NEBRASKA ROADS SHOULD BE ADVERTISED Good roads, like prophets, are often without honor in their own country. Nebraska people who travel over our excellent dirt roads all the time regard them lightly, as a part of the natural order of things. It is not until he attempts to travel over the roads of less fortunate states that the Nebraskan appreciates the highways of his own state and realizes what an asset they are to the commonwealth. To drive across Nebraska on the smooth, level roadbed of our state roads, with the beautiful pastoral scenery of Nebraska's prairie lands spread out for miles on either side is like a Sabbath day's rest to the driver who is wearied with hilly or rough roads. Nebraska borders three favorite tourist points—Colorado, Wyoming and the Black Hills of South Dakota. It naturally enjoys much tourist traffic between eastern states and these points. During one week last summer the inter-state traffic through eighteen different stations on Nebraska state roads was 13,942 cars. If this count be used as a basis of estimate, we may conclude that, during the twelve weeks of summer, 167,304 out-of-state cars pass through the same eighteen stations. If each car carried four persons, 669,216 people were guests of the state for about two days. More than half a million people testifying to the excellence of Nebraska roads, the courtesy of Nebraska people, the prosperity of Nebraska farms and the enterprise of the towns passed through should be worth a great deal to the state. State and local auto clubs, co-operating with other organizations, might well make advertisement of Nebraska as a project and attract more of this traffic. Some of our neighboring states have already seen the wisdom of such a course and are making hand some bids for tourist trade.
