterson being absent A. H. Hoffman, president, called the Council together in regular adjourned session on Wednesday evening, November 8th, with all members present.

The minutes of the October 31st meeting were read and approved and the monthly report of S. R. Florence presented and ordered placed on file.

A petition signed by thirty-two free holders was presented to the Council asking that the city purchase a suitable motor vehicle, upon which to carry the apparatus of the Fire Department and a sufficient number of firemen from the Firemen's hall to the scene of any fire in the city. A Reo chassis costing $1330.00 is preferred by the firemen. Roy Rust J. O. Butler and J. S. L. Thomas appeared in the interests of the fire boys and the matter was taken under consideration.

E. E. Hackney, representative of the Ruckle Engineering Co., of Hutchinson, Kansas, was present and gave a talk on the water situation. Chas. Gilham also offered some suggestions on this subject.

It was moved and seconded that the mayor and clerk be instructed to make final payment on Ordinance No. 61, $3000.00, this cancelling the last warrants on the two engines at the power house. Carried.

The bonds of E. W. Stevens and Glen Mountford were approved by the Council.

The American Legion were granted permission to rope off two blocks on Main street during the parade on Saturday, November 11th.

The Council instructed the city attorney to protect the interests of the city in the sale of property for taxes.

On motion the following claims were taken up separately and allowed:

On motion the Council adjourned. CLARISSA M. MAYNARD, City Clerk.

Mrs. W. L. Koons Answers to Summons

Mrs. W. L. Koon, who has been a sufferer for some time, passed away at her home Tuesday night. Some time ago she underwent a serious operation at Hastings, and since that time she has been bedfast. About five weeks ago she requested that she be brought home, and for a time it seemed as though she might be restored to health, but the death angel came and called her. She was a patient sufferer and was ready to submit to his will.

Myrtle Pearl Duckworth was born in Irving county, Kansas, August 8, 1877, being aged 45 years, 3 months and 6 days. She with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Duckworth, came to Nebraska in 1882. On June 10, 1901, she was united in marriage to Wm. L. Koon, at Norman, since which time they have made Red Cloud their home. This union was blessed by four children, three girls and one boy—Misses Ruby and Alberta and Master William, Druzilla preceding her mother to the great beyond when but an infant.

Definite funeral arrangements have not as yet been completed, but in all probability will be held Sunday afternoon from the Methodist church.

Western View of the Matter. The inhabitants of the district of the port of New York devour, waste, spoil, and otherwise destroy 8,445,200,000 pounds of food every year. Sometimes it doesn't seem worth it.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Cleaning Hint. When you're cleaning house sprinkle the clothes closets with a little water in which tobacco has been steeped and then sprinkle with a little spirits of camphor. The latter destroys the odor of the former and together they will prevent annoyance by moths.

Children's Books Here. This is a Nationally advertised week—and the object is to encourage parents to know what books their children are reading, and help them select. We are showing a window full of Good Children's Books from which you can choose. We will order anything not in stock. We invite you to call. CHAS. L. COTTING, The Druggist

GROCERIES. Cheerful acceptance of orders over the phone or in person and Prompt Delivery are two of the reasons that our store has such a big clientele. Another is that our Groceries are always fresh, pure and wholesome and our prices most reasonable. May we have the pleasure of a visit or call from you to-day? P. A. Wullbrandt Groceries and Queensware

Hardware & Electrical Goods. WHEN you want anything in the line of hardware, whether it be a small item or a bill for a new house, we will be glad to serve you. ELECTRICAL GOODS. We also carry a line of electrical goods. See us for lamps, irons, grills, percolators, waffle irons, sewing machine motors, etc. GEORGE TRINE
