RULE OF CRICKET

"Stand Still," Fundamental Idea of the Game.

And Frank Ward of McCook, Writing in Eastern Magazine, Says "Stand Still" is Right.

An introductory chapter in the official rules of cricket, written by the noted East Indian cricketer, Prince Ranjitsinhji, caught my interest in the opening sentence. Prince Ranjiji's first words gave me in a flash an insight of the big fundamental of the game.

"Stand still" is the most important direction to give to the cricket beginner," ran Ranjiji's opening words. "Stand still or you will never make a cricket player. It is a good plan for the young batsman to have his right leg pegged down, if he naturally cannot stand still."

There you are! Someone said something when he said that Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton and Harrow. When the French charged, Wellington's former cricketers played the game—stood still. And doubtless the Cambridge batsman spending the summer on the field had his legs on leash. It is significant to come back to America for a moment—the only American city where cricket has obtained a foothold is Philadelphia. Football is right.

The wide differences between the rules of cricket and baseball rules were many. I saw as I studied the cricket code. The first cricket rule I read, for instance, said that when the bowler, or pitcher, shoots his fast one toward the plate and the thrown ball first lodges in the batsman's clothing, the ball shall become dead. In baseball, on the other hand, when the same thing happens the batter becomes dead.

There is a variation of this idea in a following rule which says that if the wicket-keeper—catcher—reaches out in front of the wicket—home plate—to catch the pitched ball while the batsman is taking a smash at it, "the player shall not be out." In baseball, however, if the catcher were to reach far out in front of the home plate and roughly try to snatch the ball out of the air, especially at the precise moment that Babe Ruth's pet wagon tongue came rushing through the air to give the ball a little kiss, somebody would be out. For days and days he would be out.

One more rule and the American reader will have as clear an understanding of the intricacies of cricket as even I have. The final rule in the official laws of cricket runs:

"The interval for luncheon shall be forty minutes on each day of the match. The game then shall be resumed each day at the usual hour, no allowance being made for the ten minutes between innings."

No mention is made of afternoon tea. Tea is understood.—Frank Ward O'Malley in the Saturday Evening Post.

Women Are Enthusiastic Athletes. Owing to the rapid movement of women's athletics in France where there are 90 organizations of women athletes all with large memberships, the fear has been expressed among the medical fraternity that zeal may outrun their discretion and the subject has been given some considerable attention by the members of the Medical Congress of Physical Education. This body has made a number of important suggestions for the guidance of women who desire to take part in athletics. One of them is that all such persons desiring to enter organized contests should be made to secure the consent of some competent physician, to be given only after a thorough examination of the candidate. The members also adopted certain restrictions for all women's events and suggested that the long jump be suppressed entirely.

Cruel Feeling. A Connecticut woman played an April fool trick on her husband by telling him she was going to sue for divorce, when she had no intention of doing it. Some time later she had a disagreement between a joke and a disappointment.

THIRD ANNUAL UNCLE DUD TELEGRAPHIC TROPHY SHOOT

The Red Cloud Gun Club has entered the Uncle Dud shoot conducted under the auspices of the Denver Times and The Rocky Mountain News.

Nine Gun Clubs have entered the League: Colorado Springs, Colorado, Denver, Colorado, North Platte, Nebraska, Pueblo, Colorado, Wray, Colorado, Trinidad, Colorado, Wray, Colorado, Louisville, Colorado, and Red Cloud, Nebraska.

Five men at least must shoot each Sunday. As many as desire may compete. The five highest with their individual scores, are reported by telegraph to the Denver Times.

League Rules by A. T. A.: First—All targets must be thrown at regulation distance and angles according to the rules of the American Trap shooting association.

Second—Fifty consecutive targets must be shot at in each match. Practice shots before scoring are not permitted.

Third—Targets to be scored as broken must have a piece of distinctly visible shot broken from them. "Dusted" targets must be scored as lost.

Fourth—Referee and scorer must stand behind the shooter.

Fifth—Scores sent in to The Denver Times and The Rocky Mountain News, and the team of the week will be declared.

Sixth—Each target will show a score. Targets in the center of a field will be the most difficult to shoot. The team of the week will be declared. Ties will be decided by special matches of fifty consecutive targets arranged by the committee in charge.

Fort Collins, Colorado, were the winner of 1922 and shot against Wray, Colorado, January 7th, 1923. Denver, Colorado, against North Platte, Nebraska, Colorado Springs, Colorado, Wray, Colorado, and the new clubs, who make their first appearance since this year, Louisville and Trinidad, Colorado, will fight it out in the opening contest to get a good start.

Red Cloud will shoot their first shoot January 14 at 2:30 sharp, their opponents not known yet, but will know by Friday, January 12th.

Come out and shoot with us as your individual score may be one of the best five. Every one is allowed to shoot whether a member of this club or not. If your home is Red Cloud, See R. C. CLIFF

MAFONS and EASTERN STAR HOLD OPEN MEETING

An open meeting of the Masonic and Eastern Star organizations was held in their lodge rooms on Friday evening, which was of such a nature as to attract members from both societies who, it is said, for months past have been conspicuous by their absence, as well as visiting brethren and sisters from far and near points.

The dinner, a most sumptuous affair was prepared and served by the ladies of the Eastern Star.

Mrs. Emma McCellan of Beaver City, grand matron of the Eastern Star, for the state of Nebraska, was the principal speaker of the evening, her subject, of course, pertaining to matters connected with his society. Bishop Beecher of Hastings, who was likewise scheduled to appear, owing to illness, was unable to be present.

Besides the above the program consisted of a violin solo by Rev. Samuel Hardman, whose talent is too well known to require further comment; a reading by Mrs. Geo. Kaley, likewise in the professional class; a solo by Mrs. Laird Potter, who never fails to charm and please; a duet by Mrs. Laird Potter and N. B. Bush, a real pair of artists and last, but not least, selections by the new Masonic male quartet which comprises Messrs. H. S. Fox, N. B. Bush, A. B. Crabill and S. Hardman. The reader will note the above is listed as the "new" quartet and it was probably due to this feature that the diplomacy displayed in placing it last on the program was promulgated. However, the fortunate enough to be present and in a position to judge, pronounce it a little bit the best of anything heretofore emanating from the vocal cords of the male sex, two legged species, roaming at will around these parts. —Commercial Advertiser.
